

LONDON SOUTH DROPS PLAN OF SCHOOL PROTEST

TEACHERS FEEL PLAN WOULD END ALL UNIT SCHEME

Question Will Be Left For the Aldermen To Reach Decision.

ACTION NEXT YEAR

Realizing the futility of making a sectional question of the high school situation, residents of South London have abandoned plans to petition the council protesting against the decision of the board of education which named East London as the site for the new high school.

Rather than create bad feeling and possibly influence the council to throw out the board's recommendation, South London citizens have decided not to send a delegation to the aldermen Wednesday night, when the trustees' proposal will either be rejected or ratified. Although they still consider South London the logical location for a new college, they feel that any action on behalf of South London residents will only make the high school problem more involved.

An impromptu meeting of the South London Teachers' Association was held last evening. It was determined to stand behind the trustees in their selection of East London as the college site.

"Of course, we would rather have the school in South London," a member of the association said, "but we feel that if we do anything we might spoil East London's chances and not gain anything ourselves."

Another stated that if East London were provided with a new college, the chances of South London for a new school in a year or so would be very good. It was decided, East London might not get a school at all, and South London youngsters would be no better off than formerly.

"If we saw any hope of getting the school in this section of the city we would take action," he said, "but as things stand, I don't think there is much chance just now. We will endorse the proposal of the trustees."

MIDDLESEX SEEDING NEARS COMPLETION

R. A. Finn of Agricultural Department States Conditions Are Very Best.

Providing the present weather holds, seeding operations in Middlesex County will be pretty well finished at the end of the week, R. A. Finn, of the department of agriculture, stated today.

Mr. Finn pointed out that similar conditions existed two years ago, and that the season is at least two weeks ahead of last year. He did not consider there was any cause for alarm at the present time.

"Of course, oats planted in the middle of May will hardly yield the crop, but I have known oats sowed as late as May 24 to give excellent returns. If the weather is favorable from now on there is no reason why crops should not be a little more than average," concluded the district representative.

Prisoners Wail As Cook Bailed

Inmates at Dawson Castle Looked Forward to Fine Meals.

Prisoners at the county jail have come to the conclusion that they are surely out of luck. The word was whispered from corridor to corridor that the meals at the jail were due for considerable improvement owing to the fact that a real Chinese cook, one of the best in local restaurants has been "knocked off" for a jail term. The fine imposed on the cook was a substantial one and not one of the prisoners dreamed that the man would be able to scrape up the necessary cash.

However, several of the prisoner's countrymen came to his rescue and the prisoners have been cheated out of a real chef to prepare their meals.

FERGUSON GIVES PROMISE OF LOWER PRINTING BILLS

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, May 13.—The Telegram today publishes the following in its news columns:

"With a total expenditure of over a quarter of a million dollars for printing and binding in the fiscal year of 1922-1923, the provincial government is laying out more money for this purpose than the Ottawa government finds it necessary to spend for the entire Dominion. Ontario's bills for printing have jumped enormously and Premier Ferguson makes the statement in the Telegram that changes he hopes to institute in the near future will save the province $100,000 annually in its printing bills. That there is room for such a cutting down of expense would seem to follow from analysis of the figures for several years past."

ESTIMATED COSTS VOCATIONAL WORK

Committees Hear Report Which Shows Division by Departments.

COMPARISONS MADE

Special to The Advertiser. St. Thomas, May 12.—A report on the cost of the technical branch of the proposed new composite high school was presented by Dr. Voeden at the joint meeting of the special committees from the board and city council in the city hall this evening.

The equipping of the vocational branch of the high school, which some claim is under-equip, cost $21,987; the Sarnia school, $43,189; the Niagara Falls school, $42,658; the Kitchener-Waterloo school, $47,482. According to the list of requirements prepared by Dr. Voeden, following a tour of these schools last week, it will cost $26,719 for equipment for the St. Thomas school.

The estimated cost of each department is: Machine shop, $9,644; wood-working, $5,932; drafting room, $600; physics and chemistry laboratory, $3,750; domestic science, estimated at $1,000, as some of the old equipment could be moved; type-writing, $1,549; railroad mechanics, an addition strongly advised by the department, with training in steam work, air brakes and other railroad appliances, $500; millinery and dress-making, $644; art, $275; auditorium seats, $2,475; and gymnasium equipment, $950, making a total cost for vocational equipment of $26,719.

Added to these figures, which are below all other cities with the exception of Guelph, is $6,300 for desk, library and office equipment, bringing cost of equipping composite school to $33,519.

The old collegiate would house all academic classes in the second, third and fourth forms, all pupils, however, having to spend one year at least in the vocational high school after passing the entrance examination.

When asked what proportion of the pupils would enter the vocational department, Dr. Voeden thought about a third, with a third in the commercial and a third in the general courses. In Kitchener-Waterloo schools, he explained, only a fifth of the entrance pupils enter the academic work, while 130 out of 300 graduates took up the vocational lines.

Trustee Bains stated that two-thirds of the board were of the opinion that no further demands for school accommodation would be made for at least five years, as the doing away with the kindergarten work would relieve the public schools of 120 "infants."

"The average child under six years of age is assimilated by the kindergarten," he declared, "and they will find themselves out of place in classes of 35 or 40 where the regular primary work is being taken up."

Tom Tom Sounds as Service Compiled From Aboriginal Rites Is Carried Out.

Associated Press Despatch. New York, May 12.—Oskenton, a Canadian Indian, was the central figure in a service compiled from aboriginal rites and ceremonies which was held yesterday afternoon at the church of St. Marks-in-the-Bouwerie under the direction of Rev. Dr. William Guthrie. The service was a continuation of a series of special devotional rituals which occasioned widespread controversy among adherents of the Anglican Church in New York. Dr. Guthrie's refusal to discontinue the service caused Bishop Manning to suspend Dr. Mark's from the list of Episcopal visitations.

The service yesterday consisted of readings from Indian myths, exhortations and incantations, during which an Indian tom-tom was sounded at intervals. Oskenton, attired in the full regalia of a chief, sang an Indian hymn of invocation and rendered the solo parts in several other musical numbers. At the conclusion of the service in the church, Oskenton, carrying his tom-tom, led the clergy and congregation into the church yard, where an Indian ceremonial sacred dance was performed by five young women attired in flowing robes.

Oskenton formerly lived on the Caughnawaga Reserve, and is a graduate of the French Methodist Institute of Montreal. He studied singing in Toronto and New York, and has made a name for himself on the concert stage both here and in London.
