LIV .- TRINITY-SUNDAY. P. M. The Collect.

ALMIGHTY and everlasting God, who hast given unto us Thy servants grace by the confession of a true faith to acknowledge the glory of the eternal Trinity, and in the power of the Divine Majesty to worship the Unity; we beseech Thee, that Thou wouldest keep us steadfast in this faith, and evermore defend us from all adversities, who livest and reignest, one God, world without end. Amen.

The saints of God with joy proclaim
His "holy, blest, and glorious" Name: a
THINE; Father, Son, and Holy Ghost! b
One Lord we praise! One God extol—
One only God—Tri-personal!
JEHOVAH; THOU! our Joy and Boast. c m.d

THE KING OF SAXONY'S VISIT TO CAMBRIDGE.

[The reader will remember that in the summer of the year 1844, His Majesty the King of Saxony honoured Cambridge with a visit, taking up his quarters at the usual abode of Royalty here, Trinity Lodge .-He was attended by a small suite, amongst whom was Dr. C. G. Carus, His Majesty's Physician. Dr. Carus has written a curious and interesting account of the King's visit to England, in which we see ourselves and our institutions with the eyes of an intelligent foreigner. The book of Dr. Carus has been translated into English, and we are happy to avail ourselves of a few passages which relate to Cambridge. The amusing blunders of the Doctor will be apparent enough to Cambridge readers, without specification by Immediately upon driving into the town, we passed the New Museum of Arts, built in the Grecian temple style, but not yet quite finished. This building owes Its origin to a legacy left for the purpose, by the late Earl Fitzwilliam, who bequeathed a sum of £100,000 for its erection. Several of the old colleges next presented their gray walls, crowned with turrets and ornamented gothic panels—the slender Cothic church of St. Mary's was seen; and through the quiet streets, illumined by the evening sun, we drove into the first and richest of the colleges, Trinity, in which, since the days of Queen Elizabeth, it has been the custom for monarchs, as they journey, to sojourn. Our host was Dr. Whewell, the present master.

Almost without any time for preparation, we followed our hospitable host, in order to obtain the elearest possible idea of the buildings and arrangements of this remarkable and celebrated old university. The spacious court of Trinity college, with its yellowish stone colour and lofty old Gothic architecture produces a splendid effect. It was founded in 1546, by Henry VIII. (Cambridge, in general, is so old, as to have been destroyed as early as the ninth century by the Danes.) The college contains about 400 students. The gate, especially, is in beautiful stylelofty, castellated, and ornamented with towers crowned with pinnacles; it harmonises admirably with the ad- ly use, it must become tedious and inaffective, and joining buildings, which are very little lower. MONTREAL TYPE FOUNDRY.

To the Printers and Proprietors of Newspapers in Canada, Nova Scotia, &c. THE Undersigned having purchased the above Establishment, begs to solicit a continuance of the patronage which has been heretofore so liberally bestowed upon him as Agent to the Foundry.

Having revised and greatly added to the material, he can confidently recommend the Type now manufactured by him as equal to any manufactured on this Continent. The services of an experienced practical man have been engaged in the mechanical department, and the Printers in this city are confidently appealed to as to the beauty and quality of the Type now cast in this Foundry.

A specimen will be shortly issued, when the Proprietor will do himself the pleasure of waiting upon the Trade; in the meantime, he will be happy to see or hear from those inclined to give him their support.
