Four Million Dollar Leather Concern To Locate in Kingsport

WILL COVER SPACE OF TWELVE ACRES

From a Kingsport, Tennessee, newspaper the Record learns that a native son of this city has launched into the tanning business there. The story as told by the Amer' an paper reads:

"With a capital stock of four million dollars, the Lang-Grant Leather Corporation has been organized at Kingsport, Tennessee, to build and operate a plant for the manufacture of leather goods.

This enterprise will be the largest of its kind in the South, and probably in the Nation. A site of 12 acres, centrally located, has been secured and work has been started on the large buildings for the new plant. The buildings will be of the most modern and permanent type of construction—lighted and ventilated to give the most comfortable and convenient working conditions to the large number of employees who will be engaged. The plans of this company, as they have been announced, are a complete development of the modern idea of successful manufacturing operations, in which the raw materials are taken through their various stages to the finished product, and in which the most modern equipment and efficient methods are employed at every stage, to manufacture an article of the highest standard of quality at the lowest cost. With this in view the purchase has been made of the plant of the Kingsport Extract Corporation, with a capacity of fifty tons tanning extract per day, and the complete plant and equipment of the Kingsport Tannery, Inc., which now has a capacity of one hundred hides per day. Work has already been started and a large number of masons and other mechanics are engaged in increasing the size of the tannery to a capacity of five hundred hides per day. The buildings now being erected are four stories high, 440 feet long by 120 feet wide, with two wings, 64x50 feet, and 35x70 feet, both three stories high. An additional building is also to be erected 200x30 feet.

As a distinct advance over the usual construction of such buildings, these tannery buildings will be thoroughly constructed of brick and concrete, and equipped with automatic sprinklers throughout.

To the tannery will also be added currying shops, in which the leather will be completely prepared for sending to the buildings in which it will be finished into the various forms of harness, saddles, and other leather goods the manufacture of which is planned. The building in which the saddlery will be made, the machinery for which has been purchased, will be twelve hundred feet long by one hundred feet wide. The complete area of the floor space occupied by these various manufacturing operations will aggregate more than twelve acres.

The officials of the company state from twelve to fifteen hundred men will be employed, more than one-half of whom will be skilled mechanics.

The plant will be under the management of R. Y. Grant, who has heretofore been president of the Kingsport Extract Corporation and the Kingsport Tannery, Incorporated, and J. Harry Lang, who has been general manager of one of the largest and most successful systems of tanneries in the United States.

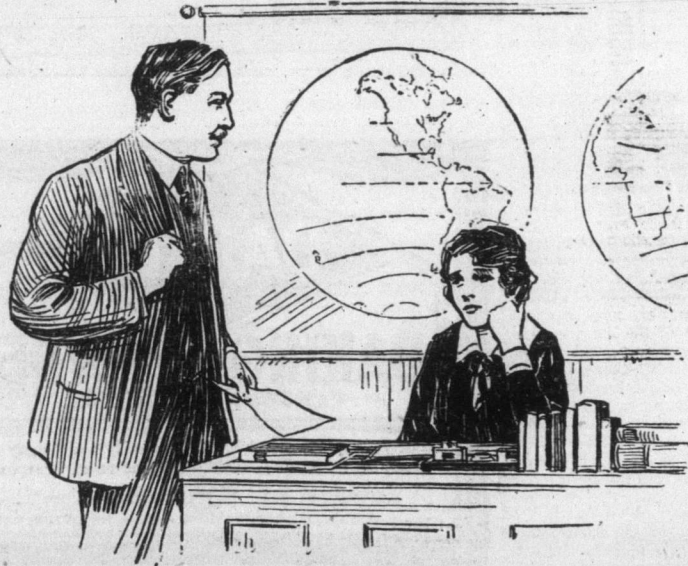

Some idea of the magnitude of the business is conveyed in a statement recently made by one of the officials of the company that more than four hundred tons of rye straw will be used annually in the production of horse collars alone.

With the usual vim and enterprise of the community, Kingsport is making large plans and work is already under way to put them into effect, to take care of the influx of population that will necessarily follow this addition to its group of industries. This week, architects who have been employed to make plans for one hundred and twenty-five good residences, the construction of which will begin immediately, have been on the ground surveying locations. These residences will range in cost from two thousand to twenty thousand dollars each.

J. Harry Lang and R. Y. Grant, who will manage this new enterprise, have made contracts for plans for handsome homes on Watauga Street, work on which will start immediately.

Not only Kingsport, but this entire section is to be congratulated upon the acquisition of this new enterprise. Its benefits will be far-reaching in every direction.

