A Contradiction.

In our issue of November 7th, 1917, there appeared an item in which it was intimated that a prospector from tary operations remain responsible to the limit and the properties of the pride was united in marimony with the properties of the pride who was artistically dressed, was attended by Miss Monica Norris while the groom was supported by Mr. J. T. Maloney. The happy couple, mitted to the Supreme War Council which under the high authority of now wish to say that there was absolutely no foundation for the item in lutely no foundation for the item in question. As a matter of fact the samples in question were the property of the prospector who sent them to the city. They came off a claim which this gentleman has been holding for this gentleman has been holding for quite a number of years, and after he had completed a survey of his property. It appears that some irresponsible party, hearing of the survey, telegraphed to the city and caused the seizure of the samples. We are glid to be able to exonerate the prospector in question, more particu larly as this article, if uncontradicted, would be likely to do him some damage.
