Canadian Monthly AND NATIONAL REVIEW. EDITED BY G. MERCER ADAM.

1381. Tenth Year of Fublication. 1881. AS one of the founders of THE CANADIAN MONTHLY, and having been more or less connected with it since its first appearance in 1872, the present writer feels a just pride in omphasizing the fact that with the next issue the publication will enter upon its nineteenth colume. That the periodical still lives and makes progress, however slow. is, in view of the mutability of literary ventures in Canada, something, at least, to be thankful for. With a publication of its character, and with a field limited at best, and encroached upon by foreign serials, it was hardly to be expected that, if saved from dissister, its progress would be rapid. That it has maintained itself and won a creditable reputation, $\epsilon$s has been said, is reditable reputation, so has been said, is matter, at any rate, for congratulation. Phose now connected with it feel, how-Those now connected with it feel, how-ever, that the time has come when they may reasonably expect that from now onward the progress of the Magazine will be more marked, and that a heartier sup-port will be given to the undertaking, to justify the continuance of efforts made, but for its enlargement and improvement, and above all for the remuneration (as formerly) of its writers. With the development of national thought, with increasing interest in native literature, and the retur withal, af 'better times,' it is believed the these expectations will be realized, and the desire of Editor and Publishers be attained. Collectively, the friends of the publication can make this matter assured. Iudividually, each can aid in bringing about the desired result. The press, too. can be very helpful. Whatever is accomplished, to the favour and interest of Canadian public, the publishers again commend their enterprise. THE EDITOR.

We have recently published a New Edition of Dr. Culver-well's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nerrous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity Impediments to Marriage, etc., resultin Price, in a sealed envelope, only ents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured with out the dangerous use of internal medicine or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and raducally. Propule tormented by the many disagreesable sensations produced by dyspepsia, or are thin, nervous and weak, should use the standard tonic—Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine. They will find it agree able and beneficial It enriches the blood by aiding digestion and assimilation; soothes and invigorates the nervous system, and imparts a healthy appetite. When used as a remedy for bilious and untermittent fevere, it produces the happiest results, if taken between the attacks. Convalescence is the spiritucus constituent, aberry wine, is of the best quality, and the aromatics combined with it, renders its flavor additionally pleasant. They who use it gain flesh as well as strength, and it exerts a cheering influence upon the mind. It promotes a healthy secretion and flow of bile, sound repose and regularity in the action of the bowels. If judiciously used it may be taken without apprehension of any ill result by persons of the most delicate constitution. A fair trial is all that is needed to prove the genuineness of its claims to public confidence, and to the truth of the general verdict in its behalf. No article of its class commends itself so strongly to nervous invalids who require building up—none is so well adapted to fortify the system against the dangers which threaten the debilitated. It should not be mistaken for a mere stimulant of appetite, which many so-called tonics simply are. It so regulates the stomach that it is enabled to perform its various functions with regularity and vigor, and its action is not only thorough but prompt.