This business story is interesting from the fact that Mr. J. Harry Lang is a son of Mr. John A. Lang of this city and left his home ten years ago to try out the larger business field. Evidently he has made good and merits the commendation of his home city and host of friends and acquaintances here. The Record offers him its congratulations and good wishes.

"I Shall Have to Quit, Principal, I Cannot Manage This Class"

"HOW is that?"
"Well, I have tried hard enough, but the worry is too much for me and has got on my nerves."

"You should not worry!"

"That is just what everybody tells me, but I cannot sleep nights, and can only think of the troubles I will have with the class next day. I have stood it as long as ever I can. The doctor says I must quit before it is too late."

"Did you ever try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food?"

"No, I never have."

"I have never used it myself, but I have heard so many of the teachers telling about how it helped them when they were on the verge of a nervous breakdown that I have come to think there must be something in it."

"Yes, I have often heard about it, too, but did not just think that it would help me. Perhaps I had better try it."

"I would if I were you. We do not want to lose you, for you are just getting this class into good shape. Three teachers failed in this room, and the boys got rather unruly. That is why it has been so difficult for you, but if you can get your nerves built up you will get along all right."

"Well, I will make another try, and in the meantime I shall begin using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

In your nerves lie your greatest strength and greatest weakness. When the nerves are weakened and exhausted by worry, disease or overwork every muscle loses its strength and endurance. Every organ is partially paralyzed and the mind befogged.

By strengthening and building up the nervous system Dr. Chase's Nerve Food brings new energy and strength to mind and body. With new nerve force comes the power to achieve and the joy of health and vigor. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.75, all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. Letters to NewsRecord

Editor, Record:
"According to promise we give, as best we know how, a few more suggestions regarding the subject of prohibition, from a democratic standpoint.

Your correspondents on the prohibition question heretofore have been somewhat varied in their callings; one seems to have concluded it wise to ignore the old sages in Genesis, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread," and let the other fellow do the sweating and the sweating operation. Up to the present time there have been no serious objections raised to the proposition of transferring the sandals of the ancient prohibitionist Mahommed to the feet of your osteopathic correspondent. He can easily make as great a success of the doctrine of prohibition as the old author of the Roman did. Then your other correspondent recalls Kipling's dictum, "The female of the species is more deadly than the male." Then your bashful correspondent that signs no name at all, but could not restrain an emotional outburst of patriotism for the prohibition cause, will no doubt feel his enthusiasm increased when he reads the charges made by Mr. H. H. Dewart in the Ontario Legislature against the men to whose trust the war measure of prohibition was committed. The premier of the province evidently was convinced of the seriousness of the charges, for he suspended the Rev. Mr. Aycraft, formerly chief license inspector of Ontario, subsequently the member of the Ontario License Board, whose special duty it was to prosecute transgressors of the law.

George E. Morrison, who succeeded the Rev. Mr. Aycraft as chief inspector, after the adoption of prohibition, has resigned his post and an open investigation has been ordered by the Province Government into the conduct of these officials.

There is one time honored adage at least that is being demonstrated and that is "that prohibition does not prohibit." This fact is illustrated wherever the scheme is introduced. In fact there is something so contaminating in its essential elements that the spotters who are intrusted with its enforcement, become imbued with moral depravity and these men, whose duty it is to prevent and prosecute transgressors of the law, have become often so obdurate to the principles of rectitude, that they violate and try to make profit out of perverting breaches of the very regulations they are engaged to enforce and defend.

Although abundant illustrations of this species of fallen humanity may be found in mostly any district throughout the Dominion and the United States, yet not one instance has thus far been reported of penitence or repentance for the misdeeds perpetrated; so it becomes evident that the haunting influence of the silly fad of prohibition equal its other allurements. Hypocrisy, deception, feigning to be what you are not, assuming to possess virtues of which you are destitute, are the legitimate fruits of prohibition, the cause of which any ignoramus can comprehend. Why! You can't bake a loaf of bread without fermentation; your cake for the tea-table will be heavy and unstable without alcohol; if you boil your maple sap down to about three or four in one and let it stand for a few days it will ferment and make an excellent invigorating and healthy beverage; take the juice of our little native flower and let it mature for a time and it will ferment and produce a splendid salubrious drink, just the thing to give your friends a wine glass full of when they call, and it has often been known to possess the faculty of bringing valuable ideas into existence with ease. Then take cider, which is manufactured at any crossroad where there are orchards, if it is allowed to remain in the barrel for a few months it will soon become such that those using must exercise common sense also. Then again we have the ale, which is an appendage to nearly every farmer's barn, it is reported to produce a flow of stuff, such as the Indian said when he wished his throat was a mile long so he could taste it all the way down. Now it is evident that a beneficent Providence who created mostly the whole vegetable Kingdom possessing alcohol, also created mankind with common sense and propriety, how to use it in consonance with established rules and principles. And what poor fanatics such as Mahommed, and his followers are advocating such an impossible thing as prohibition, with all its debasing connections, it certainly is gratifying to observe that there is still a prominent and intellectual element, who adhere to the principles of liberty, regarding the virtuals and drink used by the community, subject of course to civic regulation.

