Teachers' Prospects

Teachers are very scarce in the province, according to Chief Superintendent Carter at the 29th session of the Charlotte County Teachers' Institute at St. George yesterday. He said that this was largely due to the poor salaries paid and urged the teachers to demand higher pay. He also pointed out that the demand for special teachers for vocational work opened a new field with better prospects for ambitious teachers. Dr. Carter urged in addition that teachers be told to give their pupils plenty of fresh air and sunlight. Dr. Steeves, who also spoke, thought that scientific agriculture should be given greater attention. Speakers at the evening meeting were Mayor McGrattan, Inspector McLean, Director Peacock, R. P. Steeves and Senator Gillmor.

A Visit to the Carnegies At Skibo Castle

MANUEL AND HIS BRIDE

Canadian Day at the Imperial Services Exhibition in London—News of People From Dominion on Visit to Old Country

(Times' Special Correspondence)

London, Sept. 28.—I met an old friend this week who had just come down from Skibo Castle where she had been staying with the Carnegies. "They are the kindest people in the world to visit," she said. "There was only one thing I did not like there, that was the porridge. It seems to be an affront to the family if you do not eat your porridge off the lovely silver platter on which it is served. I did so want to put one of these platters in my pocket," she added. "They were genuine Queen Anne."

"The old silver at the castle is Mrs. Carnegie's fetish. About half past nine in the evening she will dip out of the drawing-room and steal down to the house-keeper's room to count it before it is locked in its special safe for the night. She is the most house proud chaste in all the Highlands and that is saying a lot. The housekeeper has been with her for years, yet Mrs. Carnegie is not content to let her count these treasures. But probably it is just a labor of love and a joy to her to handle the rare old things."

There is no vestige of snobbery about the Carnegies they do not pine a bit for the society of royalty or even titled folk but they are anxious for the companionship of brainy individuals. Of late Andrew has taken to being a raconteur and does it well. He likes his friends to correct him if he repeats himself. It would be a blessing if other story-tellers did likewise.

The gardens at Skibo are looking gorgeous just now especially the old-English garden which is a masterpiece of mellow red brick, nearly square towers and bagpipes to give it the true air of a century ago. The walls, like those of all self-respecting old-English gardens, are covered with ivy. Everybody knows there are no rainbows in the world like those of Scotland. When one appears all the house party hurry to the lawn to admire it.

Queen Augusta Victoria, King Manuel's bride, one does not know quite what to call her yet—is bringing with her to Twickenham a large staff of German servants, a wise precaution because servants are such terrors here. Like most German girls she is something of a hausfrau. All the same she has lovely clothes and glorious hats in her trousseau which we all are dying to see. Queen Amelia, Manuel's mother, like the chic Frenchwoman she is, has a most cultured taste in dress. In the summer when the princess was staying here another-in-law-to-be did not think much of her millinery and she telephoned from Claridge's to one of the best shops and in half an hour had the most delectable hats in London at the hotel. The princess looked so different after the queen had dressed her. This pleased Manuel immensely, for the princess is a judge of things sartorial as well as of pretty women.

The charred ruins of one of the loveliest seats in Ireland, Killybegs, are a tragic sight and are distressing all the tourists now visiting in Ireland. Poor Lord Kenmare is quite prostrate with grief. He can remember the things that have been destroyed for they were unique and priceless. The chapel was one of the most beautiful private ones in the kingdom and more of the wonderful things in it were gathered from all ends of the earth by the great connoisseur, Gertrude Lady Kenmare.

This lady was a particular friend of the great Archbishop of Cashel, Doctor Crooke, and Lord Kenmare tells a good story of how she asked him to dinner, whereupon he thanked her and said: "I would like to dine with you, dear lady, but I have an engagement with a neighbor of yours, Biddy Rafferty, in the village." Lady Kenmare knew that Biddy was a saint. The dinner consisted of red herrings!

