PRINCE MAY FIND BRIDE ON VISIT

Supposed to be in Germany to Study Language

LONDON SOCIETY NEWS

Marchioness of Salisbury Deep in Preparations For Wedding of Daughter—Several Crowned Heads to Visit London This Year

(Times' Special Correspondence)

London, March 29.—Everybody who has been amused at the reason given for the visit of the Prince of Wales to Germany. He will be away, at the most, for a few weeks, and it is said that the object of his tour is to "improve his knowledge of the German language." Nobody who has the slightest knowledge of the tongue of the fatherland knows that a stay of a "few weeks" in the country is not very useful. No, although the unfortunate student of the German tongue is but eighteen, it is another expedition on which he has set out. All the little German princesses have donned their most becoming frocks and put on their best smiles for his inspection, hoping that he will take a fancy to make one of them the future Queen of England any time in the next few years.

At the court of Wurtemberg the young "Prager Wagger," as he is called at Oxford, will enjoy the company of his six young cousins, and the eldest "duchess," Marie Annelie, is quite a good looking girl, taking more after her Austrian mother than after her German father. They are the children of the Duke of Wurtemberg and consist of the present king of Wurtemberg, the king, too, is less staidly Teuton than many of those lesser German royalties, and is enormously keen on aviation and everything to do with modern machinery. His young cousins live a free and simple life, which was a bit of an eye opener to young "Wally," whose existence has been much hedged in.

To Wed in Abbey

The Marchioness of Salisbury and her daughter, Lady Beatrice Cecil, are up to their eyes in preparations for latter's wedding to the Hon. William Ormsby Gore, which is to take place early next month in Westminster Abbey. The little bride one day will be Lady Harlech, and a Westminster Abbey wedding always excites a certain amount of interest, very few people being able to obtain the privilege of being married in the ancient pile. Three bishops, London, Oxford and David's, are to assist the Archbishop of Canterbury to tie the knot. Lord Harlech is a Welsh peer, and a strong pillar of the Welsh church, hence the presence of His Grace of St. David's at the ceremony.

Lord Harlech has presented to the young couple a town house, in Mansfield street, and they have been very busy buying furniture for it. No startling schemes of decoration or anything very novel will be found there; there are neither of the particularly artistic, nor, however, anything will be very good, it will all be rather of the solid order.

After their return the bride and bridegroom will reside for a time at the Salisbury's town house in Arlington street. This is in keeping with the patriarchal customs of the family, rooms having been kept from time immemorial for the children even after they are married. It is sometimes as many as three generations were living under the same roof at all- field and Arlington street.

There are rumors of visits from several crowned heads here this summer, rumors which are sailed with great delight by the society folk, for royal visits mean a big dinner party, receptions or royal balls.

The visit of the King and Queen of Denmark has got beyond the rumor stage, as a suite of rooms at Buckingham Palace is now being prepared for them. They will be here about the middle of May and will occupy the Belgian suite, the most handsome in the whole palace. It is on the first floor, giving on to the garden, and has a separate entrance. It is so called because it was originally prepared by the prince consort for the reception of the late King Leopold of Belgium, and is never used except by royalties of the highest importance. The whole suite was re-decorated soon after King Edward came to the throne, it being discovered that such a primitive necessity as a bathroom was wanting. Close by are rooms for the attendants of the royalty who occupy the Belgian suite.

King George and Queen Mary will dine or dance with several hostesses of high degree also this summer, so the prospects of a gay season are particularly bright. The Earl and Countess of Granard will entertain Their Majesties to dinner, and the Duchess of Roxburgh will give a big ball.

NOTIONS IN SOCIETY

There is some sign that little entertainments are to be among the novelties of the season. Do not be deluded into thinking that the little entertainments is easier to manage than the big one, because it is not so. This particular form of frivolity to be successful must be original, and it is not every one who can be that. At present it is the little tea dance that is all the go. You are invited to tea, and you find a band—no, rather, you do not find it, because it is hidden away. But at the time it plays the most insidious of "rag-time," whenever you feel it.

