

the department of civil engineering. In 1909 Professor Swain was offered and accepted the Gordon McKay professorship of civil engineering in the graduate school of applied science, Harvard University. In 1893 upon the organization of the Society for Promotion of Engineering Education, he was appointed the second president of that society. His publications include Notes on Hydraulics and also on Structures, for the use of his classes. In 1887 he contributed a paper to the American Society of Civil Engineers on the "Calculation of Stresses in Bridges for Concentrated Loads," which paper has had a very marked effect upon present practice so far as structural computations and investigations are concerned. Professor Swain has served on a number of different commissions, among them being the Boston Transit Commission organized for the construction of the Boston Subways; the commission appointed to fix the method of eliminating grade crossings in various parts of New England, and has in very many cases been called as an expert in court cases, not only in Massachusetts but elsewhere.