A Canadian Day

Canadian Day at the Imperial Services Exhibition at Earl's Court, yesterday, brought together the largest number of Canadians of any function in recent years. Ten thousand invitations were issued, and everywhere was seen the Maple Leaf badge, which was the decoration of the day. Fortunately the weather was good. The scene in the Welcome Club, where General Bethune received the guests, was of great beauty and the charming toilettes worn by the ladies were under ideal conditions. Apologies were announced from Colonel the Hon. Sam Hughes, who was in Germany; Hon. Mr. Crothers, who was in Ireland; Sir Richard McBride, premier of British Columbia, who was on the continent; General Sir Ian Hamilton and the contingent of Canadian militia officers, who were at the British Military Manoeuvres.

During the afternoon and evening a special Canadian programme was provided, including a naval battle and display in the Empress Hall, and a fireworks display, in which the principal features were "The Portraits" of the king and Lord Strathcona, a map of Canada, and a representation of the Maple Leaf. The Allan Jamieson collection of historical Canadian pictures, prints and medals was on view in one of the pavilions, as well as a model of the new Victoria Memorial to be erected outside the Parliament Buildings in Victoria, B. C. E. Mackay Edgar, formerly of Montreal, who is very much in the public eye by reason of the success of his motorboat "Maple Leaf IV" was busy receiving congratulations, as also was another "Montrealer" Joseph B. Learmont, who purchased Quebec House, Wolfe's early home, has been warmly received in Anglo-Canadian circles here.

After a lengthy stay in Scotland Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Kennedy of Windsor, Ontario, are continuing their holiday in Switzerland.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McAdams of Sarnia will return to Canada this week. They spent a few weeks motoring in Scotland.

J. S. Brierty and his wife and family are on a holiday in Scotland, following a tour through Wales.

BLAMES HIGH WAGES FOR INCREASE IN THE COST OF LIVING

University Professor Says This as Much as Any One Thing Else is Cause

(Bangor Commercial)

The managements of Lynn shoe shops say that they have arrived at the point of the wage, the point at which they must have reduced expenses or go out of business, as they state, it is impossible to continue the manufacture of shoes at the present rate of wages. The unions have refused to accede to the request of the operators for a reduction of wages and there the matter rests at present.

This question of wages is treated very interestingly in the October number of the Atlantic Monthly by Prof. J. Lawrence Laughlin of the University of Chicago, who argues that the policy of the labor unions, through the attempt to create a monopoly for the purpose of increasing wages has had the result of advancing the price of labor and consequently the wage earner is worse off in the matter of living than he was with lower wages and lower costs of living.

Prof. Laughlin gives his statistics to back up his views and states that in the principal manufacturing and mechanical industries, leaving out salaried employees in the ten years from 1897 to 1907, wages had risen from 99.2 to 122.4 or 23 per cent. Retail prices for food had increased from 96.5 to 120.6 or 25.5 per cent.

"From the purely economic point of view," says Mr. Laughlin, "the reason is simple. An increase of wages paid for the same productive effort increases the expenses of production and the price of the products, an increase in prices of articles consumed by the laborer reduces the real wages as much as, if not more than, the increase in money wages. He is just where he was before without any gain for his pains." The writer asserts that the rise of prices of almost all articles of general consumption during the past decade or two has been due, as much as to any one thing else, to the rise of money wages paid for the same, or even less, labor effort. The effect is cumulative. In the expenses of producing raw material such as coal or wood, into whose processes labor enters more largely than machinery, the general rise of wages, it is stated, "raises out of all proportion the prices of materials from which finished goods are made."

Confers With Longshoremen

W. I. Gear of Montreal, representing the Shipping Federation, had a conference with the St. John Longshoremen's Association yesterday afternoon to discuss the schedule of rates submitted by the association to go into effect next month. Mr. Gear said last evening that he hoped to reach an agreement with the men without recourse to a board of arbitration.
