SIX KILLED IN ELECTION FIGHT

Three of One Family Among the Slain—Mayorality Candidate Has Patrol Wagon Ride.

Jackson, Ky., Nov. 8.—Six men were killed and five others were wounded in an election fight at the Clayhole voting precinct on Troublesome Creek, Breathitt county, about fifteen miles from here today.

The story of the affray at it reached Jackson was to the effect that Edward Combs, defeated Democratic candidate in the August primary for county judge, was active in support of the Republican nominee for the same office. Combs, it was said, entered the polling place today and attempted to give orders to the election officers.

Relatives, according to the story, remonstrated with him, and out of the argument grew a fight in which pistols were drawn and the shooting became general. Three of the Combs family were among the killed.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 8.—W. O. Harris, Democratic nominee for mayor of Louisville, started election day by riding from a hotel to police headquarters in the patrol wagon.

With Dr. H. E. Meckling, Democratic nominee for sheriff of Jefferson county, he was arrested on charges of disorderly conduct and interfering with police officers who attempted to detain men who, they said, were reported to have been brought to the city to intimidate voters.

"FORBIDDEN FRUIT"
A RARE SUCCESS

The Unique was not large enough yesterday, and at four shows many were unable to obtain admission. "Forbidden Fruit" with exquisite Agnes Ayres in the lead, supported by Theodora, Forrest Stanley, Kathryn Williams and Clarence Burton, would prove an irresistible attraction in any theatre. The story is one of the latest successes of Cecil B. DeMille, and it is a question if that great producer ever made a better one. The story rises to great dramatic heights in the depiction of the suffering of a young wife, who, married to a stiff-necked, unfeeling, ultimately finds happiness in the love of a real man. Agnes Ayres is delightful, beautiful and clever, and dresses her part in a manner which has a tendency to make the ladies gasp.

These actors make an almost perfect cast for the interpretation of the wonderfully intense and dramatic story. Those who were unable to obtain admission Monday have opportunities until Friday evening. "Forbidden Fruit" is one of the few great productions of the year, and the small advance in admission, made necessary by the great cost, was readily recognized as reasonable by Monday's patrons. An entire change of programme is offered Saturday evening, which the week-end patrons will particularly enjoy.

NEW UNDERGROUND
LONDON SERVICE

Promoter Seeks a Guarantee Against Competition, but Premier Cannot Agree.

London, Nov. 8.—(Canadian Press)—Premier Lloyd George replied last night in the House of Commons to a proposition made by Lord Ashfield, head of the London underground railway and omnibus combine that he would spend six million pounds in building a new underground and thereby relieve unemployment if the government would guarantee the combine against competition for ten years.

The premier said he had informed Lord Ashfield that the government was unable to promise legislation to protect his service against competition. At the same time he had suggested to Lord Ashfield the desirability of proceeding with the work from the viewpoint of permanent value and the great relief it would afford for unemployment. The government, said the premier, was still in communication with Lord Ashfield.

Are you stepping on the brake

The food you eat does make a difference.

How about your breakfast or lunch—does it give, or take?
