Editor's Talk

NEVER before have Thanksgiving and Hallowe'en come on the same day. The mystery of the illuminated "punkin'" coincides admirably with the joy of "punkin'" pie. There will be such an outburst of joy next Monday, and so many pranks of nature both within and without that we shall need all the interval to get ready for Christmas.

SO we have given the children extra special attention in this number; which we shall continue to do at regular intervals according to our announcement on another page. The page of children's drawings by C. W. Jefferys will delight the soul of every child and parent on our list. The cover picture will serve as a model in Punkin'-spooking to our juveniles. The admirable child-drawing by Miss Streatfeild fits well into the Hallowe'en-Thanksgiving celebration.

OTHER features of this issue are less sportive, but not less interesting. The western article by T. W. King, is a new note in western point-of-view. The article on dancing by our music editor, illustrates a modern mania. Then there is the excellent story by Mr. Arthur E. McFarlane; which makes three we have used from this Canadian writer's pen.
