Yours very truly,

JOHN S. MUNN,

Dance frocks are extremely full in the skirt.

Always Busy.

I called on James Augustus Jinks, a carpenter of fame, to make a pair of kitchen sinks, and mend a quilting frame. "I cannot come right now," he said, "your little chores to do; I have so much work ahead, the end is not in view. My time for weeks ahead is filled, I'm wanted everywhere; I have all sorts of shacks to build, and others to repair." A hundred workmen in the town are saying times are bad; they say they chase all chances down, and cannot earn a scud. And if per chance one gets a job, he works not with his might, but talks of how employers rob the poor man, left and right. If he is chopping down a tree, his strokes are soft and slow; he fears to make a noise lest he won't hear the whistle blow. He does as little as he can throughout his working day, but he's an energetic man when calling for his pay. I don't believe that any gent who works with might and main, intent on earning every cent, has reason to complain. The world will hunt him to his lair to hire his skill and vim; he doesn't seek work in despair, for work is seeking him.

Hardships of Mailmen

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—

To drive a daily service over the bleak barren country between Branch and Patrick's Cove in winter is no soft job. On the 23rd inst., in the full fury of a blizzard the mail couriers have returned without the driver, leaving him in the country between Branch and St. Brice's. The courier was proceeding on his way when he was overtaken by the storm about four miles from home, the snow falling so thick together with a gale of wind. The horse going too near the ditch caused the buggy to overturn throwing the driver out. The horse bolted and turned homewards leaving the driver in the country in a blinding snow storm then raging. When the horse returned without the driver quite a commotion arose among the people; however a search at once started and the driver was met at the entrance of the place after making his way through the blizzard. Nickel Leads With Big Show To-day.

See Ancient and Modern Love Making.

The Nickel Theatre has begun the New Year well. The reputation it has gained for bright, high class and entertaining performances will be sustained during the present year, for the Nickel handles nothing but the best.

The films are by the best companies in both the old and new worlds; the musicians need nothing said in their favour because it is a well known fact that no moving picture house in the world has better artists or even as good as Prof. McCarthy, at the piano and Joe Ross at the "effect" man.

The Nickel always aims, too, to get the best plays. To-day there is a big entertainment, every picture being of the finest quality. There are two two part films. One is by the Pathe artists and is called "Rece Memories." It is an unusual story, telling tales of rivalry in love in two existences—prehistoric and modern.

This picture was first presented in Paris where it had wonderful success, and it has been very highly spoken of by the press in all the cities it has been presented.

The other two reels is a Keystone comedy. This is a new departure, and of course the Nickel leads again. It is entitled: "In the Cutches of the Gang," and is a howler from start to finish. Patty Arabuckie, Ford Sterling and the Keystone cops appear in it. There will also be a Hearst-Selig News Pictorial, showing the best news items of the world, and a thrilling melodrama: "Reconciled in Blood."

Melo-dramas appeal to everyone and to-day is one of the finest ever seen here.

Miss Margaret Ayer will be heard in another dainty ballad. To our readers we say don't miss to-day's Nickel or you will be sorry.

"The Shadows of Life"

At The Crescent To-Day.

The most famous stars in moving pictures appear only in the "Universal" releases, and are always to be seen at the Crescent Picture Palace.

To-day Lois Weber and Philip Smalley are featured in a great Rex masterpiece: "The Shadows of Life." This great drama is produced by the Smalleys and both the acting and photography is the perfect kind we expect and get from these famous artists.

A Japanese story of love and revenge is told in "The Spider" a beautifully colored film, acted by all Japanese artists.

"The Holy City of Japan" is an interesting and instructive topical depicting Japanese customs and people. A lively I. M. P. Comedy full of fun is "Testing Bill's Courage." Bill proves he is made of the right stuff when put to the test even if he does brag a bit.

J. O'Neill Farrell, baritone, sings a new song to-day, one that is sure to please the Crescent patrons.

On Wednesday "The Tale of a Lonely Coast" will be the head liner.

A Chapter of Fires.

Congregational Church.

Shortly after six o'clock yesterday morning a still alarm summoned the Central and Eastern Fire Companies to the Congregational Church, on Queen's Road, where the woodwork in the upper portion of the building had ignited by the overheating of the brick in the chimney. The firemen were quickly on the scene, and in the height of a blinding snow storm, fought the blaze until it was supposed to be extinguished, but shortly after returning to their halls a second call was given, this time the fire bursting through the roof. In some unaccountable way a spark must have found its way inside the ceiling. The firemen worked assiduously for over an hour before completely quenching the flames. The damage caused to the building by fire and water was considerable, and much of the plastering had to be destroyed in order to cope with the flames which would have no doubt ended disastrously but for Mr. Perlman, who first noticed the fire from his residence on the opposite side of the street.

Pleasant Street.

