[FOR THE PROVINCIAL WESLEYAN.] Oh ! God of my Life, my heart is opprest-For Thou art "the Rock that is higher than I."

The foe like a flood rushes in on me now-Dark thoughts of the future are shading my brow___

My heart would distrust Thee-yet still will I Lead me to "the Rock that is higher than I."

My prayer Thou wilt hear, and the storm Thou wilt calm.

All praise to "the Rock that is higher than I."

My body and spirit to Thee I commend, My faithful-eternal-unchangeable Friend; In life, or in death, may my heart be on high, And my dwelling, " the Rock that is higher than I.'

Traffic in Alcoholic Liquors.

" This business has so long enjoyed legal protection, that it seems now to claim special consideration and immunity as pre-eminently a lawful business. And it has a certain special claim to that title. A lawful business it is, while law consists to prop it up; but it has no other claim. Its only defence, its only title to the forbearance of men, is, that it has sanction by law. Strip it of this factitious respectability which it derives from perverted law, and it stands forth a naked nuisance, deserving, beyond any other that now afflicts society, to be indignantly chased from the abodes of men. Yes-a very lawful business this has been, with not another plea in its favour; and the question which now comes to every citigen of this State is, Shall this trade of unutterable mischief be any longer lawful?
