War time economy has taught many lessons that will no doubt stay with us and save many dollars in nearly every home. One of these is in the matter of rugs and carpets. In prevar days a new rug or so every house-cleaning time seemed to follow as a natural course of events. After a time of wear on the best room in the house, a rug wended its way through various rooms of less importance, and finally ended its somewhat short life in the furnace or in the ragman's wagon. Sometimes it was strong and whole, but the for use, we thought Rugs weren't such a big factor of expenses then, and good quality rugs were so easily procured!

How different it is now! Many old-time rugs could have been bought with the price we now pay for one—and then the quality is not what we had in the past. We have to make our rugs and carpets last now. We might have had to put up with faded, rubbed-in colors to, had not some wise housewife hit upon a discovery that restores colors to faded-looking carpets and rugs.

This is what it is: Take an ordinary scrubbing brush and scrub the rag or carpet with a solution of water in which Snowflake Ammonia has been dissolved. The result will be startling. Your old rug will look like new. Snowflake Ammonia may be obtained at all grocers.—Advt.

NOTICE.

Regular meeting of Trades and Labor Council tonight, 8 o'clock. Business of importance. All delegates are requested fund to assist lame soldiers to go to St. John for the celebrations this week. The girls refused to divulge who had started them collecting or who was to receive the money. They were cautioned and let go. The magistrate said that the person who instigated the collection by the children was liable to fifteen years' imprisonment. The money was refunded. The girls belong to good families.

THE LATE ISAAC A. AMOS

Isaac A. Amos, whose death is referred to elsewhere, was a well known resident of the west side and for fifty years of the west side fire department. He died at his home, 222 St. Georges street, West End, yesterday after an illness which extended over a year. He was in his seventieth year and leaves to mourn one wears will bring about a marked decline in the prices of gasoline in the United States, he asserted. In Columbia, he said, the development of the oil wells is just beginning.
