HON. J. D. HAZEN AT VANCOUVER PICNIC

Minister of Marine Gets Splendid Reception—Canadians will Wipe Out
Stigma Caused by Senate's Defeat of Naval Aid Proposals.

On Saturday, July 26, Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Attorney General Bower, of British Columbia, who is also a son of New Brunswick, and Sir Richard McBride were the principal speakers at a picnic held under the auspices of the Vancouver Conservative Association. In its report of the function the Vancouver News-Advertiser states that the reception given Mr. Hazen, Sir Richard and Mr. Bower was a flattering demonstration of their popularity, and gives the following synopsis of the address made by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries:

Hon. J. D. Hazen.

Hon. J. D. Hazen was then introduced to the gathering by Mr. R. S. Frye. He received an ovation. When he left Ottawa, he said, which was ten days ago, at the request of the Prime Minister, and whom they were all proud to have as their leader (cheers) he did not know he would have the great pleasure of seeing so many friends as were before him that afternoon. He really felt quite at home in the province of British Columbia as he did four thousand miles away, in New Brunswick. Their interests were very much the same. They were all very much a maritime people. He was greeted with a hearty handshake from many people he had known at home and who had now come out here to help build up the province of British Columbia.

Following an appreciation of Sir Richard McBride he stated that he did not come out here to make political speeches, but to extend a greeting to the battlement of New Zealand. The visit came as the result of a communication from the Governor-General, who stated that, had it not been for the regrettable illness of H. R. H. the Duchess of Connaught, it would have been his personal pleasure and delight to have him here to assist in the welcome. There had been no more zealous men in bringing forward the claims of the province of British Columbia than the members who represented that province in the Federal House. He had intended coming here last year, and he would have done so had he not had to visit England with the Premier to consult with British authorities as to what Canada could do in defence of the Empire by strengthening that navy, on which the commerce and general welfare of Canada so greatly depended.

Impressed by Province.

He was very much impressed here by the resources of the province, and even more by the go-ahead spirit and energy of its people. The grace and beauty of the ladies of British Columbia had also greatly impressed him.

In regard to the navy question he stated that the late government had asked for tenders, which, when received, they left the pigeons, not daring to bring forward the question on the eve of a general election. In 1912 Mr. Borden proceeded to England. They consulted with the admiralty and the British government, who gave them information on the subject which they were able to make public. They also received additional information which was private and entirely confidential. When Parliament opened a statement was made before them from Mr. Winston Churchill.

This document dealt with the navy question. It stated in clear and plain language that Canada could do nothing that would more assist the supremacy of the Empire than to provide the three Dreadnoughts. It was proposed to place $55,000,000 aside for this purpose, the Dreadnoughts to remain the property of Canada, but to be placed at the disposal of Great Britain. But, unfortunately, the Opposition in the House thought that there was a chance to make political advantage out of the occasion, and the matter, which should have been viewed from the standpoint of anxiety to contribute to the cost of that navy on which so much depended, was met with obstruction.

Disloyal Tactics.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier obstructed the measures by every possible means within his power and possession and retarded its progress through the House. Hours and hours of valuable time were occupied with matters which had no reference at all to naval matters. As an instance he mentioned that one of the members brought in and read the Declaration of Independence of the United States, saying that this would be the sort of thing which would follow the passing of the proposed measure (cheers). "No." "No." Such a statement was ridiculous and absurd in the extreme. The Opposition took a gambler's chance, but the tactics did not succeed. The Conservatives stood shoulder to shoulder, knowing that they were backed up by the people of Canada from coast to coast (cheers). When the measure went to the Senate what was the result? This body, which was supposed to be independent,

MRS. JOHN JACOB ASTOR REGAINING HEALTH AT BAR HARBOR.

LA SELVA, WHERE MRS. JOHN JACOB ASTOR IS SPENDING THE SUMMER AT BAR HARBOR.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor, of New York, has taken the beautiful white cottage, La Selva, at Bar Harbor, Me. Mrs. Astor is enjoying a quite summer and regaining her health, which has been none too robust since the birth of her little son.

It was with the hope that she would take up tennis and gradually resume the outdoor life she enjoyed so much before her marriage that she was induced to come here for the summer, and this she is doing gradually.

She has for the example her sister, Miss Katherine Force, who is one of the best women tennis players here.

ONE VIEW OF JUDGEMENT

Lecturer in Unique Theatre
Declares Elect of Church will Sit with Jesus as Associate Judges of the World.

That the judgment seat of God is modelled on the plan of the Supreme Court of the United States, and that the elect of the Gospel Church will act as associate judges on Judgment Day and that Jesus Christ will come to the earth to reign for a thousand years in order to make man by a proper system of rewards and punishments as perfect as Adam was, were among the ideas put forward in a striking address on the Judgment Day delivered by A. H. MacMillan, of New York, before a fair-sized audience in the Unique Theatre yesterday afternoon.

Mr. MacMillan is one of the bright young followers of Pastor Russell, and he spoke with much eloquence and force, explaining by apt illustrations the purposes of God, and the plan adopted to enable mankind to escape the judgment pronounced upon Adam for eating the fruit of the tree of knowledge. Adam was perfect when he was placed in the Garden of Eden, about 6,000 years ago. But when he disobeyed God, he showed his anger and justice by condemning him and all men that came after to eternal death. No man born of the race of sinners could appeal from the judgment. Only a perfect man could make such an appeal. So Christ the perfect man, moved for an appeal, offering himself and the perfect race that was in him, as a ransom for the race of Adam.

God could not revoke His original judgment on the race of Adam. But the suffering of Christ was not in vain; it obtained for the race of Adam the privilege of a new trial. Thus by the death of the perfect man and race in Christ was the balance restored. Those who hear the word of Christ are now on trial, and may attain to the perfect life.

The speaker said Christ would come to the world to reign and judge mankind for a thousand years. He didn't mention the fate of Christ's coming, but he gave a vivid description of what would happen in the millennium period. "In that time," he said, "the members of our church will sit with Christ in glory, and act as associate judges of men. Everybody will be on trial. Those that do good will be well rewarded and helped to attain the perfect life. Those that do wrong will be punished and placed lower in the scale, and if they persist in wrong doing they will be placed lower and lower till they enter into death. And there is no resurrection from the second death."

The speaker's message was listened to with interest, but after the meeting broke up there were some expressions of disappointment because he did not explain what would become of the myriads of men living between Adam and the millennium who never heard of Christ and were therefore not on trial.

NEWSPAPERS ON STOCKS.

(F. B. McCURDY & CO.)
New York, Aug. 2.—Tribune—The market indicates a backing and filling with no decided trend in view.

There are again reports of London buying, but suspicion attaches to the alleged aggregates of foreign purchases.

Commercial—The bulls seem to be letting everything go just now, but the market does not show much weakness through lack of support it has been getting for a month.

American—The tone of the stock market is one of quiet strength. World—The unfavorable crop news is not offset by any development of a sufficiently important character in the business or financial world to stimulate activity on the long side of stock market in New York.
