

5th March, 1930.

Isaiah Bowman, Esq.,
Director American Geographical Society,
Broadway at 156th Street,
New York.

My dear Mr. Bowman,

Looking over some old correspondence I ran across your letter of February 4th in which you very kindly told me that you were sending me a copy of the latest edition of "The New World" (this was February 4th of the year 1929). I find that it arrived all right and I have taken it home with me, hoping to read it soon.

Please remember me to Jim Shotwell when you see him. I have not seen him since we were at Honolulu in 1927. Your mention in your letter of the successful issue of the Kellogg-Briand negotiations reminds me that a few weeks ago the Principal of one of our Canadian universities wrote to me urging that I support an agitation initiated by some American universities to secure for Kellogg the Nobel Peace Prize. I refused to have anything to do with that, believing that Mr. Kellogg had received all the credit to which he is entitled, inasmuch as his name will be forever associated with the Pact. You and I know that he had very little to do with the initiation of the negotiations, and in fact only took them up after some pressure. I wrote back to my friends and said that Shotwell deserved far more credit for the Pact than Kellogg. I should