

CHANGE OF VENUE REFUSED IN BREACH OF CONTRACT CASE

Argument Heard In Jones vs. Burgess Before Judge McKeown Saturday—Counsel Enliven Proceedings.

Before His Honor Mr. Justice McKeown in supreme court chambers on Saturday morning Mr. Fred R. Taylor, acting for the defendant in the case of Robert Jones and J. William Jones doing business as Robert Jones and Co., vs. James Burgess and Sons, Limited, made application to have the venue changed from St. John to Victoria county.

The cause of action, as pleaded in the writ, is that the defendant, by its agents, caused the plaintiff's goods to be damaged by the breach of a contract.

The action was brought by the plaintiffs, who are an English firm, in breach of contract. They had entered into a contract with the defendant company, who carry on a lumber business in Victoria county for a large number of wooden boxes.

The cause of action arising in St. John the venue was laid here and Mr. Taylor in his argument in support of his application, claimed that the contract was made at Andover, consequently the plaintiffs may wish to try in Victoria county. He also read an affidavit that a material witness who lived in Victoria county was ill and could not very well come to St. John.

Mr. Mullin observed that an epidemic of typhoid fever was raging in Victoria county, and thought that St. John was the safer place. He argued that the cause of action arose in St. John.

"Abuse of Counsel's Good Nature." A question of the delivery of pleas came up. Dr. Quigley said that although he had served the writ, Mr. Taylor, yet the pleas were not delivered for a long time after such service. Dr. Quigley termed his delay a "gross abuse of my (Quigley's) good nature."

Mr. Taylor said that when the demand was served Dr. Quigley told him that he was in no hurry for the pleas. This ended the argument.

His Honor—I dismiss the application. Mr. Mullin—With costs, Your Honor.

His Honor—Will consider that phase of the matter. Mr. Taylor—Will Your Honor make an order to the effect that the plaintiffs pending the opinion of the court on this question?

Mr. Mullin—No. Mr. Mullin—My learned friend's latter application is unprecedented. Dr. Quigley—I defy you, Mr. Taylor, to produce any English or Canadian authority to support your latter application.

This ended the proceedings.

Berlin, Sept. 26.—The opening day of aviation week proved very disappointing. Owing to a lack of organization a start was not made until three hours after the appointed time, and of the seven events on today's programme, only the speed competition was begun. Even in this, none of the competitors covered the minimum distance of eight kilometres (about five miles).

THE BIBLE, THE KEY NOTE OF CHILDREN'S SERVICES YESTERDAY

United Gathering Of Presbyterians Sunday Schools In St. John's Church—Large Attendance.

Yesterday was observed as children's Sabbath by the Sabbath schools of the Presbyterian churches throughout the city by holding a united service in St. John's Presbyterian church at 3 o'clock. The children assembled at their respective schools at 2.30 and accompanied by their teachers marched to the church in a body. There was a very large attendance, nearly five hundred children being present.

Rev. Gordon Dickie presided and the prayers and hymns were very acceptably. Mr. Andrew Malcolm delivered an eloquent and scholarly address on "Why Has the Bible Done for Us?" In introducing his subject, Mr. Malcolm said he might ask what had not the Bible done for us. Going back several centuries the speaker declared that in the dark ages our forefathers were superstitious as regards the teaching of the Bible. The Bible was essential to Christianity and Christianity was essential to civilization. Mr. Malcolm's address was listened to with rapt attention by the large congregation present.

Rev. L. A. McLean spoke on "What Use are We Making of the Bible?" He deplored the fact that there were some to whom the Bible was known only as an ornament. He urged the children to always study their Bibles. They should reverence it and study it diligently in order that they should see and know the worlds beyond.

In closing his address the speaker appealed to the children to make the Bible the text book of their lives and they should never waver from the path of righteousness.

ENTRANCE OF ENGLISH FLEET STIRS NEW YORK

Continued From Page 1. The guns of the inflexible quickly replied and the great crowds that had assembled at the Battery and other shore fronts on the first sound of the firing saw the four ships of the British fleet salute the American flag in unison off Governor's Island. It seemed as if the British commander might have said: "Now we will show them how we do it." And it was well done. Eighty-four guns smoked from the armored cruisers. As the British ships on the North River, with the highest ranking naval officer of the combined fleets, the saluting battery on the island answered.

