When he passed his 18th birthday, Mr. Russell found an opportunity to come East, and then for the first time saw Joe Jef. ferson and other first-class comedians in various roles. "It was a revelation to me," said Mr. Russell, "in the direction of re-fined comedy, and from that time I date in a very tentative way."
When asked how he regarded the old com-dies as compared with the modern come-dies, in which he has achieved his later fame, Mr. Russell replied: "The old come-dies are the 'summa cum lande' of the the mand done them well, he has no claim to the highest rank. When I can have the satisfaction of a success in this line I an willing to throw away all that has gone before and let my fame rest on that.
