William Eichorst, a farmer near St. Marys, has purchased a used automobile, stripped off the body, changed the gear to reduce the speed and fitted the rear axle with two binder wheels. An object lesson to the young on the value of co-operation was shown in Toronto last week. A teacher in the Ogden school suggested to her class that in order to help a poor family, which was in need of food, each pupil should bring a potato. The pupils tried about 10 to the children of other classes. The idea spread. Ogden school has about 1,500 pupils. Next day the potatoes that were brought to the school filled a large barrel and 20 bags.

St. Thomas, Dec. 27.—The cold wave that passed over St. Thomas and vicinity early Saturday morning, it is believed, broke all records. The thermometer at the water works, which is located in the valley, registered 32 degrees below zero, and the same was registered at Port Stanley. The extreme cold wave was accompanied by a winter fog in this locality, causing the railroad men great discomfort. All passenger trains were late, and freight traffic had to be kept moving.

Record Cold Spell.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. C. McKay, of Alvinston, with a hymn of green, interspersed with white chrysanthemums.

The bride entered the drawing room leaning on the arm of her father to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march sweetly rendered by Miss Jennie McVicar, sister of the bride, and looked beautiful in her wedding gown of white satin and shadow lace, trimmed with pearls and rhinestone, and carrying a beautiful bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

After the congratulations and best wishes, the guests repaired to the dining room where a sumptuous wedding dinner was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Tomlinson left amid showers of confetti for Toronto and other eastern cities.

The bride travelled in a blue silk gown and a seafoam coat with hat to match.

The costly and beautiful gifts received testified to the high esteem in which the young couple are held.

They carry with them the best wishes of a host of friends to their future home at Dresden.

Tomlinson-McVicar.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the home of Neil McVicar, Mosa, on Wednesday, Dec. 23rd, at 3 o'clock, when his eldest daughter, Anna Bell, was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Edward Tomlinson, of Dresden.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. C. McKay, of Alvinston, with a hymn of green, interspersed with white chrysanthemums.

The bride entered the drawing room leaning on the arm of her father to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march sweetly rendered by Miss Jennie McVicar, sister of the bride, and looked beautiful in her wedding gown of white satin and shadow lace, trimmed with pearls and rhinestone, and carrying a beautiful bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

After the congratulations and best wishes, the guests repaired to the dining room where a sumptuous wedding dinner was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Tomlinson left amid showers of confetti for Toronto and other eastern cities.

The bride travelled in a blue silk gown and a seafoam coat with hat to match.

The costly and beautiful gifts received testified to the high esteem in which the young couple are held.

They carry with them the best wishes of a host of friends to their future home at Dresden.

Some will say: "Are we proud?" The best answer to the question is: "Do we know our need of God?" In all our efforts, do we trust in God? In all our guns, in all our ships, in all our tanks, in all our airplanes, in all our modern human temptations in all our days of peace, and when war has come as the natural outcome of this self trust, man must humble himself if he would once more find his right place with God.

Humiliation is our need.

How, then, can I best show my humility to God? Our King says, pray, and not only pray but join your brothers in prayer, or in other words go to church. Go to church to pray, and if our prayer is to be heard we must go in such a frame of mind that our prayers will be acceptable.

The appeal of course is to men and women and children, for their prayers are heard, who have become negligent of their church's call. And now your King joins your church and in the name of God asks you to join him and go to church and pray. Deny yourself; set aside for one day at least pleasure, give up all unnecessary work, don't make a feast in your home next Sunday, let the housewife as well as the goodman all go to church and go home and eat such things as mean a forgetfulness of self. Men have gone to the front and in the trenches are suffering untold privations and are giving their lives and suffering in the hospitals, and many as cripples will live the rest of their lives. Our King says to you and to me, at least on one day deny yourselves and for the sake of these men and your country go to church.

Go. Take your neighbor. And before you go, humble yourself before God, and when you enter He will meet you. He will hear your prayers, and He will bless both you and your country.

The King's Command.

Nothing has been more to the joy of British hearts than the way in which men of the Empire, of every color and tribe, have risen in response to our King's call in the hour of our nation's need. To obey the King is the duty of the hour. To those who have not heard, who cannot go our King has sent out his call. From among his messages none should be more loyally obeyed than the call to humiliation, confession and prayer.

Our King has acknowledged, in conference with the leaders of our Empire, that humiliation before God is the thing above everything else that our nation must feel if her prayer and her efforts are to be heard and blessed.

Some will say: "Are we proud?" The best answer to the question is: "Do we know our need of God?" In all our efforts, do we trust in God? In all our guns, in all our ships, in all our tanks, in all our airplanes, in all our modern human temptations in all our days of peace, and when war has come as the natural outcome of this self trust, man must humble himself if he would once more find his right place with God.

Humiliation is our need.

How, then, can I best show my humility to God? Our King says, pray, and not only pray but join your brothers in prayer, or in other words go to church. Go to church to pray, and if our prayer is to be heard we must go in such a frame of mind that our prayers will be acceptable.

The appeal of course is to men and women and children, for their prayers are heard, who have become negligent of their church's call. And now your King joins your church and in the name of God asks you to join him and go to church and pray. Deny yourself; set aside for one day at least pleasure, give up all unnecessary work, don't make a feast in your home next Sunday, let the housewife as well as the goodman all go to church and go home and eat such things as mean a forgetfulness of self. Men have gone to the front and in the trenches are suffering untold privations and are giving their lives and suffering in the hospitals, and many as cripples will live the rest of their lives. Our King says to you and to me, at least on one day deny yourselves and for the sake of these men and your country go to church.

Go. Take your neighbor. And before you go, humble yourself before God, and when you enter He will meet you. He will hear your prayers, and He will bless both you and your country.

Week of Prayer.

In common with all Christian communities throughout the Anglo-Saxon world, the Week of Prayer will be observed in the Glencoe churches as follows:—Monday, St. John's church, subject, "The Cross of Christ"; Tuesday, Methodist church, "Personal and National Repentance"; Wednesday, Methodist church, "Individual and Family Religion"; Thursday, Presbyterian church, "The Missionary Outlook as Affected by the War"; Friday, Presbyterian church, "The Social Application of the Gospel." Hour of service, 8 p. m.

Sunday is to be observed, in obedience to our King's command, as a Day of Humiliation. Your place will be at church, and it is trusted that the same spirit will fill the churches on each of the following days.

W. G. Howson, Geo. Weir, Chas. H. P. Owen.
