

There are many causes why the French-Canadians have not responded to the call in equally as large numbers as the English-Canadians, and we have no hesitation in saying that the French-Canadians should not be ashamed to make these causes public.

We could enumerate many of them, which are probably well known to our own people, but they should be put forward throughout the entire provinces of the Dominion, not in a retaliatory way, but in a manner that will appeal to the fair mind of the English speaking Canadians.

We believe that this will be done through the coalition of the members of the Entente Cordiale of the two provinces, but we would like to suggest that other organizations follow in the wake of the present Entente Cordiale Committee.

Why not organize exchange visits of the French-Canadian university students with those of Ontario? We are sure that a most pleasant visit
