DO ALL MY HOUSE WORK

Before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I could hardly get about.

Cobourg, Ont.—"For many years I have had trouble with my nerves and have been in a general run down condition for some time. I could not do my work half of the time because of the trouble with my monthly sickness. I was told of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by friends and advised to try it. It has done me good, and I strongly recommend it. Since I have taken it I have been able to do all my own work, and I also know friends who have found it good. You can use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. ELLEN FLATTERS, Box 761, Cobourg, Ont.

WHERE HEROES SLEEP.

Canadian Detachment Will Photograph War Graves.

Over 50,000 Canadian soldiers are buried in France and Flanders, and it is the intention of the Canadian War Graves Detachment to make a photograph of every individual grave and forward it to the next of kin of the slain soldier.

This is to be done whether the rela-tives ask for the photo or not. The officials assume that every bereaved family would highly value such a photograph.

As yet it is an undecided point whether the authorities will permit the raising of the buried bodies and their transfer to Canada. The War Graves Commission has so far frowned on the proposal, though the United States Government has launched into the huge task of bringing back for burial in America the bodies of any soldiers whose kinfolk desire them to be buried finally on this side of the Atlantic

He is in partnership with a Paris undertaker who is negowith a Paris undertaker who is nego-tiating with the French Government for the necessary permission. Several Toronto families have commissioned him to act for them, and he has also been asked by a New York mother to bring her son's body out. Interesting details of the work that the Canadian War Graves Detach-ment is doing in the battle areas are given in a letter recently received by a Toronto mother from one of the officers of that force. The Detach-ment is now-located at Heslin, which is about halfway between Arras and Boulogne. It is under the command of Capt. W. T. Cheyne, of London, Ontario.

The letter says:

"We have rented a large house here for offices and photographic workrooms, and if the Canadian Government will let us remain here to finish the work that we have commenced—and sacrificed much to do—we are liable to be here for several years more. eral years more.

"We have recently opened up-branch offices at Ypres and at Albert, which will help to refleve the pressure from this office during the influx of Canadian visitors that is expected next summer. If you know of any neonle desiring information expected next summer. If you know of any people desiring information concerning Canadian graves in France and Flanders or who are desirous of obtaining a photograph of a grave would you please tell them that we are here and are willing to assist them to the best of our ability. Crocodies Gum, Was

A Frenchman returned with an account of a singular national treas-ury in Annam, writes an Eastern cor-respondent. If the story is true— and it presents no essential improb-ability—the treasury is in no danger of robbery and is destined to become

Now, in Annam iron safes of good resisting power are for the most part unknown, and, unfortunately, adroit thieves are not. To defend his most costly treasures the native ruler had to resort to some means in harmony with the natural circumstances of the country.

Armed guards he could not fully trust. Animals do not steal money, and nature had supplied the ruler with a creature that could not be wheedled nor killed except with a great deal of trouble. The ruler would have the crocodile guard the special reserve.

Yet to avail himself of the services money in a place where crocodiles are at home. Nothing was more simple. In the interior of his palace the ruler caused to be constructed a large tank or basin, which he kept filled with water. Then he took several teak logs, which he had bored with holes, and into these holes he put his special reserve of gold and silver. The holes were closed up and the logo put into the tank.

Then some crocodiles of the largest and fiercest description were installed in the tank and maintained there—not being fed, however, with such a superfluity as to interfere with such a superfluity as to interfere with their natural ferocity. Any person who should undertake to reach the treasure-laden logs would surely be eaten by the crocodiles. And any one who should attempt to put the sau-rians out of the way would have to make noise enough to attract the at-tention of the human guards and of the ruler himself, for he, by Annam custom, is required to remain very closely in his palace. closely in his palace.

At any rate, the royal crocodile treasury never has been robbed—and it cannot burn.

Insects Attack Fruit.

Besides the birds, there are num-erous insects which attack the fruit, the wood, and the leaves of the olive tree. The most dreaded of these is a small fly called Dacus eleae, which is about half the size of a common house fly. The female has a sting like a wasp, with which she punctures the fruit where she deposits her eggs. It is calculated that a single fly will thus destroy 300 or 400 olives.

Draperies in Vogue. A glance at the pretty dresses in the windows of the shops indicates that one may make use of any old thing to furbish up one's spring gown this season. An old silk dress may have draped over it an old lace dress and short sleeves may be lengthened by adding wide lace to them. But not only is black used over bright colors, like green and blue, but contrasting shades are used, a blue over mahogany, for instance, or an amethyst over They all look very pretty and fresh, but experience has shown that it is not fair to judge the fashions of the early summer and spring by the first displays.
