THE AMETHYST CROSS

By Fergus Hume

"Even though she wants him to marry a woman he cares nothing for," "George does care for me," cried Maud, a deep flush overspreading her face, even to the roots of her sandy hair. "I admit that when he was engaged to you he would not look at me. But now that you have thrown him over so cruelly he has turned to me for consolation."

"I don't believe it," said Leslie quickly. "You must, you shall," snapped Miss Ellis very much in earnest. "Look here, this sort of thing won't do."

"What sort of thing?" "This enmity you have towards me. You don't know why you are behaving so exasperatingly."

Miss Ellis put up her lorgnette with an air of triumph. "You have stated the case accurately, save for one remark," she declared. "I can tell you, Walker, and I shall do so unless he marries me. But I did not lure him into a trap. I merely took advantage of circumstances."

You Can Test the Kidneys

THEN LET DR. A. W. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS PROVE THEIR POWER TO CURE.

Let urine stand for twenty-four hours and if at the end of that time there are deposits of a brick dust variety, or if the water becomes smoky and cloudy you may be sure the kidneys are deranged.

Another very marked symptom of kidney disease is pain in the small of the back.

The letter quoted below tells how these symptoms were overcome and kidney disease cured by Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Because of their direct and combined action on both liver and bowels these pills cure the most complicated cases.

Capt. W. Smith, a veteran of the Crimean war, living at Bevelstoke, B. C., writes:—"I can testify that for years I was a sufferer from chronic kidney disease, which was the verdict after the doctor examined me and analyzed my urine. As his medicine did me no good I bought a box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and was benefited so much that I kept on taking them until I can say that I am perfectly cured, which the doctor certifies."

One pill a dose, 25 cents a box. At all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Dr. A. W. Chase's
Kidney-
Liver Pills

WHY AM I ILL?

HOW TO TELL.

Does every cold affect your back, and cause a feeling of chilliness, followed by disturbance of the kidney action.

Does the use of spirits, tea or beer excite the kidneys? Are you easily worried and annoyed over trifles? Are the feet and hands cold? Circulation bad? Do the feet and legs swell? Is there puffiness under the eyes? Do you have rheumatism, poor eyesight, headaches and backaches? Is there gravel or any unnatural action of the kidneys?

If you have any of the above symptoms your kidneys are either weak or diseased, and these symptoms are warnings of more serious troubles to follow; Bright's Disease, Diabetes or Dropsy.

Whatever you do, whatever you think your disease is, look well to your kidneys at the first sign of anything wrong. Give them just the aid they require in Doan's Kidney Pills, the Great Quaker Kidney Medicine, and see how well and fit you feel after even a few doses.

Mrs. O. Warren, Radisson, Sask., writes: "I was troubled with very severe pain in my back for years. I tried everything I could think of but they did me no good. A friend told me about Doan's Kidney Pills and after taking two boxes, I have not been troubled since."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto.

In ordering specify "Doan's."

For something like twenty thousand pounds, and so had them stolen. Certainly he could have sold them openly, as you say, but that he would have got only half the money he required.

"Half the money?" Maud gasped again, and suddenly looked double her age.

"Of course, twenty thousand pounds that is. By insuring the jewels and by having them stolen, he will gain twenty thousand independent of the secret sale which he has arranged along with the thieves."

"You dare to—accuse—my—oh," Maud jumped up fiercely and stamped angrily. "It is ridiculous. What proof have you of this ridiculous tale?"

"I have absolute proof," said Leslie, quietly, and rising in her turn. "Mr. Canning, the Shadow, who watched me at my father's request, found out that I was, and if necessary he can prove the truth of what he found out. And he will at my request if you do not promise to leave George alone, and to swear that you will not accuse him of a crime of which—as you knew all the time—he is innocent."

But Maud heard only half of this speech. "Canning, The Shadow?" she muttered. "Do you mean Captain Sargent's valet?"

"Yes, I nursed him through an illness, and he has shown his gratitude to me by discovering my uncle's plot, and proving my knowledge of it. I can prove what I say with Canning's assistance, and I shall do so, unless you promise to do as I have asked you."

