An "Old Timer."

Asks the Public to Attend the Garden Party at Portugal Cove.

On to-morrow afternoon a Garden Party will be held at Portugal Cove for the purpose of raising funds with which to rebuild the Church in that locality. At this particular time many will recall the days when the late Father O'Connor officiated in that parish, for "Cove Sunday" was regarded as an institution that being so popular drew from St. John's on each occasion large gatherings representing all classes of the community. Since then the scene is changed, Fr. O'Connor has passed to his reward, but still the great work of religion goes on, and now the energetic pastor in charge, Rev. Father Goff, asks us to assist him in restoring the little Church to its former beauty. I feel that this request will be heartily responded to, and assure all who go down to the "Cove" on Wednesday a very pleasant afternoon. Buses will leave Rawlin's Cross, and for a very moderate charge will drive "freights" to and from the "Cove." Make to-morrow afternoon a repetition of the time when hundreds drove to the "Cove" on Anniversary Sunday. You will be delighted with the enjoyable drive, the hospitable reception which will be given you, and you will return to the city with the feeling that you have helped along a zealous pastor who is striving to perform a noble work in that little settlement.

The Kaiser's Present to Norway.

The unveiling at Balholm, in Norway, by the German Emperor of the great statue in honor of the ancient Viking, King Bele, took place recently.

During his first visit to Balholm many years ago the Kaiser was struck by the humble character of the Bele mound as compared with the interest which ought legitimately to attach to the tomb of a great Viking. He expressed himself strongly and enthusiastically to his friend, Hans Dahl, a well-known painter, as to the possibilities of the situation. Finally, the project took shape, and the Emperor commissioned the design and construction of an immense statue, symbolic of the old Viking power, and bought a tract of land on the slope of a hill commanding a striking panoramic view of the approaches by water and the surrounding mountains.

Gloucester Prospects Bright.

New York, July 25.—No matter what they do with the tariff in Washington, the supply of fresh fish is going to be plentiful next fall, according to Arthur E. Rowe, of Gloucester, Mass., says the New York Times. Mr. Rowe outfits many of the fishermen of Gloucester, and is in the fish business himself. And Gloucester, in spite of its woes of last autumn, has good prospects of making a little money still, in the words of its visiting citizen.

"The chances for making a dollar or two in Gloucester are now brighter than for a long time," said Mr. Rowe. "I would say this is on account of the fact that large bodies of mackerel and other fish are being seen on the grounds near the South Shoal Lighthouse and the Channel, indicating that there will be plenty of fish in the fall. Last winter and spring our vessels did well, and the outlook is encouraging for the captains and others paying up their obligations. You see, in 1912 everybody had got pretty well tied up. There was a terrible amount of bad weather and high seas, and fishermen were not able to make big catches. People have taken to eating a great deal more fish nowadays, as one direct consequence of the fish or cost of meat. Not only is this true in households, but they tell you in restaurants that their patrons are ordering fish every day. Instead of the one day in the week when it was considered the thing to take something that was not meat. Then the facilities for transporting fish have been so improved that the fish may be delivered in any city in far better condition than used to be possible. In Gloucester the fishing fleet has diminished considerably over other years. Because so many vessels have been sold, the reason for that being it was next to impossible to get captains and crews. So many skippers and sailors deserted the water last winter. Those that stuck to their craft through the winter have made money.

"New York is a big market for Gloucester halibut and other fresh fish," admitted Mr. Rowe, "but our salt fish go all over the country. One question that is agitating Gloucester just now is that of the gill netters. Some assert that gill nets are injurious to our general fishing interests, because they catch the mother fish when they are in spawn. I understand that a fish will not bite at a hook when in that condition. The fishing with gill nets began in Gloucester waters two years ago, when fishermen came from the Great Lakes where it is claimed they had destroyed the fishing grounds by this kind of fishing. Another question that is being agitated is that of auto-trawling—whether dragging scrapers over fishing grounds is not a disadvantage to fishing. This is to be settled by the United States Fishing Commission. Local opinion is much divided on the subject."—N. Y. Fishing Gazette.

Clareville Notes.

Mr. George James, business man of Clareville, has recently been suffering from an illness of an internal nature, but a change for the better has taken place, and with his usual push and energy he is looking up well for a good business season. May a kind Providence overshadow him and guide him through.

New Buildings.

There are several new dwelling houses now in Clareville in an unfinished condition, but the owners are rushing them with all possible speed.

Mr. E. B. Summers is building a splendid new residence, using all properly dimensioned lumber. "Uncle Ern" is an industrious man, and when he starts it is hard to tell where he will stop. The people of Clareville procure the most of their building material from the factory at Carbonear, where they say much lower rates prevail than at this city. It is not wrong to say that during the past few years lumber prices have gone beyond all reasonable limits. Still another factory is needed at St. John's to regulate competition and keep prices within reasonable limits.

The friends in Clareville, are struck on the live fox industry, or, in other words, fox farming, and they express a very strong feeling for game laws that will in a very special manner guard the interests of the people against the misuse of privileges purchased by people from other countries. They say that the large stags that ought to be protected for the common good of our native sportsmen, are slaughtered for their antlers by foreign sportsmen, and that the other class of deer are deteriorating very rapidly. It cannot be hoped that any material good will accrue to the Colony from the paltry few dollars paid by sportsmen for the privilege of so often abused by them.

There is nothing more crude or more unsuited for any purpose under the sun than our present "Game Laws," and the sooner they are substituted by a system that will have in view, principally and chiefly, the good of the people, and the comfort and convenience of the homes of the people, the better will it be for all concerned. "Uncle George" is a reliable authority on matters of this nature and the opinions of men like him ought to be taken before such laws receive legislative sanction. It has been proved over and over again that the Beaver Preservation Act is nothing better than a surprising legislative absurdity.—Com.

The s.s. Stephano arrived at Halifax yesterday from this port. The run occupied 42 hours.

Better Days.

Summer rapidly is trotting to the dump where years are rotting, and we soon may cease our sweating, cease our wild despairing, cease our tanning, and our tearing, cease our sweating and our swearing underneath the blazing skies. Thus it is with every evil from limbo down to weevil; all things pass, and so, better say, when things are rocky, when the world seems jasperwocky, and all our mules are acting balky: "All our troubles soon will fit!" Mundane things are ever passing, so there is no use alasing, and there is no sense in sassing Madame Fortune day by day; all the ills we rant and kick at, all the woes we throw a brick at, all the griefs we stall and stick at, soon, full soon, will pass away. When we're hot, we surely show it, saying things to shock a poet, rude things—then, before we know it, summer has gone up the flame; having quit this thing of frying, we, with blizzards round us, flying, watch the wintry weather, sighing in a brand new kind of gloom.

Amusing Errors in Official Reports.

To the list of misprints in official documents must be added the delicious sentence which appeared in the final report of the Viscose Commission issued last year: "We now see a marmot, the spinal cord of which had previously been divided by a vissector." This should have read according to a Parliamentary paper circulated subsequently: "We once saw a marmot, the spinal cord of which had previously been divided, bite a vissector."

A little slip in the 1907 edition of the Royal Warrant detailing the various Army rates of pay also necessitated the printing and promulgation of an official correction. In that warrant, under the heading: "Daily Rates of Pay," appeared: "Field Marshal Commanding in Chief Mediterranean, £5,000." This gave to the Duke of Connaught the generous remuneration of nearly £2,000,000 a year until the correction explained that "daily rate" in this case should have been "yearly rate."