Lady Angela Forbes, too, introduced a novelty recently at one of her dances and appeals to the men especially, and it is absolutely obliges you to get on your feet and dance. But you do not dance all the time; you just get up and "one-step" whenever you feel inclined.

A STEP AT A TIME

Have you ever noticed how unreasonably the man at the bottom of the ladder envies the man at the top? Not until success has been actually attained does the man appear at the top, and the consequence is that he gets scant credit for the step at a time climbing which has brought him there.

That, at any rate, is the experience of the Midland Vinegar Company, of England, the manufacturers of H. P. Sauce. They are now at the top of the ladder—H. P. is an assured success—everybody who tastes it likes it, and recommends his friends to make a trial of it.

Amid the general buzz of success no one has leisure to imagine what a long time was given over by the Midland Vinegar Company to careful experimenting with different combinations of rich Oriental fruits and spices, before a perfectly delicious, rich, thick, fruity sauce like H. P. was arrived at and christened, and sent forth to win its way with the people. H. P. has been a success from the very first—but that is because its manufacturers did not want themselves as sauce manufacturers until they had a perfect sauce to talk about. You try H. P. You will like it—everybody does.

ALL THINGS OFF.

It was on the Third Avenue Elevated Railroad, and the five figures of this tale were riding up-town. "I'll bet you five dollars," said Brown, "that that old chap over there in the corner is a Pole." He pointed to a long-whiskered foreigner sitting opposite, with a pedlar's pack between his feet. "I'll go you," said Smithers. "I've got five dollars that says he's an Armenian." "Let me in on this," said Phillips. "Five one-dollar bills in convention assembled in my vest-pocket, decree that he is a Russian." "And I will build that pool up to twenty bones that he is a Hungarian," put in Robinson. "Don't cry the other; and Robinson, being the nervous member of the party, was delegated to put the question as to the nationality to the old man himself. "Vot, Me?" said the object of their interest, on hearing the question. "Vot, Me? Yy, I vas an Amerrigian—I only shoost tooo good dber papers."

The longest straight piece of railway line in the world is from Nyngan to Bourke, in New South Wales. This railway runs 130 miles on a level in a perfectly straight line.

ZANGWILL SPEAKS AFTER TODAY THEY GO ON THE NEW JUDEA

Solving the Problem of Jewish Homelessness

TWO CONFLICTING THEORIES

One Would Have New State in Palestine; The Other in Any Land—Great Difficulties Which Are in the Way

London, April 10.—While lecturing on the subject of a "New Judea" for the Jews, Israel Zangwill said the subject upon which he was engaged was that of solving the problem of Jewish homelessness by getting a new land, a new home, and a new Judea for the Jews, a land which would be their very own, and in which they would hold the reins of government as a majority of the population.

Two conflicting theories, it appears, are disturbing the Jewish universe, the one called Zionism, pointing out that as yet uncreated state must spring up in Palestine; the other, perhaps less visionary, called Holim, or Territorialism, declaring that the new Judea should be encouraged to spring up anywhere. Mr. Zangwill reviewed both these theories, and dealt with the difficulties attendant upon each.

The original object, he said, was child's play to the modern problem. Moses had to deal with a people already collected together, only 600,000 in number, that had merely to march out and train itself in the wilderness until it was ready to conquer the tribes that held the nearest country—which happened to be Palestine. But to-day, with a race of 12,000,000 scattered in every country over the earth, speaking no common language, losing even their common religious expression, often mutually hostile, and the mass of them too poor to emigrate—or too rich—it was scarcely possible even to conceive a plan for a great gathering under one government (their own), with each citizen paying his shekel to the David Lloyd George of the new state.

