

Supreme Court.

(In Chambers.)

Before the Chief Justice.
T. F. Collins vs. The Canada Fire Insurance Co.

This was an application on the part of the plaintiff that the plaintiff be at liberty to deliver interrogatories to the defendant and that the General Agent or other proper agent or Officer of the defendant company do answer the interrogatories as presented under Order 25 of the Rules of the Supreme Court, and that the costs of this application be costs in the cause.

Kent, K.C., for plaintiff, was heard in support of the application.

Morhe, K.C., was heard against the application.

Kent, K.C., was heard in reply.
It was ordered that the interrogatories go.

Nickel's Fine Bill.

The Nickel Theatre had usual holiday audiences yesterday, and all were highly pleased with the excellent quality of the entertainment. The Pathe weekly was an artistic treat and of itself worth seeing. It shows the King and Queen of Sweden, visiting the Kaiser, the Sicilians fleeing before the lava, the visit of King George to Scotland and his hearty reception; then Cardinal Gibbons is seen celebrating his jubilee, the parade of Church dignitaries is an interesting one. "Where the Money Went" is a domestic drama amusing and exciting. "His Secretary" is a great drama which "Bannister Morwin" made famous. It is a story which appeals to all and one which never tires. Mr. Thomas sang "I'm twenty-one to-day" again to the delight of all. He will be heard in a new song this evening.

A New Invention

Which Will Revolutionize Motor Engines.

NEW GLASGOW, To-day.
Kerosene may now be used in the FRASER gasoline engine, same as gasoline and with equal results. Mr. Thomas Fraser, President of the Fraser Machine & Motor Co., has just announced to the world that after two years of research and experiments he has found the secret of carburetted kerosene, this vapour equal with gasoline, and that his invention can be attached to all FRASER ENGINES which will give the same results with kerosene as formerly with gasoline. Mr. Fraser will claim the prizes offered by the different societies in London and Paris for an invention to use a cheap fuel to supercede gasoline, owing to the high price of the latter which now sells in European countries at two shillings per gallon.

To Visit Ireland.

Some twenty members of the B. I. S. have got together and formed a club with the object in view of having its members and others who wish to join, go on an excursion to Ireland after the Home Rule Bill becomes law. After the annual meeting of the Society the matter will be taken up in earnest by the club and each will pay in at stated periods a designated sum as a fund to defray expenses. It is a movement which should be very popular in the Society.

McMurdo's Store News.

THURSDAY, Feb. 6, '13.
We have just opened a new line of perfumes which we shall sell on draught. A splendid variety floral extracts, remarkably true in odor and very rich and lasting. You can have almost any floral perfume you want in this line, at the very reasonable price of fifty cents an ounce. Among the names of these perfumes, the following are some of the most popular: Violette de Parme, Carnation, White Lilac, Lily of the Valley, Sweet Pea, Crab Apple Blossom, Wallflower, and Eas. Bouquet, and there are some others.

The W. T. & Co. Special Hot Water Bottle is making good. Everyone is carefully made, and has a patent unloose stopper attached. Each bottle is guaranteed to give at least two years' service, and we will replace any wearing out before that time. Price $2.00 each.

One Hundred Thousand Say 'Tis So.

Of all the engines in the world, Fairbanks is a beauty. 'Tis guaranteed for years to stand, and always does its duty; and now we'll have our readers know, and let them duly note it, one hundred thousand say 'tis so, and to it they're devoted. Fairbanks never yet went wrong, nor couldn't it if it tried it. 'Tis durable, 'tis neat and strong, the rest are 'frogs' beside it. So if an engine you would buy, 'tis up at BARR'S you'll get it; and you may bet it now, my boy, you never will forget it.

Bid Brides Keep House.

Those who think that a career ruins a woman as a home-maker should read her experience as told recently by Mrs. Marie Hemstreet, formerly private secretary to Lyman Abbott, now, besides her reputation for poetry, famous as cook and housewife.

"How can I make my husband happy when I don't know how to cook, nor make a bed, nor propel a vacuum cleaner?" she queried, tearfully, at her wedding.

"Fudge!" replied her best friend.

"Aren't you intelligent?"

"I don't know," was the tremulous answer. "I believe some people think so."

"Then use your intelligence. An intelligent woman can solve any problem that's solvable."

Mrs. Hemstreet learned to cook and is proud of her self-taught accomplishment. "I am more proud of a good dinner than of any verses I ever wrote," she said, the ring of conviction in her voice. Like all other women who think rationally, Mrs. Hemstreet has a message to other women. It is this practical one:

"A woman needn't stay single because she has never learned to keep house. If she uses her intelligence she can learn to do the work well. She may even be better prepared for it than the girl who has been pottering around the kitchen all her life. She will have no bad habits to unlearn. For the girl who is untrained it holds interest and novelty. That will furnish a certain zest and excitement. She will be interested in it. She won't be so liable to think of it as drudgery, as will the girl who has been at it all her life.

