VERY GENTEEL.—A lady of fashion not long since, stepped into a shop, and asked the keeper if he had any Matrimonial baskets, she being too polite to say "cradles."

JOB PRINTING.—"Job printing!" exclaimed an old lady looking over her specs at the advertising page of a Newspaper; "poor Job, they have kept him printing, week after week, ever since I learned to read, and if he was not the most patient man that ever was, he would never have stood it so long."

It was a judicious resolution of a father, as well as a most pleasing compliment to his wife, when, on being asked by a friend what he intended to do with his girls, he replied, "I intend to apprentice them to their mother, that they may learn the art of improving time, and be fitted to become like her—wives, mothers, heads of families, and useful members of society." Equally just, but bitterly painful was the remark of the unhappy husband of a vain, thoughtless, dressy slattern. "It is hard to say it, but if my girls are to have a chance of growing up good for any thing, they must be sent out of the way of their mother's example."
