London Markets.

London, August 23, 1879. London, August 23, 1879.

Wheat—Since our last report there has been a large quantity of new wheat offered and sold on our market. Quotations have receded slightly, but not to any great extent, and the news from England of another storm more destructive than any of the preceding ones to the English crops will have the effect of strengthening the market. Present prices range from $1.50 to $1.63 for winter wheat; and $1.35 to $1.60 for spring.

Oats.—The market has rapidly declined under the large deliveries of new oats, and to-day the figures ruled from 98c. to $1 per cental.

BARLEY.—Is very slow coming in, and of enough has offered to effect quotations not enough has offered to effect quotations in any respect.

HAY.—Was very short toward the latter end of last week and influenced by the demand went up to $10 per ton in many cases; but this week the receipts have greatly improved, and $8 to $9 were the usual figures paid to-day.

POTATOES.—The supply has been just about equal to the demand, and prices have remained pretty steady at 50c. to 70c. per bag.

APPLES.—Have been abundantly supplied and the varieties on sale increase daily. There is a wide range in prices, as there is a difference in quality, 40c. to 70c. per bag, however, about covers the two extremes

BUTTER .- Although rather more plentiful, is still held at a stiff price. Good rolls will command from 15c. to 17c.;

crocks, 12c. to 14c.

EGS.—Have been fair supply at 8c. to

10c. The tendency of the market, however, is upward, a perceptible falling off in the receipts having taken place.

Note from C. H. Roddy, Norwichville.

To J. G. WILSON:
It gives me great pleasure to testify to the remarkable efficacy of electricity, as applied by you, from your elegant batteries, as a remedy for Paralysis. I was attacked with this graful complaint in my left side on last New Year's day, while skating on the ice, which left me powerless, and during three months was mable to go out of the house, receiving medical attendance all the time. Being advised by Mrs. Caralan, and Mrs. Lanagan, who had received so much benefit from your treatment, I came to London and immediately began the treatment, and in one month received so much benefit that I am now able to attend to business and perform light labor. The rout can enter my name among your list of references, and I shall take pleasure in advising any afflicted, as I have been, to try your excellent mode of treatment, Feeling confident that if you fail to cure, the cure is beyond hope.

N.B.—These certificates of cures are published, not for elsewhere, who already know what the proper qualities of electricity can accomplish, but for those who have not given attention to the Therapeutic uses of Electricity.
