"It was in this portion of China that the great famine occurred three years ago. Thousands died. One would have ago. Thousands died. One would have expected the officials to deepen the canals and prevent a recurrence of famine. But nothing was done. A year ago (not a famine year) there were twelve thousand refugees at Chinkiang thruout the winter. We Chinkiang thruout the winter. We missionaries spent several weeks distributing rice to them. The conditions were heart-rending. Early each morning thousands of men, women and children gathered at the distributing point. Scores of Chinese police maintained a semblance of order by beating the people over the head with bamboo sticks. Some days the rain fell in torrents and the refugees stood shivering in mud a foot deep. During shivering in mud a foot deep. During one of these cold, rainy mornings a child was born in the midst of the mob. An heur or so later the mother, was up and with the child and a sack of rice she was off to her straw-mat shelter a half mile distant!

ROYAL Baking Powder Economy

The manufacturers of Royal Baking Powder have always declined to produce a cheap baking powder at the sacrifice of quality.

Royal Baking Powder is made from pure grape cream of tartar, and is the embodiment of all the excellence possible to be attained in the highest class baking powder.

Royal Baking Powder costs only a fair price, and is more economical at its price than any other leavening agent, because of the superlative quality and absolute wholesomeness of the food it makes.

Mixtures made in imitation of baking powders, but containing alum, are frequently distributed from door to door, or given away in grocery stores. Such mixtures are dangerous to use in food. In England, France, Germany and some sections of the United States their sale is prohibited by L.w. Alum is a dangerous mineral acid, and all physicians condemn baking powders containing it.

The label of alum baking powders must show the ingredients.
