PROFESSOR

E. D. WORCESTER, M. D.

Lecturer on Chemistry and Chemical Physiology, and on the Principles and Practice of Medicine,

WOULD intimate to those who are in need of medical advice, that he has taken rooms for a few days, at DUNN'S HOTEL, Ingersoll, where he may be consulted by all who are suffering from either acute or chronic diseases.

Although a graduate of a regularly constituted Medical College, Dr. Worcester has for many years been under the necessity of discarding much that is taught in such institutions as erroneous in principle, and pernicious in practice. We are taught in nearly all the schools that the Lancet, "that little instrument of mighty mischief," and mercury, one of the most permanent poisons known, are the "sheet anchors" of our profession. It is inconsistant with the principles of chemical physiology and sound medical philosophy, that any agent which has the property of forming permanent combinations with diseases of the body can be safely used in the treatment of disease. Mercury, Arsenic, Lead, and many other metallic substances have that property and should be discarded as remedial agents.

From a practice of eighteen years, and a careful observation of the effects of remedies, Dr. Worcester, has ceased to employ any articles as medicines but such as can be perfectly eliminated and carried out of the system without leaving any injurious effects as the result of their action.

Vegetable remedies possess this character in an eminent degree, as well as all ... mineral agents which enter the ... rather than of the various structures of ... I will carry manifest injuries ... wave.

... is very circumstantial, and it is not doubted that Pare believed it. Modern medical writers say, however, that though an honest man and good surgeon for his time, he was "a very credulous philosopher."

What happened in the sixteenth century, ... is supposed to have happened, is certainly not impossible in the nineteenth, and we commend the reported achievement of this German mother to the investigation of the Montgomery Medical Society.—Dayton Gazette.

A CURIOUS STORY OF A MASONIC BIBLE.—A correspondent thus writes:—"It may not be ... ...ently active to produce injury. ... ...All consultations will be regarded as strictly confidential.

No charge for medical advice where no medicine is required.

Dr. Worcester will be at Ingersoll on the 18th and 14th of each month, ... consultation hours from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. ... Ingersoll, April 29th, 1853.
