Nortry. The Young Widow.

Free and easy, but not bold; Net too youg, and not too old; Half-inviting, half-repentant, Now advancing, and now shy; There is mischief in her laughter, There is danger in her eye.

She has studied human nature; She is schooled in every art, She has taken her diploma, As the mistress of the heart! She can tell the very moment When to sigh and when to smile! Oh! a maid is sometimes charming, But a widow all the while !

Are you sad? oh! then how serious Will her pretty face become! You are angry; she is wretched, Saddened, friendless, tearful, damb. Are you mirthful? how her laughter, Silver-sounding, will ring out! She can lure, and catch, and play you As an angler does a trout !

Ah! "old fo sils," nearly fifty, Who are plotting deep and wise; Ye "Adonises" of twenty, With the love-light in your eyes!

In the meantime Mianie had a true loyal lover in secret. Who would have supposed that such a fellow dare to look on beauty and comparative refinement? Walker, and he was simply a farmer employed by old Danforth, who had entrusted Joe

On the fourth day of the fever twas finished, to return only at a late hour to bed. This was musual, and Danforth was determined to know the earnse of it.

Joe frankly contessed that he was in love with a man's daughter who resided less than three miles distant, but, after a faithful attachment between them for months, the old man utterly refused his application for the young girls land.

This satisfied him that he had made a mistake in regard to his own child, and he resolved to help Joe get married and thus to stop all forther trouble or suspicion at home.
