I love thee ever; though the seasons change, And the thick leaves fall from the forest trees, Uneading blooms love's summer in my heart, There shall the memory fresh for ever live Of every dear delicht by thee confessed; Thy image there enshrined for ever rules; Muwes and controuls each impulse of my soul; Inspires each g-nile thought, each action bends Submissive to the sweet decrees of love. Though I were buffeling the sea's mad waves, Or traced my solitary way the desert o'er, Or 'mid the Arctic hortors shuddering strayed, Still pure and ardent burns that vestal fire, Still pure and ardent burns that vestal fire,

And time shall change it not. The outward man, Though sickness may assail, it cannot change
The aspect of a heart by love inspired.
But never wavering, attent and serency
Through every evil, every good report,
Through sickness and through health, through life, through death, Through time's vicissitudes, and through the far Eternity, whose depths no eye can scan, Brighter and purer still that love shall glow

English Mail of March 6.

The chief topic of interest in Great Britain is the policy of the new administration, which has been portly disclosed by the Premier. In the House of Lords on the 27th, the Earl of Derby rose to explain the motives which induced him to accept office, and said, that though the resignation of the late administration had taken him completely his surprise, he had determined not to shrink from the responsible office of forming a new government. He said they would all agree with him on the accessity of maintaining universal peace, which could best be effected by observing towards foreign powers a calm and temperate policy, and by respecting in all nations, both great and small, their right to manage their own affairs; that nations should act towards one another with dignity and forbearance, and that no state, any more than any private individual, should be ashaned to make reparation for injuries. He alluded to the strength of the naivy, and said he believed it would be effectual for all purposes, and that it was never more efficient than at this moment.—

The military force was sufficient to repel invasion, and though he felt no alarm on that subject, he thought that the present moment was favorable for so organizing the undisciplined valor of the country, that they might resist to the greatest advantage the trained armies of an invader. He then warned political refugees, that the government would not tolerate any attempt on their part against foreign powers. He approved of the principles adopted in the United States, of taxing all those imports which entered into competition with the produce of their own soil; but though this was his opinion, he thought the question could only be satisfactorily solved by a reference to the clearly expressed opinion of the intelligent portion of the commandity. He stated, that it was not his intention to proceed with the Parliamentary Reform Bill.

NOVEL AND STARTLING PROPUSAL - A metropolitan corres pondent of the Albon describes a somewhat Quixoue scheme, which, he says, is bring concucted by the Ministry no less, in fact, than the enclosure of the Irish Sea, by breakwatras thrown across from Angle-ea to the Wicklow mountains, and from Donaghahe-e to Portpatrick. Thus, it is argued, Dublin, Belfast, Liverpool, Whitehaven, and other exposed towns, will be placed beyond reach of any hostile fleet, while, by the shutting out of the tidal wate s. "many thousands of acres of land. ting out of the tidal wate s, 'many thousands of acres of land, formerly, no doubt, comfields, will be reclaimed, sufficient to yield the fifteen per cent. of corn now imported from foreign countries. The whole estuary of the Dee, large tracts of land on the Solway, the entirety of Murerambe Bay, across which the railway will be forthwith completed, so as to bring the mineral districts of Cumberland into immediate contact with the coal fields of Lancashire."

THE NEW CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER AND HIS CONSTITUENTS.—Mr. Disracil has just published an addr-as to the electors of the country of Buckingham, in which he says,
"The late Administration fell to pieces from internal dissension, and not from the assault of their opponents; and not withstanding the obvious difficulties of our position, we have fell, that to shrink from encountering them would be to leave the country without a government and her Majesty without servants. Our first duty will be, to provide for the ordinary and current exigencies of the pub ic service; but, at no distant period, we hope, with the concurrence of the country, to est-blish a policy in conformity with the principles which in opposition we have felt it our duty to maintain. We shall endeavour to terminate that strife of classes which, of late years, has exercised so permicious an influence over the welfare of this kingdom; to accomplish those remedial measures which great productive interests, suff-ring from unequal taxation, have a right to demand from a just Government; to cultivate firendly relations with all foreign powers and secure honourable peace; to uphold THE NEW CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER AND HIS CON with all foreign powers and secure honourable peace; to uphold in their spirit, as well as in their form, our political institutions; and to increase the efficiency, as well as maintain the rights, of our national and Protestant Church. An Administration formed with these objects, and favourable to progressive improvement in every department of the state, is one which, we hope, may obtain the support and command the confidence of the community, whose sympathies are the best foundation for a strong Administration, while they are the best security for a mild government."

dates to the 37th January, twenty-six days later.

The war with the Kaffirs continued. On the 4th of January news was received at Cape Town of the death of Major Wilmot, of the Royal Artillery, commanding at Fort Peddle. He was shot on New Year's Day, while leading his men in an attack on the enemy in a jungle of Fish River, where it is said that the great Kaffir Chief, Saudhill, had taken refuge.

On the 20th of December, at Manzarana, the English troops had a battle with the Kaffirs and rebel Hottentous, in which 350 of the latter were defeated, with a large number killed and wounded. On the 24th another engagement took place, in which 38 of the enemy were killed.

The whole British force has concentrated at Botterworth, and Sandtill and his neonle are fiving before it into the Bush-

The whole British force has concentrated at Botterworth, and Sandilli and his people are flying before it into the Bushmen country, a tract, busing between the sources of the Bashne and the other rivers of Kaffir land, and the Drakenberg mountains. This is a very fine country, and although estimated at some 4000 square miles, is uninhabited, except by a few bands of roving plunderers. The Fingoes have risen against their old taskmasters, the Kaffirs. On the 3d, at Kawestone, an engagement took place in which twenty-three Kaffirs and four British were killed. The British forces have recaptured 30,000 cattle from the enemy. An attack has been made upon Whittlesse and Shilloh, in which nearly all the inhabitants had been massacred, fourteen only escaping. It was probable that the whole of the mission stations in that part of the country would be entirely ruined and destroyed. be entirely rained and destroyed.

be entirely ruined and destroyed.

The last accounts are to the effect, that the Kaffirs desire peace and are sung for it, but the Governor refused to see their messengers. It will be a long time, however, before peace can be established in this unhappy country. The papers contain columns of accounts of mutders and assassinations by the roadside at noon-day; where the houses of the inhabitants are burnt down and their crops destroyed.

The factory hands, to the number of between three and four thousand, belonging to 18 firms and 23 factories at Redeliffs and Pilkington, turned out against an attempted reduction

To Professor Holloway.

Sir.—I desire to hear testimony to the good effects of Holloway's Pills.—For some years I suffered severely from a pain and rightness in the stomach, which was also accompanied by a shortness of breath, that prevented me from walking about. I am 84 years of age, and matwithstanding my anvanced state of life, these Pills have so relieved me, that I am desirous that others should be made acquainted with their virtues, I am now rendered, by their means, comparatively active, and can take exercise without inconvenience or pain, which I could me do before.

Sin,—A Mr. Thomas Clark, a settler at Lake George, was for a con-advantable time seriously afflicted with a complaint of the Liver, together with the Gravel. His medical attendants, after trying all their skill, candudy told him that his case was hopeless, and any further efforts in-their. In this situation, and when expecting every day would terminate his existence, a trend recommended him to try Holloway's Pills, and as a forlors hope he did so, the first done gave him considerable refret, be therefore persevered in taking them according to the directions, and is now restored to perfect health.