Salute to English Admiral. Again the guns of the inflexible spoke and that programme was repeated until the Mexican, Italian, German and the Dutch ships were astern. From the Connecticut came the last salute, an emphasis to the constant firing of the half hour before Rear Admiral Souton broomed and paid his compliments to the highest ranking English officer, and when the echoes of the last answering guns on the inflexible ceased, the command attending the formal entrance of the ships of the British fleet were ended. There was a scurrying of launches as the ships paid calls on the admirals.

Visitors were barred from the flagship and those who had heard much of the quality of the British fleet looked on the ships from the outside of the harbor. The command attending the formal entrance of the ships of the British fleet were ended. There was a scurrying of launches as the ships paid calls on the admirals.

Mr. Griffin said that the wheat harvested in the Canadian west this year surpassed previous crops not only in quality but quantity. The flour this year should be invariably good.

Mr. Griffin spoke of the absence of manufacturing plants in the prairie towns of the west. In Iowa, he said it cost forty cents to make a four barrel. He predicted that sacks would replace barrels in the handling of flour. The western states would not ask for barrels and it was only in the east that the sacks were not used.

ANNUAL PARADE AND SERVICE OF C. O. F. HELD YESTERDAY

Nearly 500 Members In Procession—Rev. David Hutchison Preached Practical Sermon—Insurance Advocated.

The annual church parade of the Canadian Order of Foresters was held yesterday afternoon. Starting from their hall Germain street at 3.30 o'clock the parade headed by the Artillery Band marched along Germain street to King, and by way of Dock, Mill and Main streets to the Main Street Baptist church, where the service was conducted by Rev. David Hutchison, who is a member of the order. Nearly five hundred took part in the procession and many favorable comments were heard on the excellent turn out. The procession was under the command of Mr. R. W. Wigmore, assisted by Mr. George E. Day and Mr. H. Morrell.

The sermon preached by Rev. Mr. Hutchison was an eloquent discourse and was much appreciated by a large congregation. He took for his text the words "But he that heareth and doeth not, is like a man that without a foundation built his house upon the earth." There were many men, he said, in the world who built their houses without foundation. Those who have paid nothing for life might be compared to this man in the text. Many a man was strong in his faith in time of peace, but when temptation came he fell. This man had no foundation. Mr. Hutchison urged his hearers not to be like him. They should have their faith founded on the Rock, so that when the storm assailed them they would remain firm.

Provide for the Future. The speaker also made reference to the advantage to a man of laying something aside in order that if death took him away suddenly, those whom he loved would be provided for. He advised all men to save something out of their earnings for this purpose.

Some men he said were not able to save much as their wages were so small or their expenses so large, and for these were the fraternal societies such as the C. O. F. organized. The dues were paid monthly, and as each member paid the amount which looked after his temporal wants, he should be reminded of that which he owed to God, and think of his spiritual necessities at the same time. He should be true to God as well as to his lodge.

In conclusion the speaker prayed that God would bless the members of the Order. He urged them to be faithful unto Him and be prepared to meet Him, in order that they might share in the Kingdom of Glory.

After the services the procession reformed and marched back to their hall Germain street, where they disbanded.

CANADIAN WHEAT SUPERIOR TO THAT GROWN IN STATES

J. V. Griffin Of Moosejaw Speaks Of Bumper Harvest In The West—Manufacturing Plants Are Wanted.

Mr. J. V. Griffin of Moosejaw, representing a branch of the Prairie Milling Company is in the city and to a Standard reporter last evening told something of the bountiful harvest of the west. Mr. Griffin said the United States had been obliged to build mills in Canada and use Canadian wheat, in order to capture the market of the west. In Iowa, he said that the Canadian wheat was 10 per cent harder, whiter and of a better quality than the United States product.

Mr. Griffin said that the wheat harvested in the Canadian west this year surpassed previous crops not only in quality but quantity. The flour this year should be invariably good.

Mr. Griffin spoke of the absence of manufacturing plants in the prairie towns of the west. In Iowa, he said it cost forty cents to make a four barrel. He predicted that sacks would replace barrels in the handling of flour. The western states would not ask for barrels and it was only in the east that the sacks were not used.

SALVATION ARMY WORK IN THE SLUMS OF NEW YORK CITY

Powerful Address By Mrs. Stanyon In Citadel Yesterday—Touching Stories Told Of Life's Darker Side.

The total Salvation Army were assisted at their meetings yesterday by Mrs. Brigadier Stanyon, national Stanyon has had a wide experience in Army work and is remembered here as private secretary to Commander Eva Booth, and later as principal of the Army training college. Her sister, Captain Pearl, is in command of one of the local corps.

