

should confer with the Bishop, and that they should together select and order new books to that value. There appears to be no limit to Canon Richardson's generosity and it must be most satisfactory to him to see that his gifts are appreciated, and that the books are being well used throughout the Diocese.

Cap-à-l'Aigle.

Last year the readers of the Diocesan Gazette were asked by the Editor to contribute to its columns short sketches of some of their Holiday resorts. A few words about Cap-à-l'Aigle may therefore not be uninteresting. As a summer abode this little watering place is fast growing in popularity, though for many years little was known of it. This was probably due to there being no wharf, in consequence of which people, who went there, were obliged to land at Murray Bay, and drive over a distance of six miles. Now there is a wharf, and the steamer puts in on certain days.

Cap-à-l'Aigle is chiefly noted for its pure, bracing air, both salt and mountain, the country round being very hilly. The scenery in every direction is lovely, and there are many delightful drives. It will no doubt interest most of the readers of the Gazette to hear about the little English Church, which is a unique, quaint little building. It was originally a coach-house, and some twenty years ago, was lent to us for a place of worship; since that time it has been kindly given to us, and many improvements have been made, so that little remains of the original building. Almost every summer something has been done towards repairs and improvements, and last year a sale was held, the proceeds of which, one hundred and sixty dollars, were expended in enlarging the building, which now seats one hundred and twenty people.

This summer a cake and candy sale was held, realizing about forty dollars, which is to be devoted to improvements in the interior. Fifty dollars has also been collected by a lady visitor for a set of Altar Vessels, the old set being a very inferior one. The same lady kindly collected eighty dollars for a harmonium some years ago.

We have been presented with a stained-glass window from the firm of Messrs. Spence & Co.,

Montreal, and a bell from the Protestant Church at Murray Bay, both of which were very welcome gifts.

We are specially favoured in having the voluntary services of the Rev. Dr. Allnatt, Professor of Divinity at Bishop's College, Lennoxville. Not only have we the usual Sunday Services, viz., an early Celebration of the Holy Communion every Sunday and a late Celebration on the first and third Sundays in the month, and Morning and Evening Service, but also daily Matins, which is much appreciated by those who attend. The average congregation at the daily Service is about ten, which is good, though it might be better.

We hope that before very long, our little Church, "St. Peter on the Rock," may be consecrated.

LUCY F. CARTER.

Intercession in behalf of Sunday School Work.

In response to the request of our Bishop, as published in the October Diocesan Gazette, a special effort was made in the City of Quebec to observe Sunday and Monday, October 20th and 21st, as days of Intercession in behalf of our Sunday Schools and Sunday School Work. On Sunday, October 20th, the special Prayers were used in all the City Churches and at St. Matthew's Church, there was a Corporate Communion for their Sunday School Teachers, while on Sunday afternoon, the children of the Cathedral, St. Matthew's, St. Peter's, St. Paul's and Holy Trinity, Levis Sunday Schools all assembled in the mother Church of the Diocese, the Cathedral, and led by the combined choirs of St. Matthew's Church and the Cathedral took part in a united Service of Intercession and Praise. Two Nave of the Cathedral was filled to overflowing and there were many people also in the galleries. The sight of so many little ones of Christ's flock gathered together under one roof was most impressive, suggesting to even the youngest the vast importance of their Sunday School. The Bishop's Address to the children was most interesting and instructive, pointing out as it did to the humble origin of Sunday Schools in England, and indicating what a harmonious growth and development had taken place during the one hundred and fifteen years of their existence.

We give the Service verbatim in the hope that it may be useful to some of our readers, as a model Children's Service on any future occasion.