Maud buttoned up her jacket with trembling hands, and moved towards the door hastily. "You are talking rubbish," she muttered in a thick voice.

"I refuse to talk of the matter. It is too silly. But," she faced round, "I shall tell my uncle, and he shall have you put in jail."

"I will be in jail himself," retorted Leslie, perfectly calm, "as soon as you leave this house, I shall arrange with Mr. Canning to go to the police and state what he told me."

"You would not dare!"

"Yes, I would, unless you swear not to accuse George and promise to leave him to me. I said that before. I say so again, and for the last time."

"It's a—Maud was about to say that it was a lie for the third time, but the word died away on her lips. Whether she was cognizant of the plot to steal the jewels, Leslie could not say, as she made no remark on this point; but her very silence showed that she was in the business. Leslie's attitude left no alternative, but to make terms, since if she left the house there was danger that her uncle might be arrested. "If I do what you ask, will you hold your tongue?" she demanded faintly.

"Then you admit that what I say is true?" countered Miss Hale.

"No," almost shouted Miss Ellis, "I do not. Still, my sticks, however wrongly thrown, and I do not want my uncle to suffer through me. As to Canning, oh, my uncle will deal with him, I promise you. Not a word. I agree to all you ask. I must, I shall not accuse George. I shall leave him to you and"—she leaned forward with a snarl, "I shall bring misery on you at the eleventh hour."

"I defy you," retorted Leslie, with scorn.

"Very good," Maud smiled in an evil way. "You shall see who wins the dangerous game you are playing. I will broke off abruptly and left in haste."

CHAPTER XIII.

Mrs. Walker's Visit.

The meeting of the two girls who loved George seemed destined to end abruptly. On the first occasion Leslie had broken short the interview at Henry, and on the second Maud had hastened away from Rose Cottage. Leslie wondered that she had not remained to talk further, and was rather anxious when she remembered that Maud had left with a threat on her lips. Miss Ellis was clever and cunning and reckless, and one way or another might do much harm. Not that Leslie saw any chance of her doing any since she knew too much for Leslie's peace of mind. Without doubt what Canning had discovered was true, else Maud would not have surrendered so easily. Leslie thought until she grew weary about the matter, and especially how Canning could have discovered the truth so speedily. She would have asked him point-blank in spite of his prohibition, but that he was in London. And as yet he had not written to tell where he was hiding.

However, as things stood, there was no doubt that Maud would keep her promise, and that George was safe. On the day after the stockbroker's niece had paid her visit, Leslie wrote a long letter to Walker, and detailed all that Canning had discovered, and also narrated its effect on Maud Ellis. Further, she gave George to understand how she had been compelled to write the letter of dismissal, and ended up with a fond wish that her lover should STOP DRINKING. Orrine Destroys the Craving for Drink—Cure Effected or Money Refunded. It was formerly customary for the habitual drinker to take the pledge regularly, sometimes once a year, and sometimes in every fit of remorse that followed his debauches, and then break it. But now it is gradually dawning on the world that pledges do not stop drunkenness. When a man takes a pledge voluntarily, he expects to keep it. Every man who expects to keep his word, and every broken pledge costs the drunkard many a heartache. But he cannot help it. He fights as long as he can, then succumbs to the craving. The nervous system of the habitual drinker is diseased and he must have treatment that will cure this condition. Orrine is sold under a positive guarantee to cure the drink habit, or the money will be refunded. No other treatment for the liquor habit is sold under such a liberal guarantee. Orrine is prepared in two forms: No. 1, a powder, perfectly tasteless and colorless, which can be given secretly in any food or drink. Orrine No. 2 is in pill form, for those who wish to be cured of the habit, and it should be taken by everyone who swears off. No matter which form of Orrine is used to cure the drink habit, or the money will be refunded. The price of Orrine is $1 per box, mailed in plain sealed wrapper upon receipt of price. Write for free booklet "How to Cure Drunkenness" (mailed in plain sealed envelope), by "The Orrine Company" Washington, D. C. Orrine is sold by C. McCallum & Co., corner Dundas and Richmond streets, London.