Of course by far the most important side of the problem was the immediate fate of the 6,000,000 Russian Jews. The persecution of the race, he said, was always greatest where there was little or no surrounding civilization, and today it was in Russia in particular that the position of the Jewish peasant was intolerable. America at present was the land of refuge, but there was a great danger of the total absorption of the Jewish race in the states.

One of the greatest obstacles standing in the way of the Jews' dream of a "Holim" was the anti-Semitism of the Jew himself. Land had been offered to him several times—in Natal, Honduras, in New Orleans—but the English, German, and French Jews were afraid they would be distinguished from the English, Germans, or French (according to their country)—which, of course, they were not to-day. Jews, therefore, were suffering from the consequences of their own slackness.

Belfast harbor receipts for 1912 show an increase over the previous year, which was itself a record, of 28,334, and the net registered tonnage cleared was 254,839 tons above the previous best.

AN EASY WAY TO REMOVE SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

For the benefit of our lady readers who suffer from the humiliating disfigurement of hair on face, lips or chin, we publish herewith a formula which has the advantage of being simple and inexpensive, as well as marvellously effective. It is not claimed by our informant that one application will permanently destroy the hair roots, but it is claimed and the claims are borne out by actual tests, that one application completely removes the hair, and its regular use, one or two days apart, will quickly and permanently destroy the hair root itself. If you have hair which you wish PERMANENTLY REMOVED, ask your druggist to mix 4 1/2 drams Pulverized Sulphur Concentrate with 2 1/2 drams Zinc Oxide, and 1 dram of Powdered Oris Root, and put in a wide mouth bottle. For use, mix a little of the powder into a paste on a plate by adding a few drops of water. Apply with a narrow knife blade and remove at the end of two minutes with the back of the knife, when the dissolved hair will come with it. Repeat at intervals of two days. Each time the growth will be less, until it entirely disappears.

CAUTION—This must not be used as a substitute for shaving, as its repeated use completely destroys the hair roots.

JUDGING OTHERS.

No man can say in what degree any other person, besides himself, can be with strict justice called wicked. Let any of the strictest character for regularity of conduct among his examine impartially how many vices he has never been guilty of, not from any care or vigilance, but for want of an opportunity, or some accidental circumstance intervening; how many of the weaknesses of mankind he has escaped, because he was out of the line of such temptation; and what often if not always weighs more than all the rest, how much indebted he is to the world's good opinion, because the world does not know all. I say, any man who can thus think will scan the failings, may the faults and crimes of mankind around him with a brother's eye.—Burton.

TO CALVIN CHURCH

St. Andrew's Beacon.—Rev. W. M. Fraser, of Halifax, who has been supplying the pulpit of Greenock church for the last five months, concluded his engagement on Sunday and took his departure for St. John on Tuesday, where he is to fill the pulpit of Calvin church for a time. At the close of the Sunday evening service the clerk of the session, on behalf of the congregation, presented to Mr. Fraser an address, thanking him most heartily for his useful labors, and wishing him God speed.

KNOWLEDGE YOU USE IS WHAT COUNTS.

It is not how much knowledge you have, but how much knowledge you use that counts in your work, and it is the same with books. You might have the largest dictionary or encyclopedia in the world, but it would not do you as much good as the dictionary which The Telegraph and Times offer their readers. The volume is small enough to keep constantly at your elbow and you will use it ten times to the once you will cross the room to consult the big Webster's on the stand or table; and that you will use it a hundred times more than you will use a library or encyclopedia.

A well known businessman explained yesterday why he was clipping the dictionary coupons. A visitor noticed that he was preparing to secure a dictionary from The Telegraph and Times and expressed his surprise, as he had a big volume of Webster's in his office.

"I want that flexible leather dictionary," he said, "it's the handiest book of the kind I've ever seen and the most complete. Do you know most people don't realize how many new words are coined in our language every year. This book is up to date and I need it in my business. It's dollars to doughnuts that I'll use it ten times as much as I ever use that cumbersome one. This Telegraph and Times book is a Carnegie library at your elbow." If you have not started clipping already, start now.
