PRAIRIES LOOKING BETTER.

Heavy stocks of Canadian grain that went to Minneapolis mills in anticipation of the U. S. duty being raised have not prevented some movement in that direction, and export orders from the trade must find a market for in the and fifty million bushels of grain in store and through the prairies that the trade must find a market for in the next four months. This has tied up a lot of cash.

Retail trade on the prairies is showing more than usual movement for the spring opening. There has been an increased inquiry for farm lands among dealers, and much of this has come from the central states.

Freight business from the east is registering much heavier than for the same time last year, though in the passenger department there is not so much to be said.
