A meeting of the board of health was held at noon today when the smallpox situation at St. Martins was discussed. A young man named Herbert Dupuis, employed with P. Nade & Son, had a rather strenuous time of it yesterday afternoon. Dupuis, who is about 21 years of age, was on the Elsie yesterday afternoon, and remained on board too long to go ashore. He was taken up river and got off at his home at Westfield. There he tried conclusions with a stalwart young man in a friendly manner and the latter accidentally landed heavily on Dupuis's head. He injured the member so badly that the Indian town clerk had to come to Fairville by train last night, where Dr. Curran attended to the injury.

A. Hartley Haslett, William Haslett, of this city, and Capt. Parks Haslett were at the depot this morning to meet their brother, George Haslett, who has been in Eau Claire, Wisconsin, for the past 31 years, and has not been seen by any of his family, save William, within that time. The latter visited his brother in Eau Claire two years ago. The family formerly belonged to Upper Kenebecade. BAD BOYS ARE BUSY

A Fairville correspondent writes that three boys, one from Carleton, one from Lancaster Heights and one from Harding street, Fairville, make it very unpleasant for those living next to the home of the Harding street boy. While small children are playing in the yard they are struck with old cans, broken doll and almost blinded by sand thrown in their eyes. The parent of these children went out and told the bad boys to stop and was called bad names. The same boys on the 24th of May put a loaded cartridge in some rubbish that was burning in Sherwood's yard, front of the lot, and while three small children were playing about the fire the cartridge exploded.

PATHETIC TALE OF A NEWSBOY

New York Lad the Sole Support of Widowed Mother and Five Sisters is Dead.

Little Willie MacDonald, the 10-year-old newsboy, who by his earnings supported his widowed mother and five little sisters is dead. He was brought to the Children's Hospital last Thursday from his home at 63 West Newton street suffering from the dreaded meningitis. Surrounded by his relatives and several of his newsboy friends, the brave little chap, who had struggled so long against adversity passed away early yesterday morning.

"I know I'm going to die," where his last words, "and I hate to leave mamma and my little sisters to fight it out all alone. I hope that God will look out for them when I am gone, just as I have looked after them."

For years, ever since the death of his strong and sturdy father, the little newsboy has worked hard to support his mother and his sister Grace at the corner of Columbus Avenue and Yarmouth streets where the tide of South end traffic is the thickest, young MacDonald, about a year ago set up a news stand.

Day by day, for the first few weeks, he eked out but enough to support himself. He gave every cent of it to his mother. It was tough going for some time. But Willie's customers soon learned the story of the brave little lad from whom they bought their morning and evening papers. They took an interest in the boy, and many a man who would have ordinarily gone to a stand nearer his home or place of business went out of his way to help the slender little boy.

Women too were his customers, and even the policemen at the south end station. All through the district everyone knew Willie, and everybody tried to help him. He made good money, so the other newsboys said, but every cent of it went to his widowed mother.

Three or four days ago Willie closed his stand late at night, and with his day's savings went to his home. That night he became ill, so sick that Mrs. MacDonald had to sit by his bedside during the entire night. The next day Willie could not go to work. He wanted to, but his mother would not let him. "I'm all right, mamma," he said, "it's only a little cold. Everybody is laid up during this bad spell." But his mother, knowing full well that her only son was too sick to go out in the cold, said she would get one of his chums to take his place.

In the next block to where Willie lives were several of his newsboy friends. To these Mrs. MacDonald told the story of Willie's illness. Every one of the boys volunteered for the work, but little Jackie Silverman was the one selected. He went to work on one condition—that he was not to get any money for his services. Whether or not Jackie told the customers about the illness of Willie or whether the newsboys of that section contributed a part of their earnings matters not, but the fact remains that Jackie brought home to Mrs. MacDonald a few dollars more than Willie was accustomed to make. Saturday Willie's condition was so bad that his mother sent for a physician, who ordered the boy sent to the Children's Hospital.

Early yesterday morning the doctors found the signs of death. Mrs. MacDonald was summoned to the bedside, and with her came her five little girls, Jackie Silverman and other of his newsboy friends. They arrived just before Willie became unconscious, but time enough to hear him speak fondly of them. His end was peaceful, and the newsboy fraternity mourns.

ST. JOHN IN 1835

What a Boston Paper of That Year Said of Our Prosperity

The Boston Evening Gazette of 7th. Nov. 1835, has the following notice of St. John: "St. John is in a very prosperous state. It is stated that 30,000 tons of shipping are owned there—nearly, or quite as much as the port of Boston. The timber trade that are built in that neighborhood are very large, averaging over 500 tons each. The ship Phoenix, of 815 tons burthen, the largest merchant ship that ever entered the port of Liverpool, was built at St. John and sold for nine guineas a ton at Liverpool."
