Charles Emery, the day foreman in the rolling-mills was just retiring from his duties to give place to John Elter, the night official and as he walked along.

And almost at the same second.

two or three young men came by. "Do you mean-!"

"I mean to the opera!" For upon that especial evening there was to be an opera in the little town of Crystalton, a genuine New York company with a chorus, lighted expectation.

"Then I shall be so delighted to opera house that night."
"You see,' said Emery, laughing "You see,' said Emery, laughing the same of the go," said Mrs. Emery.

And her voice and eyes bore happy witness to the truth of her the hero of the old Scotch ballad:

But now a regular party had been organized, and Kate Marcy had promised to join in, things looked very different to the young man. For a moment he almost re gretted that he had engaged himself to take his mother.

"She would be as well pleased with any concert," he said to himself, "and I should have the opportunity of sitting all the evening next to Kate Marcy. "I'll ask her to let me off this time. She won't Oh, Charley, you'll laugh at me, I'm afraid, but I feel exactly like a little girl going to her first children's party. It's so seldom, you know, that a bit of pleasure comes in my way."

Mr. Douglas Ford, Toronto, Ont., states, that Milburn's Cod Liver Oil Emulsion with Wild Cherry Bark is free from objectionable taste, being almost as pleasant as syrup while for coughs and colds it gives complete satisfaction, acting promptly even in obstinate cases.

And then Charles Emery made up his mind that his mother was more to him, in her helpless old Thursday last.

And then Kate's overgloomed face grew bright again. She drew a long breath of relief and turned WILD CHERRY COUGH SYRUP to the stage, it was as if the myriad gas lights had all of a sudden been turned up; as if all the mimic world of the opera house had grown radi-

"She has a face like an angel," said Mrs. Emery, softly.
The next day the foreman of the rolling mills went boldly to the old Marcy homestead, whose red-brick gables, sheeted over with ivy, rose up out of the leafless elms and beeches, just beyond the noise and stir of busy Crystalton.

"Going with some one else!" said Kate Marcy, rather surprised and not exactly pleased.

She was a tall, beautiful maiden, the belle of Crystalton, and rather an heiress in her own right, with all the rest. She certainly liked Charles Emery, and she rather surmised that he liked her also. And when she had been studying up her toilet for the opera, she had selected a blue corn flower for her hair and ornaments of turquoise, because she had once heard Mr. Emery say that blue was his favorite color.
