last century, have been attended with loss of life. "It is stated that when the vessel went down there was built on board to the value of $200,000, but so far only $50,000 has been recovered, and we are now going to try to recover the remainder. "Unfortunately, the weather handicaps us considerably, and during the whole of this year we have not had one really favorable day. As can be easily imagined, when the sea is rough the work is very difficult to carry out, and on one occasion when an attempt was being made with the aid of a diving bell, the waves almost overturned it. "DANGER AT A MINIMUM. "With submarines the danger will be removed, but, nevertheless, on a rough day the shoals of continually moving sand interfere with our work to a great extent, and prevent our getting at the wreck. "On one day, for instance, the sand is all removed from above the wreck, but by the next it is frequently covered up again, and the work has to be begun all over again. "The Lutine now belongs to Lobnitz and we have already placed the order for the building of the necessary apparatus, so that we shall be making operations very shortly. I think they will be successful, and that with the submarine we shall recover all the bullion still remaining in the hold of the ship."

SUBMARINE TO HUNT FOR SUNKEN TREASURE

American Invention Utilized in Effort to Recover Bullion of Lost Warship. LONDON, Sept. 7.—The latest American invention is a submarine for salvaging wrecks, and it will be used in an attempt to save H. M. S. Lutine, which was wrecked off Torshelling Island, on the coast of Holland, in 1729. "The submarine is fitted with a special internal apparatus," said J. Gardner Flood, who will be engaged in this work, "it has regulators, by the aid of which the operator can control the pressure of the air inside, and so make it the same as that of the water. The bottom can then be opened with perfect safety, and the wreck examined with ease. "SURE OF SUCCESS. "I have just returned from the wreck and I think that we shall be successful in our efforts. It is well marked, and is guarded by the local authorities. "There are, naturally, many difficulties to be overcome, one of the greatest being the continual shifting of the sand around the vessel. At some times the wreck is completely covered, and our work is twice as hard. "The Lutine now lies right in the center of a number of dangerous sandbanks, and some of the operations, which have been frequent during the
