KLONDIKE NUGGET.

LONG LIVE THE KING.

If no inadvertent circumstances have arisen, Edward VII. has ere this been crowned King of Great Britain and ruler of the mighty British dominions beyond the seas. The event though doubtless devoid of much of the pomp and pageantry that otherwise would have accompanied it, has acquired an universal interest by reason of the brave struggle that the king has waged against the grievous affliction with which he was so recently stricken. The whole world has watched the progress of the king's illness and the news of his continued improvement has been received with profound satisfaction wherever civilized man dwells.

In our small but thoroughly cosmopolitan community there are none who will not heartily and sincerely join with British subjects the world over in expressing a devout wish for long life to Britain's king.

NEW LABOR METHODS.

The career of John Mitchell, head of the coal miners' unions of the eastern states, forms an interesting chapter in the development of labor organizations. Mitchell is an entirely new type of labor leader. He is not a haranguer, a demagogue, nor an agitator. He has never taken the platform to rail at employers of labor and denounce capital, nor has he during his long service in the cause of the mining operatives ever sought to play upon their passions or prejudices, though his failure to do so has often placed him in danger of losing his influence.

Mitchell is as far removed from the traditional walking delegate as day is removed from night. He is a shrewd, level headed, common sense man, who has set himself to the accomplishment of certain well defined ends. He is working on practical lines and already has demonstrated the wisdom of his ideas.

Mitchell's theory is to make use of labor organizations for purely business purposes and not to hold them as a continually upgraded club over the heads of employers. He proceeds upon the theory that labor is a commodity, which is in the market for the highest price and best conditions that can be secured. He has watched the methods of the men who manipulate great industrial enterprises and sees that application of similar methods may be made in handling what organized labor has to sell.

In carrying his theories into effect he has naturally met with many obstacles. He has been compelled to overthrow old and long cherished traditions and in doing so has met with fierce opposition from jealous opponents within the organizations in whose interests he is working. These difficulties have been increased by the fact that the coal miners are largely made up of ignorant foreigners who are themselves suspicious of the new ideas which Mitchell has introduced. Nevertheless he has kept steadily on with the result that the conditions among the soft coal workers with whom Mitchell is most directly concerned have within the last two years been greatly improved. The mining operators contract each year with their men and it is Mitchell's part to see that these contracts are observed. The refusal of the soft coal miners to break their contracts and join the striking anthracite workers is Mitchell's latest triumph and will do much to establish confidence in the good faith of labor organizations generally. If there were more Mitchells and fewer men of the Debs stamp in control of the councils of the great labor unions strikes and lockouts would gradually become obsolete.

The man who goes to Ottawa from the Yukon will need to be able to deal in more than generalities. He will discover when he arises to address the house—during the first session he is granted that privilege—that the government is ready for him with more "facts" about this country than ever he dreamed were in existence. The resourceful minister of the interior can quote Yukon history more freely than any candidate now in the field, and a roomful of department records are always at his command for "substantiating" purposes. For this reason we repeat what we have said before, that the best man in the country will be none too good to send as the Yukon's first representative in parliament.

Mr. Hawkins is variously reported in Seattle, Ottawa and New York. And still the first spike in the Klondike Mines railroad remains to be driven.

Satisfied With Plan.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 29.—President Mitchell will start this week to fill engagements to deliver addresses before United Mine Workers' assemblies in different parts of the anthracite region. National Board Member John Fallon reports that the miners are satisfied with the relief plan, as carried out in the Wyoming region. The first installment of relief funds was not large, and succor could be given to only the most destitute ones. President Mitchell says that when the money received from the assessment levied on the bituminous miners comes in there will be easier sailing for all concerned.

Seven striking miners from Nanticoke were arraigned before Magistrate Brown of this city today, charged with assaulting William Young, an engineer employed at one of the collieries of the Susquehanna Coal Company. The strikers were held in jail for trial.

A crowd of fifteen hundred men and boys prevented the resumption of work at the Wauke washery, at Dur-yea, this morning. A committee of men who came from Scranton to work at the washery were at once surrounded by a threatening crowd. The sheriff sent four deputies to the scene, but when they arrived the mob had dispersed. The men who had been hired to work at the washery were badly frightened, and when the train from Scranton came along they jumped aboard and returned to that place. A volley of stones followed them. The operator of the washery says he will not make another attempt to resume operations.

Strange Upheaval.

New York, July 29.—The town of Stratford, N. Y., now has, according to a press dispatch from Little Falls a strange upheaval of the ground. Tons of sod, gravel and stone were tossed in the air and landed on a knoll twelve feet higher than their original place. The debris covers a space of 100 feet square, and is more than six feet deep.

RAMPART IS LIVELY

T. A. McGowan Returns on the Sarah

Leading Counsel in Lawsuit Involving Claim on Glenn Gulch.

