Query 1—Why does a cup of tea loosen up a woman's tongue?

Query 2—When listening to a roomful of women talking (all at once) would you recognize the English language?

The social event of the month in Kerwood was the Women's Institute meeting at the home of Mrs. R. Pollock, Wednesday afternoon, April 20th. The house was tastefully decorated with tulips. There was an unusually large attendance of members and their friends, and many spring frocks were in evidence. We were pleased to have with us on this occasion our District President, Mrs. Douglas, of Strathroy, also Mrs. Dunn and Miss Thompson, of Strathroy. We had hoped to have Miss Morton with us for a talk on Hospital work but her duties interfered, so we had to forego that pleasure. The business part of the meeting was soon disposed of and Mrs. Douglas was called on for an address and her earnest helpful talk thoroughly enjoyed, and note was made of some good hints from other Institutes for our own work. We feel much indebted to Mrs. Douglas for this visit in Miss Morton's absence. Mrs. Douglas spoke of the hospital needs both for the present and future. Mrs. Frank Mills was then called to listen to an address given by Mrs. Brunt conveying to her our regret that she was leaving our midst. Mrs. Mills was one of the organizers of the Kerwood Institute and has always been a most faithful member ever ready with both time and talent. As a slight token of our esteem and goodwill we asked her to accept a serving tray, not that we were suggesting an invitation to come and be served, but that we wished her to have something tangible to often bring to her remembrance the many friends in Kerwood who appreciated her work.

In response Mrs. Mills left no doubt in our minds about not being forgotten and wherever her home might be she would always welcome her Kerwood friends. The lunch committee then served Special tea, which was much enjoyed. Mrs. Mills' tray was passed around to receive the offering for the Strathroy Hospital and we now have seventeen dollars and thirty cents to devote to some hospital need.

A few visitors from Strathroy called at our office the other day having motored from their town here. On inquiring how the roads were we received this answer. "The roads were fine until we hit your Front street and I guess we would have been coming yet if we hadn't been pulled through it."

Durnig a severe electrical storm recently, our Strathroy shop was struck, setting fire to the shingle roof. Some of our shop employees living in the neighborhood discovered the fire as it was gaining alarming headway and by climbing up through the attic and out on the roof with chemical fire extinguishers, which we always keep handy in our shops, were able to check the flames before the town fire department arrived. One of the boys ruined a suit of clothes while fighting the blaze but the owners of the property jeopardized by the fire will gladly make good his loss and are very thankful it was no worse.

heard one of the girls say, "This will be in the Guide next week." I says to myself, says I, Yes, Sir, and I myself will see that it gets there if I can't get anyone but Jermina to help me write it down,—so here it is, here's the whole story:—Once upon a time,—No, 'twas a rainy day in April, the rain was falling fast, the boys and girls were going home for it was twelve past. The office staff they lingered still, they knew the rain might easily kill, no umbrellas had they nor rubbers on, and some of course had their very best gown. They waited there till ten minutes past and had quite decided they would fast, when one bright chap suggested a car for really to walk it was too far. So he went up to the telephone and called a bus in an undertone. "As soon as you can please, Thank you, man, for here we are, not one bite on hand." They waited patiently about until at last they heard a shout. They looked around, behold! their man, but where was his Ford (his new Tin Can). He shouted hard "Hey boys, come here I cannot come to you I fear, my car is sinking in the mud, I cannot budge it with any thud. Walk up that far and we shall see when our forces all combined be if we can move it from that clay, we'll then go rejoicing on our way." So out the office staff were forced to go, walk down that lane, 'twas a worth while show. They went to the corner and looked at the car and there it was sunk in the mire. The girls stood agast, the boys looked perplexed. They all watched the driver who seemed sorely vexed. Clean shoes were forgotten, the boys took a hold. They pushed and worked like warriors bold. Time passed on, terra firma was found, one more gentle push and "Lizzie" turned round. All aboard, cried the driver, "we're all ready now," so in they hurried and got seated somehow. Their shoes were well laden, their clothes dripping wet. Their brows deeply furrowed and showed signs of sweat. They landed home safely at twelve thirty-three and thus ended the fun for Jermina and me.
