TRADE PREPAREDNESS

American Opinion That Measures Must be Early Applied and That Britain Will Move Slowly

(The First National Bank of Boston letter.)

"In the midst of unexampled prosperity in the United States, attended by enormous favorable balances of trade, and with the workshops operating at their utmost capacity under amazing profit making conditions, it is highly important that the best thought of the country be directed toward a consideration of the transition—wherever it may come—from war economics to peace economics. Recognizing the present distorted state of trade and granting a possible period of business activity after the war, due partly to acquired momentum, a drastic commercial readjustment is inevitable.

"An outstanding feature of the past war has been the activity displayed by various countries along the line of industrial preparedness. Conferences of the kind have been held to secure mutual, post-war trade protection, shipping combinations to provide effective competition on the sea; widespread discussion of tariffs and preferential duties, all in preparation for a grim commercial contest when the war ceases.

Of special interest is the announcement of the German government's specific intentions—characteristically thorough—establishing a Commission to consider ways and means for conducting her domestic and foreign trade after the war. The United States lacks the experience now being accumulated by the belligerent countries in reorganizing their industrial machinery and resources. This handicap, coupled with the fact that we have much to lose, makes more urgent the need for an active and thorough-going program to meet world-wide commercial competition when hostilities come to an end.

Less than lumbermen to concert measures for taking advantage of the great market for lumber in European countries upon the reconstruction demands after war. The department has in course of completion a report on trade openings for Canadian lumber in Europe as investigated by H. R. Macmillan, chief forester of British Columbia. It is pointed out that every one of the belligerent nations will require immense supplies of lumber as soon as rebuilding starts. In Belgium forests have been entirely destroyed. In northern France thousands of new homes will have to be built, and railway rebuilding will require an immense quantity of railway ties. In England and Scotland forests have been denuded, the supply of lumber already exhausted, and imported lumber is in urgent demand. In Italy the same condition applies. Russia still has great supplies of standing timber, but it is said to be unsuited for rebuilding operations owing to its lower quality.

In the United States lumbermen have already under way several export associations with foreign sales agencies to secure and distribute orders for American lumber. Sir George Foster wants a similar organization of Canadian lumbermen to secure European business for Canada.

War Supplies Trade 25 Per Cent. of Total

New York, Nov. 15.—Export of war supplies for the nine months ended September 31, amounted to $897,370,000, or more than 25 per cent. of the country's total export trade for the period, according to figures published here today by the Journal of Commerce. The value of explosives sent to belligerents was more than half a billion dollars, and automobiles, horses and mules, metal-working machinery and wire ranked next in that order.

According to a table published covering war supplies exports since the movement began in January, 1915, their value for the twenty-one months was $1,617,445,000, or about 22 per cent. of the country's total exports. More war supplies were sent abroad during the first nine months of this year than throughout 1915.

THE WINTER DRINKS OF PRIMEGROST

Tempting, Fragrant Coffee and Delicious Cocoa, Made by Modern Sanitary Methods at Primecrest Laboratory Where Steaming Bovril is Also Served

Every indication points to instant popularity for the delightful winter beverages which, beginning this evening will be served at Primecrest Farms Laboratory, 37 Charlotte street, where the management have just installed the most modern coffee and cocoa urns known to the scientific culinary world. The tall, gracefully designed urns, are handsomely nickel plated, with open sanitary fittings, porcelain enamel lined, the heat being provided by two powerful easily regulated gas burners.

The coffee, cocoa, and beef tea, are of the highest grades the market offers, and are served with a delicate cracker or two in dainty china cups in choice looking silver plated holders. The hot drinks of Primecrest should win increasing popularity these winter days, with lady shoppers and others.