"Every woman should start a home, be it ever so small, when she marries. It is the only place in the world where she can be independent. There's no other place, restaurant, store, office, factory or friend's home, where we are not under orders.

"I think I can best help girls who want to marry, but are frightened at the prospect of keeping house, by telling them of my own experience. I was the daughter of an army officer, and was born in a western garrison. My mother had never kept house, nor had my grandmother. So I inherited no equipment for home-making. I married a man whose work kept him busy from 5 o'clock in the afternoon until 2 in the morning. Those ghastly hours I spent in learning how to cook.

"There was no one to give me cooking lessons. With my cook book on my knees or at my elbow, I sat and studied the strange pages. When I thought I had absorbed enough theory I started on the practice, and by the time my husband returned I had our breakfast or supper ready. I kept up this cook book study and practice for two years. At the end of that time our friends began to praise my cooking. I got a reputation of which I am proud, for I learned it literally by midnight study of the cook book.

"And it was well worth while. Cooking is not drudgery. It is a vast, interesting branch of household duty. It is the backbone of the household.

"I would advise every young wife to learn cookery by cooking, and I would advise her to be her own cook.

"Being your own cook saves waste in three directions. First, there is the waste of the cook's wages. Second, there is the waste of her food. Third, the waste of her cooking. For if you use your own materials in cooking you can and will save much that the cook is likely to throw away. There is a fourth waste—that of your own nervous energy. I have a friend who keeps a cook and when she gives a dinner she does four-fifths of the work. She prepares her own salads, makes her own salad dressing, makes her own dessert, sets her own table. If she did it all she would know it was being done right and her face would not wear the trained, worried, 'I wonder-what-the-cook's-about-now' look.

"Then there is the waste of time in teaching cooks your way of doing things. Why conduct a kindergarten in the kitchen when you want to be with your husband? There is a reason better than all these for knowing how to cook and doing your own cooking. It pleases your husband. A good dinner stands highest in the list of how to keep him.

"Learning to cook adds to the interest of living. I think we would better adopt the old-fashioned standard of living in one respect, that is, every woman a housekeeper and cook. I hate clubs, but to help a friend out I acted as marker and general factotum at her euchre club, and what I heard convinced me of the need of that standard. The women were all married and each one spent at least four afternoons a week at cards. It failed even to promote a social spirit in them for I heard them complaining of the prizes. One said: 'We might as well have stayed at home if this is all we get.' As well, thought I, a thousand times better, especially for the sake of your homes."

"I do not believe a woman should be housebound. But I know that if she systematizes her work she need not be. I do all my own work, because I wish to, in an apartment of seven rooms, and I have trained myself to finish all my work and be ready for my bath by 11 o'clock.

"I bathe and dress and am ready at 12 to go out and meet my friends. go to the market, shop, or do whatever errands are connected with housekeeping. Foresight and forethought will simplify housekeeping. For instance, cooking meats and vegetables en casserole will provide you with food by noon of one day until 5 o'clock the next. At 4 o'clock I am ready to come home. Dinner takes on large proportions in my life. It is a big event, the helm, so to speak, in the home ship. If I happen to be at the beach, I may not want to leave the shore, but I want more, to have a good dinner for my husband as soon as he gets home. I have had four hours for outdoor exercise, for social recreation, and that is enough. Our husbands don't get so much.

"I don't like to be baffled by a situation, and I am glad housekeeping did not not baffle me. Any woman can conquer the housekeeping situation by the use of her intelligence. Intelligence will teach her how and foresight will make housekeeping easy.

"No bride need board because she thinks it cheaper. Better have a little home and save on household supplies.

"Another reason for being your own cook and housekeeper is that housekeeping is the best of exercise for women. If I awake in the doldrums and have a fancy for staying in bed, I get up, go about that house attending to this or that and in an hour I am feeling as well as I ever did in my life."

Attack Gallipoli Forts.

Special Evening Telegram. LONDON, To-day.

The Bulgarians are devoting their entire attention to attempt to capture the Gallipoli Peninsula, so as to take the Turkish Forts in the rear. An official despatch, issued at Constantinople, indicates the Bulgarians have been successful in their first operations in the latter quarter. According to a Sofia despatch, the capture of Gallipoli is the chief object of Bulgarian ambition. For the time being no serious attempt will be made to force the Thetalia lines. The same despatch says the Bulgarian attack on Gallipoli is supported by the Greek navy in the Gulf of Saros. If fifty thousand Bulgarians can capture the Turkish forts, there is nothing to prevent the Greek fleet entering the Dardanelles, where, in the opinion of Naval officers, they could easily defeat the inferior Turkish fleet, in which case Constantinople would be at the mercy of the Allies. The statement, attributed to the Greek Premier, that peace will speedily be concluded, tends to confirm the report in European capitals. The Turkish Government is, however, evidently in dire straits for money, even attempting to dispose of Crown jewels and making a desperate attempt to place the Treasury bonds in Turkey, Egypt and among Moslems in India. The Ottoman Consul to Bombay claims to have applications for bonds amounting to $5,000,000. Large reinforcements of some 70,000 men have been sent by the Turks to Gallipoli Peninsula. The army in the Thetalia lines has been reduced to 120,000 men.

