LIFE IN ALASKA.

AN INTERESTING NARRATIVE FROM FORT WRANGEL -A LIVELY SCENE IN A ORUBOH.

New York, D c. 19 - Regarding the trouble at Fort Wrangel Dr. K-ndall, Secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, says it began in October, after Bev. 8 Hall Young, minister of the mission church, left for the United States to lecture on "Life in Alaska." McFarland, of South Carolina, tescher in the school, took Dr. Young's place in the pulpit. McFarland and his wife who was his araistant in the school, whipped two big Indian girls because they came into the school with snowshoes on. The girls ran away to friends in the village. They belonged to the Girl's Home over which Mrs. A. B. McFarland, McFarland's aunt, was matron. Next Sunday McFarland preached violently sgainer the girls, and Mrs. McFarland got up in her pew and defended them McFariand yelled to her to sit down, and she told him to sit down. He rushed out of the pulpit, grabbed her by the shoulders, and put her down with force. After that McFarland was very unpopular at the Fort. He held religious meetings every night, and a report was sent to New York that he was crazy. Bev. Robert W. Hill, superintendent of the mission, who has headquarters in Portland, Oro., went to Fort Wrangel and has adjusted affairs satisfactorily for the present.

AN AUTRESS' QUARREL. FARIS, Dec. 19.-"Sarah Barnum," a satitical blography of Sarah Bernbardt, written ty her former friend, Marie Colombier, has been the cause of a duel between friends of the women, and of a scandalous quarrel between the actress and the author. Bersh, foconsed because she was described as a "the Barnum," asked the police to seize the book. The police replied that she must seek redress at the civil tribuani. Sarab, with her son, proceeded on Wednesday to Marie Colombin's regidence and struck the author of the book in the face with her riding whip with ber full force. Marie fled, pursued by Barah who smashed everything in her way. Meanwhile triends of the women indulged in a free fight in another part of the house.