We all agree on the desirability of having an honest, sober, straightforward, industrious, intelligent and moral living people, but we seem to differ on the most effectual plan to produce this condition. Now the poor prohibitionist says, take temptation out of the way, take away wine, beer and everything that contains alcohol and thus remove temptation; the principle he logical and sound, better not learn the child to talk, because he might learn to lie and we can thus keep temptation out of his reach by keeping him in the world of silence. Keep everything under lock and key, because if you allow things to lie around loose he might learn to steal. Now the unerring absolutist of advocating such a scheme, becomes at once apparent. There are abundant walking examples of the fearful consequences of breaking the law of chastity, credit is due to the reformer who succeeds in correcting these abuses, not by trying to en-

ZAM-BUK

This illustrates but one of the many uses to which Zam-Buk, the great herbal balm, is daily put. Accidents will happen, especially where there are children. Mothers should never be without Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk is the best "First Aid." Its strong antiseptic properties kill all germs, preventing blood-poisoning and inflammation. Its rich, herbal essences quickly ease pain and build up new healthy tissue. Zam-Buk is entirely different from all other ointments. It is purely herbal and contains no poisonous coloring matter. Take no substitute. See the name on every box before paying.

ZAM-BUK HEALED SEVERE CUT
Mrs. J. E. Bierwirth of Canaduff, Sask., writes: "My little son cut the end off his finger. As it was such a severe cut, I was going to take him to a doctor, but in the meantime to ease the pain, I applied some Zam-Buk. This stopped the bleeding and gave him such relief that he ceased crying and seemed quite at ease. I therefore decided to see if Zam-Buk would heal the wound. Next day I replaced the dressing, and continued to do so each day, using nothing but Zam-Buk. Complete cure resulted."

YOUR HOME NEEDS IT!

What an Easter this will be!

PEACE!—Joyous homecoming and reunion—Spring in the air—and renewed evidence of prosperity and plenty about us—
Happy parents—healthy children—freed from the worry of the years of conflict and the restrictions that have helped to attain the victory that is now ours—
Little wonder that the aim in thousands of Canadian homes will be to celebrate this joyous occasion by a return to old-time festivity. Let your home be one! Let your household, this Easter of 1919, once again freely enjoy its old-time Easter Breakfast—

Swift's Premium Ham

Gone are the reasons that for four long years have restricted the enjoyment of this delicately-tender, sweetly-flavored, simply-satisfying food product. Once more you need only phone your grocer or butcher in order to be promptly supplied. When you buy, make sure you see the Swift's Premium wrapper and brand. You can seek no better Easter breakfast dish than ham—yes, you can find no better ham than Swift's Premium!

striving for a higher altitude of perfection, according to the Creator's plan, resisting the Devil, being assured that he then will flee from them."
My remarks were intended to be along the line of democracy, but so far have failed to reach the point desired, however, I will say a few words from the phase of the subject.
The principle of restriction and regulation of the traffic in alcoholic beverages, has long been admitted as justified by consideration of public order and the general social welfare, and prohibition within certain limits may be considered as the extreme application of that principle strained to the uttermost limit. Prohibition is entirely different from the principle of restriction and regulation in the public interest, and bases itself on entirely different grounds. There is a strong tendency existing to-day to give a meaning to democracy which would banish all true liberty, just as surely as any other form of absolutism. Now let us be reasonable, not a lot of fanatics and intellectual imbeciles, but answer these questions, have the people or a majority of them a right to command whatever they please? Are the people in general the ultimate tribunal in matters of private conduct? Don't forget that the right to command involves a corresponding duty of obedience. Are we, in conscience bound to obey, whatever it may be, the good pleasure of the majority to individual? If this be conceded, where is individual liberty? or liberty of conscience? or for that matter any other form of liberty that is worth while speaking about?

The very moment you yield this right to the people, or a majority of them, that very moment the people taken collectively, are the absolute master of the man taken individually.
Now this is absolutism with a vengeance, and absolutism is essentially incompatible with individual liberty.
This article has intruded sufficiently. Mr. Editor, on your patience, but I may make a few more remarks on the subject along the democratic line at some future date.
J. F. McKay.
