(Special to The Advertiser.) Hamilton, Aug. 5 .- London's many errors and inability to hit Pitcher McGemwell gave Hamilton a rather easy victory today. London started well, Sippi getting a two-base hit and scoring on Hynd's single. Hynd got down to third, but was left there. Morrison opened for Hamilton with a three-base hit and scored on Dennis single. Then Baker hit to Strowger, who threw wild enough to let two more runs in. LETTERS TO THE "ADVERTISER."

NORTH BRUCE RECOUNT To the Editor of the Advertiser:

Sir-In your daily issue of the 18th inst., which I have just seen, you publish an article respecting the recount held by me in the North Bruce elec tion, copying from the Chesley Free Press statements as to my decisions in the matter which are untrue, the first tance will be four miles, from Putney the matter which are untrue, the first to Mortlake. The stakes are £250 a of which is: "That I decided at the outset that the ballots should be countthat if the cros was in the disk or in the compartment where the name of the candidate was for whom the voter wished to vote that it should course to be pursued. If you will turn previous Canadian record, 23 miles, 1,672 yards. Incidentally, he broke every Canadian record from 16 to 24 in the compartment of the ballot containing the name of the candidate for in the compartment of the ballot con-taining the name of the candidate for whom he votes, and in the schedule of the act you will find in the directions to voters, which is to be posted Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 6.-The races at the polling places, that the voter is f the National Circuit riders, at the to place his cross in that compartschedule directing the voter to put his cross in the disk was made and the section was again amended providing the voter to put his cross in the disk, burg, of Port Huron, then went for the quanter-mile world's amateur record of :25 1-5. His time was :26 flat, polling place directed him to place his which lowers the State record 2-5 of a cross in the compartment where the second. "Canon Ball" Eddie then candidate's name was for whom he went for the two-thirds mile record, wished to vote. On a recount of votes won the professional two-mile handi-cap. He was scratch man against a ignorant, and as the body of the act said the cross was to be in the one place, and the schedule directed it to be put in another, I held that either places would be proper, and as that decision undoubtedly gave effect to the intention of the voter, it also gave effect to the intention of the act, which was to have elected the man for whom the greater number of ballots were cast.

The next untrue statement is that although I disallowed a number of ballots which had numbers upon them until the "Wiarton ballot boxes were received." when in the boxes were

It is true that these balalso placed that number upon each of these ballots, as provided for by this act. I held that his neglect to put his initials on when he placed the number of the objection on it did not invalidate it, that it was merely directory, and that his failure so to do did not prevent the ballot from being counted in a recount. There are many such formalities required by the act, and if no ballot is to be counted unless all are complied with an election according to the wish of the voters would simply be impossible. If no vote had been required I would have had to decide whether these ballots should be No one need fear cholera or any summer complaint if they have a bottle of Dr. J. D. I proceeded with the recount of the ballots of the two remaining divisions, while the returning officer had the fastenings of the box filed away, and before I entered upon the consideration fore I entered upon the consideration of the question of whether these ballots should be counted or not I was informed by the counsel on each side that it could make no difference in the result whether these ballots were counted or not, as without them the majority for Mr. McNeil was 10, and to count them would only increase it. The view I took of the matter was that of the ballots corresponded in number with the record of the votes cast according to the poll book I should count them, because it being admitted by counsel that they could be counted upon a scrutiny in an election petition, if proof were given of the regularity of the real majority for Mr. McNeil, and the fact of their not being enclosed in an envelope should not inclosed in an envelope should not invalidate them.
