Municipal Improvements.

Our attention is drawn to the welcome activity which the new Council is displaying by its prompt action in the matter of the typhoid outbreak on the Southside. It has been a regrettable fact in the past that the appearance of even so dangerous a disease has not always attracted from the health authorities and Council the immediate and thorough attention it demands, largely, no doubt, because neither have had the power and the means effectively to deal with it. We are now being supplied with a much improved water service, which will number among its effects a greatly lessened danger of this dread disease. We learn that the Council have at once set about laying the new twelve-inch pipe from the termination of the six-inch line, so that the service will be continued without delay as far as the infected area, which will no longer be dependent for its water upon the wells which are undoubtedly responsible for the outbreak. When the South Side is at length provided with an efficient water service the benefit to the health, comfort and fire protection of that quarter will be inestimable.

We are pleased to note, also, the progress that is being made with the new road surface on Duckworth Street. We do not agree for a moment with those who condemn this experiment on the ground of cost. The streets of St. John's have for years been a disgrace to a city of its size and wealth. Where improvements are really necessary, the question of cost should, within limits, not be considered: if the funds are insufficient they should be increased. This road, when it is completed, promises to be a success. If it is, we shall have at least one first-class street in the city.

and we shall probably find that the heavy initial cost has been economy in the end. The mere existence of such a road has long been desirable if only as a contrast with and example to others of the city. We hope the Council will be able to follow the example in many other places where it is greatly needed.

The Salvation Army.

The good works of this great organization have passed for long as a byword among people of all classes and denominations, but it is not often that one who is not a member has an opportunity of learning how extensive and varied they are. That opportunity was in part afforded to us yesterday when we listened to the address of Commissioner Richards at the College Hall. The simple narrative alone which fell from his lips would have compelled the admiration of the most prejudiced and antagonistic listener. Those who were not included in his audience lost something by their absence. To many, even those most familiar in a general way with the Army's activities, his words were a revelation. Where relief and assistance, practical and spiritual, are most necessary, among the suffering dregs of humanity, there they are most freely and effectively given; witness the Commissioner's stories of the London embankment, the lepers of Java and the miserable deformed beggars of India. What other body or denomination, we may ask without disrespect or invidiousness, could work with such success in fields so diverse, so widespread and so difficult? And the method, as much as the fact, of the Army's success is notable, for it first cures the drunkard of his vice and the beggar of his disease before it imparts to him its own spiritual fervor, which to so many, ignorant of its practical ministrations, is its one distinguishing characteristic. It is no wonder that it wins so many converts from among these afflicted, and finds in them its most zealous disciples. More truly than any other missionary body that we can think of it can adopt as its motto the words that Virgil puts into Dido's mouth—"Non ignara malle miseris succurrere disco." We are not a champion or convert of the Salvation Army, but we are glad of the chance to pay it a deserved tribute. Long may its good work continue.

MORE SOLDIERS RETURNING.—A number of wounded soldiers, Gallipoli and France veterans, are on board the s.s. Scandinavian, due at Quebec in a few days. It is possible for them to reach here on Monday of next week.

Rev. W. D. Stenlake at Wesley Church.

A large congregation attended Wesley Church last evening. The Rev. W. D. Stenlake, a returned hero from the Dardanelles, was the preacher and took for his text the words of the Saviour to St. Matthew, "Follow Me," and preached a very powerful discourse therefrom. His references to the Newfoundland Regiment on the Gallipoli Peninsula were very touching and a tribute of respect paid Private Barrett and Corporal H. Taylor, of Wesley Church, who have made the supreme sacrifice, struck a sympathetic chord in all those present. The rev. gentleman's little talk to the boys and girls on the two great "bullies" of history—Goliath and the Kaiser—was both timely and instructive. The rev. gentleman lectures to-night on his experiences as a soldier.

Boys Arrested and Convicted of Theft.

The police detectives were busy all Saturday last looking for the ones that helped to "clean out" the motor car of Mr. Ralph Bishop. The car was left standing in Bishop's Cove, off Water Street, the previous night when it was raided. Yesterday morning Detective Byrne got the scent of the culprits and after following up the trail for a couple of hours "pinched" two lads of 9 and 18 years old, respectively, and brought them to the lock-up. The accused were arraigned before Judge Morris this morning charged with the larceny of one silver flask, two flash lamps and several other articles. The lads admitted their guilt and in view of the fact that it was their first offence, His Honor let them off on suspended sentence.

THE FACIAL EXPRESSION AND AIR.

A woman's facial expression is usually least attractive when she rises in the morning. This is due to the fact that when sleeping the amount of air one breathes is materially reduced compared to the amount consumed when awake and in action.

Upon arising don a heavy dressing gown, and stand before an open window. Indulge in the following breathing exercises which should be practiced every morning. Begin by inhaling deeply—the length of time consumed for each breath should last from five to fifteen seconds and increase it as one enlarges the air cells and becomes accustomed to inhaling. Hold the breath as long as you can then exhale—consuming the same amount of time in discharging the air as you did in inhaling it.

This is one of the best exercises for increasing the chest expansion, causing renewed action of the circulation and making one immune to colds, that has been discovered. The average woman faces her mirror and fusses over the waves of hair on her forehead, and in her absorption she forgets that not even half of her critics will meet her face to face. A hat may be completely spoiled by not watching the side angle, or by taking heed that the hair fills all awkward hollows. Just so with hair itself. Not only is the side view important for the sake of those who view us from the side, but the whole structure of the coiffure of the moment depends upon the profile view. To have a good profile one must be extremely careful as to the pose of the head. If the head is thrust too far forward it makes the chin too prominent, and if the head settles backward too heavily it gives undue prominence to the throat bone. Noses, which are the last, but most important part of the profile to consider, are the most difficult member to improve. Noses badly made by nature, are distressing, but the fault may be wonderfully improved by massage and the effect also lessened by the proper arrangement of the hair.

Amsterdam, Aug. 23.—Via London—Rumania is preparing for war, according to Dr. Lederer, Bucharest correspondent of the Berlin Tageblatt. A despatch from him dated Sunday, says: "There is ground for some uneasiness as to the attitude of Rumania. The outward aspect of the city is greatly changed. Gay Bucharest has become a grave city, and all like signs in public indicate that everybody is preparing for eventualities, and that the country is getting ready for war."

"I still believe that Brattiano is playing a game with Russia. In political negotiations at Bucharest Von Hindenburg is now playing the foremost role.
