U. S. NAVAL BUTTON TO TAUNT SLACKERS

New York (April 20)—To distinguish men who have offered to serve the country from "slackers," navy recruiting officials issued a button yesterday to each applicant for enlistment who failed of acceptance because of physical disability.

The button not only designates the wearer as a man who had performed his duty, but the inscription upon it is so worded as to convey a direct challenge to slackers and others who had not done likewise. It reads: "I have volunteered for the navy. Have you?"