Narrowly Escaped Drowning.

Tuesday night late in the midst of the storm which raged the watchman at Franklin & Co's premises had a narrow escape from death. While going his rounds he was thrown overboard with the force of the wind and clinging to the shores. His cries for help were heard by the captain of the Westward who rescued him after much difficulty and in the nick of time as the man was much exhausted.

Fell in Pond.

Yesterday afternoon as Jacob Summers was going over Island Pond, near Topsail, with a load of wood which his horse was hauling, man and beast got out on the thin ice unwittingly and went in. Summers did his best to get out and clinging to the load when his cries attracted men from the foot of the pond who hurried to his aid and rescued him and the animal in an exhausted state. John Mercer and his horse also went through the same pond in the forenoon and these also narrowly escaped drowning.

Train Notes.

Repairs were effected to No. 1 rotary at Kitty's Brook to-day and she goes this evening to clear the Topsails.

No. 2 rotary left Placentia Junction this morning bound west.

The express which left here Sunday left the Quarry at 11 a.m. to-day for Port aux Basques.

An express is due here at 3 a.m. tomorrow from Millerton Junction.

An express leaves here this evening for Port aux Basques.

City of Sydney Here.

The s.s. City of Sydney, Capt. McDonald, arrived from New York and Halifax this morning. From New York to Halifax conditions were moderate, but from the latter port to St. John's strong head winds were experienced, the passage occupying 60 hours. In the vicinity of Cape Race the ship passed through a deal of ice. She brought a large mail, a full general cargo, including a deck load, and as passengers in saloon: Messrs. Paterson and Burke, Miss Bowden and four second class.

Importers Meet.

The Importers' Association will meet this evening to decide as to whether St. Patrick's Day will be observed as a holiday and what day will be fixed. We understand the Association has been asked by the B. I. S. to keep the holiday on Saturday, March 15th. It is not unlikely that the request will be acceded to. If on the contrary the 17th is observed there will be two holidays the same week, viz., the one referred to and Good Friday, so that one of them will have to be dropped.

The motion to reject the Welsh Disestablishment Bill was defeated in the Commons by 247 to 210. The bill then passed the third reading without division. Later it formally passed the first reading in the Lords.

300 Bulgarians Killed.

Special to the Evening Telegram. VIENNA, To-day.

A Constantinople despatch, describing the fighting in the Gallipoli Peninsula, says the sloop Azas bombarded the Bulgarian position at Myrphyto, killing 300 Bulgarians.

A Horrible Campaign.

Special to Evening Telegram. DUNDEE, To-day.

Five postmen were burned, several of them seriously, by the combustion of chemicals contained in letters. As one postman returning from the evening collection of mail from mail boxes emptied his mail on the sorting table in Post Office, the contents instantly burst into flames. A large number of envelopes contained tubes of phosphorus and other highly inflammable chemicals. They were addressed to Premier Asquith, with sheets of paper within, inscribed "Justice for women."

Give Us Bread, But Give Us Roses, Too.

Give us Bread, but give us Roses too. "Bread for all, and roses, too!" is the motto of the Chicago Women Trade Unionists. It is thus interpreted by James Oppenheim in the American Magazine:

As we come marching, marching, in the beauty of the day,

A million darkened kitchens, a thousand mill-lofts gray

Are touched with all the radiance that a sudden sun discloses,

For the people hear us singing "Bread and Roses, Bread and Roses."

As we come marching, marching, we battle, too, for men—

For they are women's children and we mother them again.

Our lives shall not be sweated from birth until life closes—

Hearts starve as well as bodies: Give us Bread, but give us Roses!

As we come marching, marching, unnumbered women dead

Go crying through our singing their ancient song for Bread;

Small art and love and beauty their drudging spirits knew—

Yes, it is bread we fight for—but we fight for roses, too.

As we come marching, marching, we bring the Greater Days—

The rising of the women means the rising of the race—

No more the drudge and idler—ten that toil where one reposes—

But a sharing of life's glories: Bread and Roses, Bread and Roses!

COLLEGE HOCKEY POSTPONED.

The second Inter-Collegiate hockey match, between the Methodists and St. Bon's did not come off at the Prince's Rink to-day, owing to the ice being kept in first class condition for tonight. It will take place Saturday at noon.
