

HENRY VIII.

again their wives; or else to appear before your Lordship, to shew a cause why they should not be compelled; and if your Lordship will command any other thing to be done in the premises, I shall be ready to accomplish the same. And seeing my Lord of Norfolk is come to the court, I shall most humbly desire you to have me in remembrance. And thus God preserve you, and have you in his most firm tuition, with much increase of honour, according to the contentation of your Lordship's most noble good heart's desire.

From the monastery of Vale Royal, the 22d of August.

Your Lordship's humble at commandment,

THOMAS LEIGH.