The Annual Course of Lectures in the Medical Department of McGill College for the approaching Session of 1860-61, is appointed to commence on the first Monday (5th) of November, and to be continued throughout the winter to the end of April.

The Faculty of Medicine are happy to be able to report the continued and increasing success of their School during the last Session, manifested by a larger attendance of students than has ever before occurred. The inscriptions (which are annual) in the Matriculation Register of the Faculty amounted to 108. The number of Graduates is also largely above the average of former years. The degree of Doctor of Medicine and Surgery was conferred at the last Convocation on 23 students, most of whom had commenced and completed their Medical education at McGill College. This progressive increase in the number of students has made it necessary to enlarge the accommodation for their reception; and with this view, the Governors have resolved to erect two new and spacious Lecture-Rooms, and to make alterations in the present building which will tend materially to the convenience of the Medical Department.

The well-known character of this School renders it unnecessary to enter largely into the advantages which it offers to Students for obtaining a thorough knowledge of their profession,—as evidence of which the Faculty can point with great satisfaction to many of their former pupils holding distinguished situations in different parts of the world. Only a brief notice need, therefore, be given of the mode of instruction and the means at the disposal of the Faculty.