Mr. T. A. McGowan returned this morning on the Sarah from a trip of some duration at Rampart where he had been attending court as leading counsel for the defendants in the case of Garrett vs. Belsea et al. The action did not come on for a hearing at Rampart but was adjourned to Eagle where it will be heard next week. A number of depositions were taken and witnesses examined before a special commissioner appointed by Judge Wickersham will be introduced at the time of the hearing. The action is of particular interest to many people here by reason of the plaintiff being so well known in Dawson. Miss Ella Garrett, now Mrs. J. Fred Struthers, of St. Michael, is the plaintiff and Jack Belsea the defendant. The latter was one of the original locators on Glenn gulch, which has since turned out so rich; he also staking for her, who was then Miss Garrett, the claim being No. 4. Miss Garrett sold half for a song and Belsea now lays claim to the other half alleging that he was to have that proportion for having staked for the fair plaintiff. The ground was worked on a lay last winter and when the trouble came up this spring the court was asked to appoint a receiver for the dumps, which was done. How rich the claim is may be inferred from the fact that there is now in the hands of the receiver $25,700 and the dumps are but about one-third sluiced up.

Mr. McGowan states that during the residence of Judge Wickersham this winter in Nome he succeeded in almost entirely cleaning up the civil docket. At the time of his arrival there were over 600 cases on the list. Of these 400 were tried and disposed of, about 60 remain on the docket and the balance were dismissed. Judge Moore has arrived in Nome to take the place of Judge Wickersham, the latter having been transferred to the Eagle district.

The grand jury is now in session at Eagle and the trial of criminal cases begins next Monday. There is one murder trial on the docket, the case of a man stabbing his partner to death in a cabin on one of the creeks in the Fortymile district. The prisoner claims to have acted in self-defense.

"Rampart is quite lively," continued Mr. McGowan. "Both Glenn gulch and Rhode Island creek have turned out better than was expected, in consequence of which everyone is feeling more or less jubilant."

Mr. McGowan will return to Eagle tomorrow, leaving on the Sarah at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Got it in the Neck.

New York, July 30.—As a prominent young society woman of Philadelphia stepped from the steamship Kronprinz Wilhelm on its arrival here, and greeted her husband waiting on the pier, agents of the treasury department interrupted their conversation and took from the woman a pearl necklace reported to be worth $20,000 which she had purchased in Paris and omitted from her declaration.

A special treasury agent had been in Paris and learned of the purchase of the necklace. He determined to return to New York on the same steamer with the purchaser. He noticed that she had made no mention of the gems in her declaration to the customs officers. He remained nearby at the pier and after the traveler had greeted her husband he, with another agent asked the couple to return to their stateroom. He asked for the necklace and the woman, who wore it around her neck, under the dress collar, handed the pearls over.

Collector Stranahan may allow the payment of the duty of sixty per cent, and deliver the necklace to its owner. The latter said, however, he might decide not to pay the duty, and return the necklace to the Paris jeweler who sold it to his wife. The woman said she had no intention of evading payment but wished to consult her husband about the purchase before declaring it to the customs officials.

The Rev. Mr. John Pringle will conduct both services.

On the Black List.

Charleston, W. Va., July 29.—One of the points which was brought out in the trial of John Richards and others in the federal court here, before Judge Keller today, is that Richards threatened to blacklist all miners who refuse to come out and join the strikers. When Richards was speaking to a crowd and the working miners were listening, he turned to the working miners and pleaded with them to quit work and said that when the strike was over and the union had been recognized, which it surely would be, they would not be able to work in any section of the country. He told them that he had a list of all their names and it would be furnished to every local union in the country, and wherever they went they would be pointed to as scabs and would not be allowed to earn a living.

This point was emphasized as much as the prosecution could emphasize it, so that it could be shown to the court that the organization, which is opposed to a blacklist by the employers, proposes to maintain a blacklist among those of the craft. The speech was taken by the stenographer of the Collins Colliery company, and the transcript was submitted to the court today.

Testimony was presented to show that the moneys contributed from headquarters were to support the men on strike. The men employed in the mines testified that they were afraid to work, on account of the gatherings of the strikers, and while the speakers counseled obedience to the law, it was shown they continued to gather in large crowds in the vicinity of the colliery and asserted that they would stay there until the men came out of the mines.

The prosecution brought out testimony today to prove that checks to purchase food were sent here by W. B. Wilson and John Mitchell. The prosecution has closed its case and the defense will start tomorrow.

It has developed that if the injunction issued yesterday by Judge Keller, in the suit of the Gaukey Mountain Coal Company, is enforced strictly, it will prevent the strikers from going into the incorporated town of Ansted, in this state. The bill of the complainants sets up that nearly all of the employees of the company lived in the town of Ansted, which town is located on the property of the company, and that the municipal authorities are unable to cope with the defendants, Wilson, "Mother" Jones, Purcell and others, and are unable to protect the property of the company, or the persons or safety of the employees, and that the police have been openly defied. The injunction of the court prohibits the defendants, their agents, associates, etc., from going on the property of the company, or camping or marching on it, so it includes most of this municipal corporation. At the governor's office it is said no appeal has been made from Ansted for assistance in maintaining order.

Editorial Boquets

Here is the way the Nome News speaks of the editor of the Nome Nugget:

"Let us have peace," cries that despicable old hypocrite, 'Just Flop Around' Strong. This colossal ingrate and traducer of character who knows no loyalty, decency or honesty, has been one of the most persistent elements in Nome to create discord and dissension. His pompous pose and 'holier than thou' assumption of virtue may for a time serve as a cloak to his contemptible hold-up methods, but eventually this weak minded dictator, long since in his dotage, will be, scourged with the lash of justice. The ingratitude, treachery and fawning sycophancy of this boastful gallery player, Major Strong, is becoming apparent to thinking men, and his vindictiveness and deceit are being shorn of their sting."
