

CHURCH WARFARE IN N. Y. RESUMED

Christmas Truce of Fundamentalists and Modernists Comes to End.

(Canadian Press) New York, Dec. 31.—The Christmas truce in the "warfare" between the Fundamentalists and the Modernist faction of the Protestant Episcopal Church ended abruptly yesterday. Indications of a renewal of the strife were seen when the Modernists announced that peace could come in the existing church schism only if the Fundamentalists were prepared to grant them liberty of thought and their own place in the church as loyal sons. This manifesto, contained in a statement issued by Dr. Stuart T. Lyon, vice-president of the Modern Churchmen's Union, was in answer to an announcement made on Friday that had a dozen bishops, including Bishop Manning and Bishop Lawrence, had met with prominent laymen of the church in the first series of conferences designed to end the controversy. Dr. Lyon said his organization had not been invited to attend the conference.

RAISED $153

The Union church at Point Le Marchant has been burned recently, the money raised at a pie social was diverted to the needs of a new school house, which is in course of erection. It was felt that the school house which had already been burned should be replaced first, as this edifice could be used for worship, until a new church could be built. THE ROTARIANS WERE BOYS AGAIN

Entertained 250 Boys' Club Members at Dinner Saturday Evening.

"I just want to tell you how glad we are to have you with us tonight, and to wish you all good fortune. I hope some of you will grow up to be mayors and presidents of the Rotary Clubs." This was the substance of the very brief but very hearty welcome extended on behalf of the Rotary Club by Canon Armstrong, its president, to about two hundred and fifty members of the south and east end boys' clubs in Pythian Hall on Saturday evening. The Rotarians themselves were in force. They were boys again, for this special occasion. They had so complete an organization that from the moment the boys arrived at the door they were in a friendly atmosphere and looked after by big brothers whose heart was in the work. The first end boys' club first to come, just before half-past six. Marshalled by their leaders, they came to the door, were met by Rotarians, helped to dispose of caps and overcoats downstairs, and sat upstairs with orderly dispatch to seats at the tables in the great hall. Then came the south end boys, marching in perfect order and in larger numbers, and they, too, were soon seated at the tables. The directors had divided the boys in groups of ten, each with a leader, to avoid confusion, and it worked perfectly.

THE DYING YEAR

From Central Baptist Church Weekly Bulletin of yesterday.—By Rev. James Duro, pastor. "Tempus fugit" cried the Roman writer, with grief. "Time shall be no more," wrote the Christian apostle, with hope. Here is the difference between the pagan and the Christian outlook. Time stole the pagan's joy; it hastened the Christian's heritage. The Saint was heir to the life of the ages. His hope and destiny were beyond the reach of time. On the voyage of life, the saint saw eternity "fore and aft." The festering years were hurrying the universe to its eternal climax; but they were singing on the way: "The best is yet to be." Time's flight is irrevocable. This is true for all. The bird of time wings its course on a straight line—never in a circle. It never covers the same ground twice. The river of time never turns back. Ships that pass in the night leave no wake behind. What is done cannot be undone.

SAYS HELL IS NOT WORK

A citizen called at the Times' office yesterday to suggest that all people and welfare organizations make a careful enquiry before granting aid to persons who solicit it. He cited a case in point. He said there is a man who could be at work every day at a fair wage. He does not work. He has a wife and several children. He has secured both money and goods by telling a pathetic story with the art of a master. He owes many merchants who have trusted him. He has been known to sell things presented to the family. He and his wife are regular patrons of the movies, leaving the children at home. In short, the citizen said, and he spoke as one who had been greatly deceived by this artful man, he wanted him—and he preferred to live by his wits.

CANCEL COURTS FOR THE WINTER

A schedule of the circuit courts to be held in the province in the new year has been scheduled and a feature of the list is the fact that, with the exception of St. John and York counties, no sittings are scheduled for the winter months. It is understood that experience in previous winters, in which it was found that jurymen and witnesses had difficulty in attending on account of the distance to be traveled and weather conditions, was responsible for the courts in the sparsely settled counties being cancelled for the winter. Consequently the first circuit of the year—other than at St. John or Fredericton—will be in Kings county on the third Tuesday in March. Sessions in the other counties will be on the fourth Tuesday. The first sitting in St. John will be on the second Tuesday in January, at which Chief Justice McKeown will preside. The next will be held by Judge Chandler on the second Tuesday in April.

UNIVERSITY NIGHT

Y. M. C. E. evening January 2, Grade 8 and high schools boys and parents; also college boys who are home. Programme.

A Happier Year In These Homes. If Father, say, should start the New Year with a big bound forward in business efficiency, there'd be no doubt of it becoming a happier year. Running a home is a business bringing happiness to all in it and coming to it. Quite a few cleverly contrived homes are about to become more efficient and pleasurable in looks and accommodation—through Chesterfield Beds. The idea of the Davenport Bed developed into Chesterfields. A Chesterfield of surpassing comfort and appearance that turns into a double Davenport Bed. Singly or en suite with the two Club Chairs. This high light of the New Year occurs throughout a window display along the Marcus order—and Davenettes as well appear as low as $46. J. Marcus Furniture, Rugs 30-38 Dock St.