Yesterday afternoon Brigadier Stanyon addressed a large audience in the Citadel on "The darker side of life in New York." Rev. David Lang was in the chair and representatives of the headquarters staff occupied the seats on the platform. Mrs. Stanyon is a pleasing and powerful speaker and dealt with her subject very effectively. She told many touching stories to illustrate her points, holding the close attention of the large audience for nearly two hours.

Lives Devoted to Slum Work. She told first of the noble band of women who had consecrated themselves to slum work in New York. Sixty in number, this corps devoted their whole lives to rescue and charity work on the east side of the great metropolis. It was considered a white while, she said, for the impress on one human soul was more lasting and therefore of greater importance than the most magnificent building ever erected.

Mrs. Stanyon told of the causes which made the slums of New York what they were, mentioning in particular poverty, ignorance and superstition and drink. She spoke most strongly on the evil of intemperance and described one heartrending scene which the Army workers happened upon.

A Heartrending Scene. Last Christmas Day while a fierce blizzard raged in the streets of New York, two officers entered a barren attic in aumbled down tenement house. On one corner of the room, a mother, with her arms around a child, was crying. She spoke most strongly on the evil of intemperance and described one heartrending scene which the Army workers happened upon.

Two little children were in a corner of the room, one crying, the other with cold. They were at once taken to a Salvation Army home and provided with suitable clothes. When the little boy, only eight years of age, was told of his mother's fate, his only remark was, "Yes, mother's gone to hell and it's the best place for her."

In the summer, 500 children were given a ten days' outing in a beautiful house on the New Jersey coast. The experience was to the street Arabs like a glimpse of Paradise.

Mrs. Stanyon continued to speak at some length on the children's work, closing with an appeal for the support of the slum department. A collection followed and the response was very generous. Adj. Carter contributed a solo during the taking of the offering.

GOLDEN JUBILEE OF EXMOUTH STREET SUNDAY SCHOOL

Celebration Began Yesterday With Special Services—Interesting Reminiscences Given At Meeting.

The celebrations in connection with the 50th anniversary of Golden Jubilee of Exmouth Street Methodist Church Sunday school were commenced yesterday and will be continued this evening, when a reminiscence service will be held at 8 o'clock. On Tuesday the exercises will be brought to a close by a grand social reunion.

At the service yesterday morning Rev. H. D. Marr, pastor of the Queen Square Methodist church, preached an appropriate sermon, basing his discourse on the incident of Christ and the Samaritan. He referred to the excellent work done by the Sunday school since its founding and stated that there were great opportunities at the present time to continue the good work.

In the afternoon an open session of the school was held at which many parents and friends of the pupils were present. Addresses were delivered by Mr. J. Thompson, a former superintendent, Mr. R. S. Stevens, superintendent, Rev. Dr. G. M. Campbell and Rev. W. W. Lodge, pastor of the church. Special music was rendered.

The Jubilee Service. A large congregation was present in the evening at the golden jubilee anniversary service. A special order of service had been arranged and was contained in a nicely gotten up programme. The primary department and beginners' class to the number of about sixty occupied seats on the platform and the little girls in white dresses and with bright bows in their hair made a very pretty appearance.

The superintendent of the Sunday school, Mr. R. S. Stevens, who was in charge of the service in the evening of a short address said that the school had a grand good history and a great work had been accomplished. After referring to the services of teachers who had now passed away, the superintendent dealt with the origin of Sunday schools and gave an interesting review of what had been accomplished in the Exmouth street school.

At the conclusion of the superintendent's address the primary department sang a hymn and Mr. W. J. McGee then read a brief history of the school. On Sept. 28, 1859 the first meeting of the school was held near the Marsh Bridge with 65 pupils in attendance. This year there were 666 scholars enrolled. The hopes of the founders, he said, had been more than realized.

Ald. King Kelley. After a hymn had been sung Ald. J. King Kelley was called upon to address those present. Ald. Kelley explained that he had been called upon at the last moment to take the place of Judge McKown who was unable to be present. He referred to the fact that Mr. Justice McKown and Mr. Justice White were two former pupils who had risen to prominent positions in the country.

His first recollections of the church, he said, were at the time when it was being raised for the purpose of building the Sunday school bench. It followed in eloquent terms to Rev. Wm. C. Matthews, the most conspicuous scholar the school ever had, in closing Ald. Kelley said the Sunday school had everything to live for, for it had a glorious past and there was a bright future before it.

