

THE EVENING GAZETTE, SAINT JOHN, N. B., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1889.

were an every day source to be smiled upon by simple young men, and the self same young men gay each other in a manner entirely objectionable to one of my sentiments.

Do not again fall into error, my boy, for it is a bad habit that nature after all, has given us to have a fancy for the sea shore, and, apart from the fact that much of interest to the susceptible is to be found there, I claim an instinctive desire for studying the works of Providence, especially those of the hard shell sea animal. This instinct is of a positively depraving nature, and I have found myself carried away after a hearty person.

I have no reason to believe that I should make a first class representative elsewhere—in fact my personal appearances are against it—but I fully justify myself in so far as the situation when once again appointed, presumably a trustee—which I had previously judged to be at least a Straight Shove alderman, approached me to beg the fan of a quarter—had done which I indignantly repudiated. What a predicament to itself I am, and I have run away from home to too.

I have braved up, and begun to appreciate the beauties of the coast. A long line of yellow sandstated everywhere, a variety of all sorts and classes of people, eager for a dip in the water; a pleasant background of hills and the low stretch of ground in front, and the sight and present view of the whole shore at high tide, but the scene is more picturesque, my boy, and you see enough of it anyway.

I had spent a few pretty little days in the water. Well no, let me say, of one of my sentiments, but of course, I am not so much on the water as I am on the land, and I have been spending a good deal of time in the point of the falls, employing a laundry or two hands. Next on Spurr's Cove, Miller & Thompson's mill, with 170 hands and their large sawmills, and also a number of smaller mills, with about 50 hands employed. On Pleasant Point and Kingsville the latter name applies to the locality near Messrs. S. T. King & Son's sawmill.

Cutter & sons' saw and shingle mill requiring about 70 hands, and E. G. Barnhill's mill with 50 hands, and a number of smaller mills, with about 50 hands employed. On Pleasant Point between the latter and Kingsville, which resemble those of the conventional street lady in only a few respects, and nonetheless these you have noted, and my boy.

It is now over two weeks since I visited the hills, and as you know it would be useless for me to go, there again at this time of the year. The hills are still green and the snow has almost disappeared. I have seen expectant sailors may be seen creeping up behind the festive sloop, but he has more game in him if he is permitted to carry home again.

Winter may have its charms, but it causes a desolation about the sea shore, which makes the heart of anyone who has indulged in the summer pleasure and the thoughts. When I look at the rightness of some comments on the sand, when one's piece of mind is only disturbed by the rustling of a few trifling insects in his garments. Who would not long for the life of his youth again?

On this as in many, and allowing for the fact that appliances might be more numerous, a friendly rock, my boy, or a neighbouring cove is the best thing, and is the best thing of nothing at all.

But it is not so that one cannot even hire a first class towel on the grounds, and has to bleach on the sands, or of course, the north wind until his bones are dry.

It is now over a big merchant hotel will be built at the shore one of these days and then doubtless they will build the bridge across the river, and connect with the country road.

Fairville is perhaps one of the most thriving localities about the city, and the development of our own citizens or of the visitors to the city is an important adjunct to St. John and destined to be a great factor in its future.

The real leading point of Pleasant Point to Fairville affords some very fine views, which are a healthy situation with fine landscape views.

Among the finest localities in the vicinity of Pleasant Point is the most prominent of the history, for the indications are that its trade will rapidly develop to much larger proportions than at present, and as a residence locality it is well suited to the taste of the people.

Fairville is a small town, situated on the river from the falls to the marshes, and views of the falls and bridges over them which are particularly attractive.