At 4:50 p.m. an alarm from Box 37 summoned the Central and Western Companies to the head of Pleasant Street, where a slight fire was discovered at the residence of Capt. Goochie. The blaze was caused by a defective chimney and was extinguished before any serious damage was done.

Belvidere Orphanage.

Before the "all out" signal was sent in from Pleasant Street, the firemen were again called from the private box at St. Michael's Orphanage, Belvidere, where a quantity of wood in the grate had ignited. The blaze was extinguished promptly before any damage was done.

Barnes' Road.

At 5:20 p.m. an alarm from Box 229 summoned the Central and Eastern Companies to the residence of Mr. E. Purinton, Barnes' Road, where a slight chimney fire had occurred. A few buckets of water served to quench the blaze before any damage was done.

The firemen certainly had a busy day yesterday, and their position was not an enviable one. Several times the horses became blocked by the drifts which had piled to a height of six feet in many places. The promptness with which they responded to all the alarms which came in rapid succession is worthy of special mention and citizens owe much of the safety which they now enjoy, to the efficiency of our Fire Department. It is to be regretted that the firemen do not commensurate with the service they perform.

Doctors and Gas Fires

In an article which recently appeared in the London "Evening News," Mr. W. G. Faulkner stated: "In making my inquiries I discovered one significant fact. That one company—the Gas Light and Coke Company—had among their consumers 2,500 doctors who had gas fires installed in their houses, some as many as ten or a dozen; that 1,500 of these doctors had become users of gas during the past three years; and that not one had ever given them up."

Professor C. V. Boys, F.R.S., says, in the "Standard": "Sentiment and inertia are the only obstacles against the general adoption of gas fires and cooking appliances. Wonderful strides have been made, in spite of deep-rooted prejudices. A gas fire, burning with a blue, is an admirable agent for heating a room; and, as a scientist, I fail to understand how such a gas fire dries the air in a room more than any other fire."—Nov 17, '14

Britain's Navy.

Every day it becomes plainer that if Germany is beaten she will owe her defeat to the United Kingdom. Evidence daily becomes stronger, furthermore, to show that if Germany is beaten she will owe her defeat less to the British army than to the British navy. British troops, to be sure, stopped the rush on Paris. Without the British contingent it is probable the French army would have been overwhelmed ere this by the German forces that swept over Belgium and into France and are still keeping the conflict in foreign territory. It may be the new troops the British are training will turn the tide when they take the field. Without the British navy, however, not one British regiment could have traversed the English channel and not one of the fleets of troops that have carried Canadian, Australian and Indian reinforcements could have crossed the thousands of miles of salt water—Buffalo Enquirer.

Newfoundland Mourns

THE DEATH OF ONE OF HER YOUNG SOLDIERS.

The sad news of the death of Jack Chaplin, of the First Newfoundland Regiment, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Chaplin, comes as a severe blow to the young lad's parents, who have the sincere sympathy of all Newfoundlanders. His is the first name to be recorded on the Immortal Honor Roll of the Newfoundland Regiment, and on this account Newfoundlanders, while expressing deep sympathy with the grief-stricken parents, will remember with pride the young volunteer, who though not at the firing line, died as a soldier in the service of his country.

The first news came on Saturday afternoon last from the Commander of the Regiment, Colonel R. de H. Burton, to Rev. Dr. Cowperthwaite, who announced the sad tidings to Mr. and Mrs. Chaplin. Before the grief-stricken parents had fully realized what the sad news meant, a letter from their boy, written on Dec. 11th, arrived, which added to their cup of sorrow. In the letter Jack cheerfully told of his experiences at Fort George, and sent some pictures of the surroundings.

John F. Chaplin was a member of the Methodist Guards, and was one of the youngest and most enthusiastic of the volunteers. He was full of youth and vigor and was much beloved by all who knew him. His death was due to abdominal trouble, according to the message received from the Commander of the Regiment. The following message from Captain Weston March was received by Mr. Lloyd Chaplin last evening in response to a cable of enquiry:

"Jack was out on Christmas Day. He was admitted to hospital on Dec. 27th. On the 28th his condition was normal. On the 29th, condition changed for the worse. On the 30th it was more serious. On the 31st, very serious. He was then semi-unconscious, gradually passing to unconsciousness. He died at 10:40 on New Year's Day. Suffered no pain. Everything possible was done for him. He was seen by the London doctor of the First Hospital Regiment. Extending greatest sympathy to family.—Weston March."

Amongst the first to offer condolence to the deceased soldier's parents was His Excellency the Governor, Lieut.-Colonel Sir W. E. Davidson, whose sympathetic letter did much to alleviate their great sorrow. The Chief of the Clan Davidson lives quite near Fort George, and His Excellency has expressed his intention to visit the grave on his next visit home. The young soldier will, to quote His Excellency's words, "rest in the military cemetery looking over the Moray Firth where so many brave soldiers have been buried with Highland honors during many generations."