One of the Oldest Members. Mr. J. Thompson, one of the oldest members of the school also gave a short address. He referred to the fact that there were only two or three of those present at the first Sunday school still alive. More than forty years ago he became a teacher in the school and it pleased him to be present on this occasion. "The year the school was established there was an average attendance of 84, this year the average was 260 and God had recognized their concentrated efforts. In conclusion he urged those present to endeavor to bring the children of the poor into the school.

Rev. W. W. Lodge was obliged to make his address brief as the time was nearly up. He was glad, he said, to be present and listen to the history of the past. The church and school had a glorious future, and at the present time they were in a splendid position to do God's work. The Sunday school was carried on by a few consecrated souls whose only compensation came from Christ. The school was doing more for the souls and life of the people than any other institution. The Exmouth street church had a glorious future. If the people would only be loyal to the church and become the planner place of soul saving in the city.

"The service was brought to a close by the pastor pronouncing the benediction.

REV. GIDEON SWIM PREACHED FAREWELL SERMON LAST NIGHT

Regretted If Some Of Congregation Could Not See As He Did—Could Not Carry On Work Satisfactorily

Before a congregation that taxed the seating capacity of Waterloo St. Baptist Church, Rev. Gideon Swim, his farewell sermon last evening, taking as his text the words, "Be steadfast and immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, for as much as you know it is not in vain in the sight of the Lord."

In introducing his subject he regretted very much that this was to be his last sermon before the congregation that were present. He spoke eloquently of the brotherhood of man, urging his hearers to love all men as their brothers, regardless of class or color, and asked them to persevere in the work of the Lord. It was the duty of every man to work out his own salvation with fear and trembling.

Mr. Swim made a touching reference to his connection with the church and congregation, and expressed the hope that his labors of love among them had not been in vain. During the past year thirteen had been baptized and he thanked God that He had permitted him to bring them into the church. He had called to them in answer to a call from their church and he hoped his labors among them were appreciated. He regretted very much if there were some in the congregation who could not see as he did. He thought it his duty to resign as he felt he could not carry on his work successfully among them any longer.

Since handing in his resignation he had received three calls from different churches, two of those he had declined, but he would likely accept a call from a church from which he had received three calls within the last fourteen years. In closing Mr. Swim thanked the congregation for their kindly assistance and prayed that God would direct them in the future.

SAYS LIBERALS WILL HAVE WORKING MAJORITY

Bristol, Sept. 26.—James Keir-Hardie, member of Parliament for Merthyr-Tydvil, outlining the policy of the Liberals in the general election, said today that he believed the Liberals would emerge from the conflict with a working majority.

The Liberals he said, were confident of increased strength in the House of Commons, from 54 members to between 65 and 70, although supporting the budget. They would follow their usual course in the election, naming a Liberator wherever they thought he had a chance of defeating either or both of the opposing political parties.

JAPANESE

Recently Announced val Programme of I is Worrying Rival United States Unea

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—panese Government announced intention of building 36,000 tons ore.

This nine-week cablegram from Rio, received at the navy department of the world, has set experts to work. What effect on future wars 3,000 ton cruisers have? What do you want with warships heavier than the Dreadnought and larger than Mauretania?

When a ship is built by the Admiralty designed the great-nought with its 17,000 tons, naval experts thought the last in sea fighting had been said. But what will Japan do? Not cruisers like the Japanese.

United States, doubtless with such idea in mind, authorized construction of two great "super-noughts"—the Delaware and the North Dakota, now launched and not completion. They are better than cruisers like the Japanese.

The biggest cruiser in the present is the British ship in with a displacement of 17,250 tons, less than half the size of the Japanese Invincible has great equal almost to that of the L and the Mauretania, and can put it in the battleship class years ago.

The Chester. The fastest ship in the States navy is the scout cruiser, with a displacement of 1,000 tons, one-fourth that of the Invincible. One is that of naval construction—What will Japan do? Fighting machine?

Such a giant would cost $60,000,000—enough to found an university.

Stupendous Development. Never before have warships improved so rapidly. The completed lacks new features successor already designed. In the Delaware and the North Dakota, the United States thought that it had out-dreadnought fever for all time. Both ships are splendid machines. They are equipped with "basket masts" made network that would resist heavy firing. They have secondary masts that could take wireless telegraph, smokeless, rapid-revolving turrets and a complement of torpedoes and shells that could take anything but speed-though.

But what of the Japanese? What new principles and methods will they have?
