STOCK MARKETS. New York, Nov. 10—Noon.—Pessimism is rampant on the floor today, and the market reflects it fully. With the exception of the tractions, the whole list has been weak during the foreneen, with the pressure especially in the Steel stocks and the railroad trunk lines. Further low records for Steel were established, the common selling down to 10, and the pressure was not much in and prices were steady. common selling down to 10, and the preferred broke at 50. No one can give legitimate reasons for the weakness, but there is a disposition among insiders to lay the greater part of the trouble to lay the greater part of the greater par the stock conversion plan. There is dis-satisfaction in certain quarters in this point, and subsequent developments in ar-rangement of committees are stated as a quoted. committees can be undoubtedly traced to that cause. Traction stocks, as already noted, were very strong. Pennsylvania was notably weak. Reading was a weak stock also, although
