

Today, I wish to announce, on behalf of the British people, that our decision was the following:

The British people have decided that the British Empire should be a permanent union of free peoples, and that the British people should be a permanent union of free peoples. The British people have decided that the British Empire should be a permanent union of free peoples, and that the British people should be a permanent union of free peoples.

The British people have decided that the British Empire should be a permanent union of free peoples, and that the British people should be a permanent union of free peoples. The British people have decided that the British Empire should be a permanent union of free peoples, and that the British people should be a permanent union of free peoples.

The British people have decided that the British Empire should be a permanent union of free peoples, and that the British people should be a permanent union of free peoples. The British people have decided that the British Empire should be a permanent union of free peoples, and that the British people should be a permanent union of free peoples.

The British people have decided that the British Empire should be a permanent union of free peoples, and that the British people should be a permanent union of free peoples. The British people have decided that the British Empire should be a permanent union of free peoples, and that the British people should be a permanent union of free peoples.

The British people have decided that the British Empire should be a permanent union of free peoples, and that the British people should be a permanent union of free peoples. The British people have decided that the British Empire should be a permanent union of free peoples, and that the British people should be a permanent union of free peoples.