Concerning Mr. Wilde.

Mr. Oscar Wilde has been the conspicuous figure in a recent controversy in London, which has become interesting chiefly through the opinions on the ethics of journalism and the literary tastes of journalists which he has expressed in a letter to Mr. T. P. O'Connor. "Literary instinct," he says in one place, "is, of course, a very rare thing, and it would be too much to expect any true literary instinct to be found among the members of the staff of an ordinary newspaper." This remark naturally gave rise to some response from the ordinary newspaper in question, but in no wise compared with the glee with which they hailed another utterance on the artistic temperament made by Mr. Wilde later in the same communication: "Only mediocrities progress," he declares oracularly; "an artist revolves in a cycle of masterpieces, the first of which is no less perfect than the last." Rarely has an utterance been as widely discussed and criticised as this. One periodical says: "The utterances of genius are not to be scrutinized too closely, yet perhaps Mr. Wilde will inform us how one thing can be less or more perfect than another. Respecting the novel theory that an artist has nothing to learn, even in the callow stage, there will be various opinions." It is not likely that Mr. Wilde will come out of the controversy entirely unscathed. When an author criticises the critics he undertakes a large contract.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Hints for the Housekeepers.

Ladies wishing a smooth skin made without harm can obtain it by purchasing 10 cents worth of tincture of benzoin. Dissolve it in a pint of wine, and use on the face at night. The face should first be washed with pure and fine soap, and then rinsed off in clear, cold water. The benzoin can be dissolved in water, but wine is preferable.

Soft and flabby skin gains firmness of texture by the use of cold water, to which has been added a little common salt. Vinegar and spirits of any kind used as a wash about twice a week help to keep the skin firm.

Pails and tubs saturated with glycerine will not shrink.

A shovel of hot coals held over spotted varnished furniture will take out the spots.

To remove moth patches wash them with a solution of common bicarbonate of soda and water several times during the day for two days, or until the patches are removed, which will usually be in 48 hours. After this process wash with some nice toilet soap, and the skin will be left clean and free from patches. Peroxide of hydrogen rubbed on the face two or three times a day for ten days will also free the skin of any discoloration.

A tablespoonful of lime water to a pitcher of milk is very beneficial.

After knives have been cleaned they may be brilliantly polished with charcoal powder.

Rub spoons with salt to remove egg stains.

A Japanese Love Story.

A sad love story comes from Japan. We find it in the columns of The Japan Mail. The daughter of a tradesman in Shizuska was last month compelled to become the wife of a man for whom she felt no affection. She had already in secret plighted her troth to a young and handsome fellow-townsman; but her father bade her forget the youthful lover and marry a man of means. The poor woman pined away. On the night of the third day of the Bon festival—the 15th of last month—she went to the river to watch the boats launched by pious people and illuminated dimly with paper lanterns—tiny crafts bearing gifts of rice or "sake," with votive scrolls to those in the spirit land. As she stood gazing on the bank of the river, her former betrothed stepped suddenly to her side. He had been drawn by lot as one of those to enter the army, and for three long years would never have the chance of seeing her face. The young wife, love-lorn and hopeless, proposed that they should die together. He produced a dirk, and with this she stabbed him to the heart, immediately afterwards hanging herself from the outstretched bough of one of the gloomy old trees that grew near the river's bank.

Decline in Dominion Cotton Stock—Sterling Exchange Weaker at New York—Large Increase in Visible Supply of Wheat—Grain and Provisions Lower at Chicago.

Wednesday Evening, Nov. 7.

The weak stock on the Montreal Exchange to-day was Dominion Cotton, which sold at 100.

Consols are firmer, closing to-day at 102 5-16 for money and account.

Canadian Pacific closed lower in London to-day at 64 1-4, and higher in New York at 63. St. Paul closed higher in London at 64, Erie at 14 3-4, N.Y.C. at 102 3-8. Ill. C. at 93 1-2 and Reading at 9 1-2.

Bradstreet reports an increase in wheat last week of 2,198,000 bushels east of the Rockies and 1,122,000 bushels west; total increase 3,320,000.

The world's visible supply of wheat is now 181,700,000 bushels, as compared with 182,600,000 bushels at the corresponding period of last year.

Foreign exchange is weaker to-day, actual rates at New York being below those of Monday, a fact which may be attributed in part to the better feeling as to our financial position and currency created abroad by the elections.

It is believed in London that the possibility of the United States Government issuing Treasury bonds tends to remove the fears of heavy gold shipments this year.

Tips From Wall-street.

The market closed very strong at about best prices of the day.

London was a buyer of stocks to-day, and took 1500 shares of St. Paul.

Achison's net earnings for September decreased $758,000.

Henry A. King & Co.'s special wire from Ladenburg, Thalman & Co., New York: There was a rush to cover shorts at the opening this morning, but the advances did not hold, and the bear leaders, who had evened up their contracts before the close on Monday, put out some shorts on the advance. London has taken a favorable view of the outcome, but only bought a few stocks, the most important manifestation in that connection being the easier tone of foreign exchange. Sugar and J.C. were especially heavy about noon, while the fact that the New York voters have ratified the city rapid transit scheme would account for the weakness of Manhattan. Indefinite rumors are heard of a strike of Jersey Central's employes. Although no buying power was shown after the first and short-lived scramble of bears, the market became steady and began to regain ground in the early afternoon. Its progress, however, was slow, and appeared to be attributed to further covering on the sentimental improvement already referred to.
