The Doom of the Deep

BY L. C. HODGSON. (Written Especially for The Standard.)

Out of the fog and the shrouded night Leaps a shape of terror and fright, Rising hideous up from the deep To break with a shriek o'er the towers of sleep— And rolling death fears o'er the foam: "I give ye the dungeons of death for home!" The great-ice hulk with a sudden wrath Grins with hate from his sunken path And smites the pale on the awful way To plunge it deep in the leering grave.

Out of the chaos the reeking wall Of men and women whose faces pale, And whose hearts grow cold in the face of death Shrivelled and torn in the monster's breast! Are and rich in the face of death To laugh in his face and mock his lust; His gleaming treasures will never buy A glimpse of the sun in the next day's sky.

The peasant mother wakes from the dream That carried her on where the new lands gleam, And gives her again to a young and hearty— The dream that the terror rives apart. Out of the deep with death at the wheel, Together the prince and the pauper kneel, And God looks down on the awful day, That mixes the human in common clay.

Then out of the terror one blazing star Flashes its light o'er the world afar, As man grows man in that awful hour And rises up to a God-like power. Sure and still in the face of death Men smile and say with their last pure breath: "The women first!" and strong clean hands Are clenched to follow the heart's commands.

Rich man and poor man by his side, The little child at his mother's breast Sleeps again, all fear unguessed, And mother and child go safely o'er The hungry sea to a brighter shore. And the men, made heroes in sudden doom, Stands hand in hand on the brink of the tomb— And God looks down to see the end, That he made a man, prove worthy of God.

Tears for the lonely hearts bereft, Tears for the women and children left, Tears for the dead in a sea-side grave, Whose requiem sobs o'er the wind-swept wave— But cheers with the tears—for our own poor sake— Cheers through the tears, though the sad hearts break— Cheers for the manhood born to be Bright as the stars of eternity!

Up with our cheers through the ransomed air, Cheers grown pure as the hush of prayer, That man in the face of death can rise, With steady hand and unflinching eyes, And thrill to the dream that made him man, Comrade with God in scheme and plan! O brothers, the brave that went down at sea Pledged their honor for you and me!

Hongkong, April 23.—The million odd inhabitants of Canton find the new life under military government anything but pleasant. With the city still practically at the mercy of riotous robber soldiers the recent daily suffer severe hardships, and not infrequently the loss of their lives. Under the old regime there was at least a form of trial before anyone was sentenced to death, but now a hand in suppressing the Manchus up north. But this is obviously an excuse which won't hold water, as President Sun has already wired down that there is now no further need for additional men to come up.

Quite a host of job-seekers have been pulling the wires to get the benefits of the said Company at their office at Bathurst afterwards their christian and addresses, and in doing so, the full particulars of their claims, and the nature and amount of the securities, if any, held by them, and the specified value of such securities verified on oath, and in default thereof they will be peremptorily excluded from the benefits of the said Act, and of the winding-up order in this matter.
