IMMIGRATION DISCUSSED AT WOMEN'S MEET

Keeping Canadians Home Declared Best—Saint John Institute Session

Halloween toys were presented by the members of the Saint John Women's Institute when they responded to the roll call at their monthly meeting in the Health Centre yesterday afternoon and these toys, with some very nice warm garments and attractive dresses, not to forget a kiddie car, are all to go to the small folk in the Children's Aid Home for a Halloween gift.

Mrs. T. N. Vincent, president, was in the chair and the meeting was largely attended. The chief topic of interest at the meeting was the discussion of matters to be brought before the provincial advisory board which is meeting in Fredericton this week and which Mrs. Richard Hooper, of Saint John, one of the members of the board will attend.

The subject of immigration regulations was discussed at length and the Saint John Institute was of the opinion that the Women's Institute of Canada should formulate a statement regarding immigration to submit to any Dominion convention, arranged by Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration.

The meeting advocated having funds advanced to new settlers on the land in order that they might be helped in getting on their feet; the meeting also expressed the opinion that keeping Canadians at home was a better means of obtaining population than bringing in immigrants. Suggestions with regard to the nature of the Women's Institute exhibits for the Saint John exhibition and for the National Exhibition in Toronto next year were also brought forward for submission to the advisory board meeting.

Arrangements were made for holding a rummage sale on Nov. 18 as a means of raising funds and plans were completed for assisting the Saint John Health Centre on its task for the coming Saturday by taking charge of the refreshments for the workers. Mrs. J. W. V. Lawlor, its convener of the committee in charge, met a week earlier as the regular date falls on Thanksgiving Day.

A letter from a member of the Institute, Mrs. J. J. McDermott, written from Florida, gave a graphic account of the recent disastrous storm experienced there and was heard with great interest by the members.

PRINCIPALS IN McPHERSON CASE

More than usual Canadian interests attaches to the preliminary hearing of the charges against Almee Semple McPherson at Los Angeles from the fact that she is a Canadian by birth, having lived till young womanhood near Ingersoll, Ontario. She is remembered as a remarkably handsome girl with wonderful copper-hued hair and a peach-bloom complexion. The man shown in the cut is Kenneth Orlin, the elusive plexion. ## MARY CARR AND BIG CAST AT THE UNIQUE

The Parasite Brings Out Gripping Story Played by Notables of Screen

It is not very often that the motion picture public is given a view through a magnifying glass into what might be termed "The inner realities of life." This is being offered now at the Unique Theatre, when "The Parasite," which is a filmation of Helen R. Martin's novel of the same name is being presented.

As a rule novels lose somewhat when they are converted into screen material. Not so in "The Parasite." Its presentation on the screen has added new lustre to it, and given it added life and vigor.

To all this substance enough for the strongest type of drama, the producer had the material for one of the finest and sweetest love stories ever told in pictures. Of the material, the fullest advantage was taken.

"The Parasite" presents the high-water mark in picturedom. It tells the story of a young girl's struggle to retain her social position, against the sharp advances of poverty. Interviewed in this is her love for the father of a motherless child, who has chosen her of all others, upon whom to shower his childish affections.

Admirable work is done by the all-star cast, which includes Madge Bellamy, as the parasite—a misnomer, as it turns out; Owen Moore, young district attorney, whose passionate love for his motherless son blinds him at first to the real big love of his life; Lilyan Tashman, statuesque and beautiful, who plays the role of the ex-wife, scheming to get back the man she so foolishly divorced.

Dwight Washburn, Bryant Washburn, the villain, but a sympathetic one, because his villainy is predicated by his love for the girl. Mary Carr is a patient, lovable mother, and Bruce Guerin, the boy, five years old, whose tiny fingers twine around the heart of his father and the "parasite" with the result that they later find love and happiness in one another. Altogether an admirable cast and admirable picture.

YANKS' PLAYERS AWAY TO CANADA

To Hunt Moose in Quebec; Ruth Off to See Sick Boy

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Baseball Commissioner Landis took his pen in hand to sign world's series checks, while the victorious Cardinals and the defeated Yankees were homeward bound or vacation bent. It was indicated that some of the money would go for sporting rifles, and ammunition. Canadian moose and caribou are the objectives of an expedition personally conducted by Bob Shawkey. The Yankee pitcher will lead his party to St. Pelicien, 200 miles north of Quebec. Shawkey, "Sad Sam" Jones, Mark Koenig and Bennie Bengough, of the Yankees, Eddie Collins, manager of the Chicago White Sox, and Joe Bush, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, left here tonight.

Babe Ruth, Herb Pennock, Hollis Thurston and Fred Hoffman may also join the Shawkey invasion of Canada. If the handshaking they met with in St. Louis last night does not incapacitate them from lifting guns to their shoulders, Jesse Haines and Arthur Reinhart will accompany Grover Cleveland Alexander to Grand Island, Neb., for a hunting trip.

Today Babe Ruth went to Essex Falls, N. J., to see Johnny Sylvester, the ten-year-old boy whose appeal from his sick bed for home runs helped the Bambino smash four on the nose.

The Yankee slugger brought Johnny an autographed ball and told him to hustle up and get well "so that you can see the Yankees play next year."

Wall street tallied up some financial affairs today and found out that there was more money changed hands over the world's series, this year than ever before. It was about $20,000,000 they figured, of which $2,000,000 was

Horse and Driver Swept Off Wharf

SHEDIAC, Oct. 11.—A horse attached to a delivery wagon, owned by Albert C. Leger, local merchant, and driven by Adelard Fougere, went overboard from the Shediac wharf during a high tide on Saturday. Fougere jumped and escaped a wetting or worse. Men in a boat cut the harness and when freed from the wagon the horse swam ashore to safety. The wagon sank in six feet of water.

CANADIAN PACIFIC WINTER TRAFFIC

Five Sailings From Here in Second and Third Week in December

MONTREAL, Oct. 11.—As was the case last year, five Canadian Pacific liners will sail from Saint John in the second and third weeks of December to handle the heavy flow of holiday traffic from the winter port to Europe. Should the rush of Canadians going to their old homes for Christmas reach the proportions of last year, the five liners will all be well filled when they start eastward. As years passed in the Canadian West by former immigrants increase, the new Canadians' relative prosperity also increases, so that from year to year the number of prairie farmers able to afford a trip across the ocean becomes greater. The Scotch element, as one would expect, finds its way back to the land of cakes if the least opportunity affords, and bulks large in the total Christmas traffic, while other Britishers seem to retain as warm a spot in their hearts for the Old Country. Another element is that of the French and Belgians, who probably lead those with ties to the Continent in the numbers which travel to Europe. New Year's, however, more than Christmas, is the great holiday for these travellers.

White Coal

NO other single factor has done so much toward the upbuilding of Canadian industry as the abundance of inexpensive hydro-electric power.

Canada has, with one exception, the greatest per capita water-power development of any nation in the world. The estimated total production of horse-power would be the annual equivalent of 29,000,000 tons of coal.

The Queenston-Chippawa development alone possesses an ultimate capacity of 550,000 horsepower. In this plant may be seen some of the largest generators and turbines in the world. The Canadian General Electric Company is responsible for developing and manufacturing much of the electrical generating equipment in use in Canadian power-plants at the present time, as well as the varied apparatus required for the transmission of electric current.

Thus it will be seen that Canadian General Electric Company has been privileged to make a very definite contribution to the welfare of Canadian industry—by assisting in the transformation of "white water" into "white coal."
